HORNER ORDERS STATEWIDE WAR ON KIDNAPERS

Battle to Finish, He Tells Officials.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 28.—[Special.]—Under the leadership of Gov. Henry Horner, all of the law enforcement agencies of Illinois agreed today upon a determined battle to end kidnaping in the state.

There were 500 crime fighters at his afternoon conference in the assembly hall of the Centennial building. They included state's attorneys, sheriffs, and chiefs of police from all parts of the state, representatives of the state police, a representative of Attorney General Kerner, and a representative of the federal bureau of investigation.

They cheered the governor's stirring denunciation of kidnaping gangs and his declaration of war against them and resoundingly indorsed his program for a knitting together of all available forces for a war to a finish against the banditti.

Organize State Central Bureau.

The net result of the state meeting was the creation of a state central bureau to be operated in Springfield by a committee to be organized by T. P. Sullivan, superintendent of the state bureau of criminal identification and investigation, and Acting Chief M. L. Taylor of the state police.

The attendance was unexpectedly large. The telegrams sent out by Gov. Horner did not name the reason for the conference. It was expected this might lead to a large number of absences. But a door card tally of those present showed that nearly every one of the 102 counties of the state was represented by its prosecutor, its sheriff or the chief of police of one or more of its cities; and many counties had three or four representatives on hand.

All were enthusiastic over the governor's plan for the coördination of activities against extortionists. A dozen speakers who followed him spoke of the great value of the system of the central office to distribute complete histories of all kidnapings, including the names, photographs and fingerprints of all suspects, a task upon which it starts now with the records of 70,000 known criminals.

Welcome State Police Aid.

They also welcomed the statement that upon the request of local authorities this bureau will assist in investigating kidnapings, and the announcement that state police will be subject to call at all times and places for "snatchings." The governor said that if it is necessary he will add fifty more men to the present force for this work.

The law enforcement officials also were pleased by the announcement of Montgomery S. Winning that his superior, Attorney General Otto Kerner, will send assistants to aid in prosecutions where he is requested to do so.

They also received assurances from M. H. Purvis, special agent in charge, that the federal bureau of investigation will coöperate with local officials at every opportunity. He said the bureau's main office at Washington is prepared to give two hour service on finger print identification and that its records include four million sets of prints.

Determined to End Kidnapings.

"I am determined that these extortion gangs that operate in this state be crushed," said Gov. Horner before the meeting. "To end their reign of terror we shall use every ounce of power, every arm of the state, every weapon at our command."

He and other speakers stressed the prediction that this will not be a brief crusade but a fight to the finish even if it takes years.

"United action on the part of all heads of law enforcing bodies is demanded by the seriousness of this situation," the governor said. "We shall expect the citizen population to back the efforts of all these police efforts.

"Unless these gangs of extortionists are blasted out of existence now the job will be all the harder in the future. We must give them no rest or time to entrench themselves as mobs of government defying criminals, such as was experienced in many localities during the heyday of prohibition.

Turn from Liquor Racket.

"Powerful groups of criminals, whose former abundant sources of illicit revenue have been decreasing rapidly as the end of prohibition draws near, have turned to kidnaping for

SEVEN HELD FOR POLICE MURDER IN COURTROOM

Ten Judges Prepare to Fight Crime.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Seven persons were held to the grand jury yesterday by the coroner's jury after an inquest into the murder of Policeman John G. Sevick by a gunman last Monday in the courtroom of Judge Charles P. Molthrop in the Criminal Court building. The jury recommended a thorough investigation of the circumstances attending the murder and suggested that Judge Molthrop himself conduct a special inquiry with a view to speedy justice.

At the same time Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court announced that at least ten judges will be on the job in the court next week for a campaign to put an end to the activities of quick triggered gunmen who, since Jan. 1 have killed nine policemen. In Springfield Gov. Horner indorsed the war on crime launched by Judge Prystalski and State's Attorney Courtney.

"In times such as these," said the governor, "every public official who has an opportunity to help in the fight for the general welfare should be especially ready and glad to offer his assistance."

Two Held on Murder Charge.

Two of the seven held to the grand jury as a result of Policeman Sevick's death were charged with murder. They are:

JOHN SCHECK, killer and bank robber, who shot Sevick with a pistol that had been smuggled to him in the detention room adjoining Judge Molthrop's court.

CARL GRUNDHOEFER, bank robber, who was Scheck's companion in his attempt to escape from the court building.

The five others held by the coroner's jury were charged with being accessories to the murder. Under Illinois law such accessories may be punished as principals for murder. The five are:

JOHN SODER, a county painting foreman who arranged for relatives and friends to visit Scheck in the detention room where he received the gun.

MRS. ROSE SCHECK, mother of the killer and one of those who visited him.

MISS MARY SCHECK, sister of Scheck and also a visitor.

JOSEPH SCHECK, young brother of the slayer.

MISS JEANNETTE HADDON, Scheck's sweetheart and one of his visitors.

The Judges Ready for War.

Chief Justice Prystalski's call for volunteers in the war on criminals brought three more judges from other courts to his banner. They are Ross C. Hall and Joseph Sabath of the Superior court and Daniel P. Trude of the Circuit court. They will sit in the Criminal court with Judge Joseph B. David of the Superior court, who answered the call on Thursday.

In addition to these judges others regularly assigned to the Criminal court for later periods have agreed to go to work there at once. They are Benjamin Epstein and Walter La Buy of the Circuit court.

Judge Prystalski, Judge Molthrop, Judge Harry Miller, and Judge Rudolph Desort, who are now working in the Criminal court, will continue on the job until every gun case has been disposed of. At present on the dockets are 73 murder cases with 110 defendants, and more than 200 gun robbery cases with over 300 defendants. In some indictments several defendants are named.

Swift Justice Is Goal.

"I was sure that my associates on the bench would answer the call for volunteers," said Judge Prystalski as he announced the names of the judges who have agreed to serve. "We still have places open for several more judges. The more judges we get the quicker we can show the criminal element by speedy trial and quick punishment that crime will not be tolerated."

The campaign will not reach its peak, however, until about Wednesday of next week because some technicalities regarding the assignments of the various judges must be worked out on Monday. The judges are supposed to be assigned to the Criminal court by the executive committees of the Circuit and Superior courts. Chief Justice Denis Sullivan of the Superior court is on his way to Europe.

Coroner's Jury Hearing.

The recommendation of the coroner's jury for an investigation of the circumstances of Policeman Sevick's death was couched in these words:

"In the opinion of this jury there

It Isn't Loss of a Man That Hurts Dora So

For 13 years Mrs. Dora Waterman, 50 years old, 1732 West Lake street, has been a widow. During the years her two sons, Jack and Russell, have grown to manhood, and she built up for herself a profitable business wrecking old buildings and selling the salvage.

A year ago she met a suave, well groomed man named Stanley and decided that he was the man for her. He was reputedly a wealthy cattleman from Texas. Mrs. Waterman "pooh, poohed" her sons' objections to Mr. Stanley because she had met him through Adolph Cohn, 60 years old, 1230 West Madison street, the foreman of her wrecking crew.

Friendship Becomes Romance.

Mr. Stanley became a steady visitor at Mrs. Waterman's home. He praised her chicken dinners and talked largely of deals in cattle at the stockyards. Eventually romance budded. The wedding was planned for last Friday afternoon. It was preceded by a breakfast at a downtown hotel, attended by many of Mrs. Waterman's friends.

Afterward the happy couple started for the county building where the license was to be procured and the wedding was to take place immediately. Mrs. Waterman and her fiancé, who was still known to his prospective bride only as "Mr. Stanley"—walked along Clark street.

A Sudden Call for Help.

"Hey, Stanley, I've been looking all over for you. Those people out at the stockyards are crazy. They won't take your cashier's checks, and they wont' ship the cattle unless they have cash."

Mr. Stanley turned to his bride with a stricken air and said: "Darling, this is a big deal. I've got to have $1,000 in cash. Have you got it?"

Mrs. Waterman and her bridegroom got in the car and sped to her bank. There she withdrew $1,000 and gave it to Mr. Stanley's friend. When they returned to the county building the marriage license bureau was closed for the day.

Mr. Stanley Disappears.

Mr. Stanley announced that they would be married on the morrow and suggested a dinner party for all their friends. The party was given, and at the height of the gaiety Mr. Stanley disappeared. Mrs. Waterman has not seen him since.

This story was told to Judge Howard Hayes in the Felony court yesterday when Foreman Cohn was arraigned on a warrant charging a confidence game. Cohn, according to the police, has a record as a confidence man. He denied that he was involved in the plot against Mrs. Waterman, but the judge held him to the grand jury, setting the bond at $3,500.

"I know this is small consolation for your wrecked love; I know it won't bring back your husband," Judge Hayes said sympathetically to Mrs. Waterman, who burst into tears as the sentence was pronounced.

"Husband," she sobbed. "I want no husband. I'm crying because I want my $1,000."

EVERTS WRENN, INSURANCE HEAD, DIES SUDDENLY

Everts Wrenn, insurance executive and socially prominent clubman, died suddenly at the Passavant Memorial hospital last night. He was stricken with bronchial penumonia only three days ago, and his death was not expected. Mr. Wrenn was 64 years old and lived at 1318 Ritchie court.

Mr. Wrenn was general agent for the State Mutual Life Assurance company, 1 North La Salle street. He took that position in 1901, eight years after entering the insurance field. Mr. Wrenn was born in Chicago and educated at Cambridge Latin school and Harvard university, being graduated from Harvard in 1892. He was a member of the University, Chicago, Saddle and Cycle, and Casino clubs and the Racquet club, New York, and the Bohemian club, San Francisco.

Surviving Mr. Wrenn are his widow, Mrs. Goodrich Manvel Wrenn, and a daughter, Mrs. Darrow B. Fulton. Funeral services will be held at St. Chrysostom's chapel at 4 o'clock today. Cremation will be at Graceland.

Melons Sell, So Georgia Town Heads for Fair

Barwick, Ga., July 28.—(AP)—The population of Barwick, save for a few of the old folk, is traveling en masse to the Chicago Fair, Niagara Falls, and points north in celebration of a profitable watermelon crop.

Their mode of transportation is a big produce truck rigged up with comfortable seats, electric lights, and huge placards on each side proclaiming to the world that they're from "Barwick, Ga., heart of the Georgia melon."

Citizens of the town have just finished shipping 300 carloads of melons for which they were paid $45,000. Such wealth put them in a traveling mood, particularly the young folk. Somebody mentioned the World's Fair and the idea spread like wildfire.

Hotel Phones Right Back.

C. R. Simmons, one of the local merchants, wrote the Chicago hotels for rates and one of them came right back with a long distance telephone call.

A telephone call from Chicago! The cry ran through the town, for such a thing is an epoch in Barwick. A good portion of the population was peeking over Merchant Simmons' shoulder when he answered the call. The hotel said it would give good rates and that settled everything.

And so the celebrants started packing for the trip. Incidentally, if the Chicago hotels run short of victuals, they can call on the Barwick folks for a little help. In the truck were stored a dozen juicy hams, a flock of fat hens, many crates of tomatoes, canned goods, coffee, tea, sugar, a dozen cakes, fifteen pounds of onions, and a jug of blackberry cordial just in case somebody gets sick.

Twenty-four in Party.

Twenty-four persons, the bulk of Barwick's population, are in the party. After seeing the sights in Chicago they will head for Niagara Falls. The return route leads through New York, but Broadway doesn't interest them. They said they intend to "just pass through and keep on going."

Philadelphia will draw their interest for a spell, for they want to see Independence hall and the Liberty bell which the history books say so much about.

Then to Washington.

Robbers Find Only $15 in Hospital Till; Leave It

Two bandits seeking "big money" refused to take $15 in a holdup at the John B. Murphy hospital at 620 Belmont avenue late yesterday. The pair, both armed and one obviously drunk, surprised Mrs. Mary Hines, the cashier, in her office. They looked into the cash drawer, and found only $15. "Is that all you've got?" asked one of the robbers. She replied affirmatively. "Not enough," sneered the robber. "Keep it." The two walked out, leaving the $15 behind.

New Deal Gives Collector Job to Harrison

Carter H. Harrison was appointed to a second federal post yesterday, stepping back into the political spotlight after virtual retirement for almost 20 years. On Wednesday Secretary of the Interior Ickes made Mr. Harrison a member of the Illinois state advisory group for public works. Yesterday President Roosevelt appointed him to succeed Gregory T. Van Meter as collector of internal revenue for the northern district of Illinois.

Mr. Van Meter served about 18 months as a Republican appointee sponsored by former County Treasurer George F. Harding. Mr. Harrison has not held public office since 1915, when he completed his fifth term as mayor of Chicago. He is 73 years old and is known as one of the "original" Roosevelt men in Illinois, having approved the President's candidacy prior to the Democratic convention of 1932.

Old Faction Back in Sun.

Mr. Harrison's return to the political arena brings all the leaders of the Harrison-Dunne-O'Connell faction of the old-time Cook County Democracy into the sunlight of favor once more. Former Governor Edward F. Dunne is attorney for the election commissioners. William L. O'Connell is receiver for many closed state banks by appointment of State Auditor Barrett, a follower of Senator James Hamilton Lewis.

The Harrison appointment demonstrated for the first time locally, in the opinion of political observers, that Senator Lewis' preferences carry weight with the Roosevelt administration. Democratic county leaders had slated State Senator Richey V. Graham, son-in-law of the late Mayor Cermak, for the revenue post. Richey was strongly recommended to Postmaster General Farley, chief federal patronage dispenser, during Farley's recent visits to Chicago.

Lewis a Roosevelt Man.

But Mr. Lewis was a Roosevelt man at the national convention, in contrast with Mr. Cermak's middle-of-the-road position. The senator could not attend the convention because congress was still in session, but the Illinois delegation was pledged to him for the presidential nomination. When Lewis released the delegation it was considered significant that he released it not to Cermak, the chairman, but to V. Y. Dallman, Springfield editor, also an "original" Roosevelt man.

Yesterday Mr. Dallman was appointed collector of internal revenue for the southern district of Illinois. He is leader of the Lewis backers in the mid-state section.

Sexton One of Group.

What political developments may follow the return to office of Harrison, Dunne and O'Connell could not be foreseen. The old faction does not have any members in important city or county offices except William H. Sexton, corporation counsel, who served in that capacity when Mr. Harrison was mayor.

Auditor Barrett is the strongest Lewis follower in state office. His allegiance was born when he was running for election as state treasurer in 1930, having won the nomination over M. C. Zacharias, west side banker who was backed by organization Democrats. Barrett stumped the state with Lewis and was elected.

Other Republicans to Go?

The removal of Mr. Van Meter raised the question of whether the Democrats might also appoint successors to the other Republicans holding federal office in Chicago. United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer, Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki and United States Attorney Green are all Republicans. Political gossip has been to the effect that Mr. Green would be retained in office until he has completed trial of the Insull cases.

THOUSANDS ACT, BUT MANY ASK MODIFICATION

Washington Busy on Interpretation.

Signing the Code

The blanket code was delivered yesterday by mail carriers to 50,000 Chicago employers. Only a few—including Marshall Field & Co. and Wm. Wrigley Co.—delivered back the signed codes, but many are expected today and Monday. Scattered but significant demands for men to work were noted. Thousands of new workers will be needed, according to reports.

In Washington there was much puzzlement over the terms of the code. The National Manufacturers' association advised its members not to sign until the code was clarified. Officials of the drive began work of interpretation."

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—[Special.]—Responses to the President's appeal to employers to sign the blanket code began to come in to the capital today. A canvass of the progress being made in the various cities in the signing up of employers revealed that in some cities the agreements are being signed by the thousands, while in others—including Chicago—the acceptance has been slower.

San Francisco, for example, reported 3,680 agreements signed yesterday in that city and Oakland, and 2,520 up to noon today. St. Louis reported 1,519 signatures, covering the state of Missouri.

Chicago Is Slower.

But in Chicago, according to the report, only three agreements had been signed at noon. At 4 o'clock 12 agreements had been sent in and before the closing tonight 37 members of the Illinois Bottlers' association had signed.

The Chicago representative of the department of commerce, F. L. Roberts, reported he had observed no reticence on the part of that city's employers and that he expected a flood of acceptances before the end of the month.

In New York City 240 agreements had been filed, but Postmaster Kiely said he expected an avalanche of certificates on Monday. Postmaster A. J. Gallemeyer of Fort Wayne, Ind., reported "all of the major industries have signed or are about to sign agreements."

Some Stumbling Blocks.

There were questions asked and doubts expressed by a multitude of employers throughout the country. These concerned the meaning of the provisions of the reëmployment agreement and resulted in the issuance of "interpretations" of the agreement by officials of the national recovery administration.

Organized opposition to the agreement has also developed, it was learned today. The National Manufacturers' association, it was revealed, has sent to all of its members a bulletin advising them to insist upon amendments to the agreement before signing it.

Leaders of separate industries, including the hotel owners, have announced to the administration that they cannot subscribe to the code in its present form and efforts are in progress to draw up special provisions under which these industries may sign the agreement and receive the "blue eagles."

Question of Compensation.

The most important of the interpretations issued by the recovery administration, after they had been drawn up by Donald R. Richberg, general counsel, concerned paragraph 7 of the President's agreement. Under this paragraph employers agree:

"Not to reduce the compensation for employment now in excess of the minimum wages hereby agreed to [notwithstanding that the hours worked in such employment may be hereby reduced] and to increase the pay for such employment by an equitable readjustment of all pay schedules."

Employers all over the country have flooded the administration with requests for a ruling as to whether this clause means, for example, that if an employé is working 48 hours per week at $1 per hour and under the code his working time is reduced to 35 hours, he must be paid $48, or whether the hourly rate may be retained and the employé be paid $35.

This was the prime objection to the code, voiced by the National Manufacturers' association. Its bulletin said that if it meant the same weekly rate must be paid for the shorter week the agreement "in many cases becomes insupportable."

In the interpretations issued by Attorney Richberg he declared that no definite rule could be laid down, and it appears that it will be left to individual employers, to groups of employers, and to whole industries, to work out among themselves some solution which might be regarded as an "equitable adjustment."

If what is worked out does not meet with the approval of the administration, the blue eagles will be withdrawn unless the employers alter their interpretation to suit. It is all quite vague and indefinite, as Mr. Richberg himself admitted this evening.

Text of Interpretations.

The following is the text of the interpretations issued by the administration on Clause 7:

"Paragraph 7 means, first that compensation of employés above the minimum wage group [whether now fixed by the hour, day, week, or otherwise] shall not be reduced, either to compensate the employer for increases that he may be required to make in the minimum wage group in order to comply with the agreement, or to turn this reëmployment agreement into a mere share-the-work movement without a resulting increase of total purchasing power. This first provision of Paragraph 7 is a general statement of what shall not be done.

"The rest of Paragraph 7 is a particular statement of what shall be done, which is that rates of pay for employés above the minimum wage group shall be increased by 'equitable readjustments.' No hard and fast rule can be laid down for such readjustments, because the variations in rates of pay and hours of work would make the application of any formula unjust in thousands of cases.

Examples Are Cited.

"We present, however, the following examples of the need for and methods of such readjustments:

"Example 1. Employés now working 40 hours per week in factories. When hours are reduced to thirty-five, the present rate per hour if increased one-seventh would provide the same compensation for a normal week's work as before.

"Example 2. Employés now working sixty hours per week in factories. When hours are reduced to thirty-five, a rate per hour if increased one-seventh might be sufficient to provide proper compensation. But, to increase the rate by five-sevenths, in order to provide the same compensation for thirty-five hours as previously earned in sixty, might impose an inequitable burden on the employer. The sixty hour week might have been in effect because of a rush of business, although a forty hour week might have been normal practice at the same hourly wage.. Seasonal or temporary increases in hours now in effect, or recent increases in wages, are proper factors to be taken into consideration in making equitable readjustments.

"Equitable Readjustment."

"The policy governing the readjustment of wages of all employés in what may be termed the higher wage groups requires, not a fixed rule, but 'equitable readjustment,' in view of lond standing differentials in pay schedules, with due regard for the fact that pay rolls are being heavily increased and that employés will receive benefits from shorter hours, from the reëmployment of other workers, and from stabilized employment which may increase their yearly earnings.

"The foregoing examples indicate the necessity of dealing with this problem of 'equitable readjustment' of the higher rates of pay on the basis of consideration of the varying circumstances and conditions of the thousands of enterprises and employments involved. Any attempts to define a national standard would be productive of widespread injustice. The national recovery administration will, through local agencies, observe carefully the manner in which employers comply with their agreement to make 'equitable readjustments,' and will take from time to time, and announce from Washington, such action as may be necessary to correct clear cases of unfairness and to aid conscientious employers in carrying out in good faith the terms of the agreement.

Opportunity for Survey.

"When an employer signs an agreement and certifies his compliance and also joins in the submission of a code of fair competition before Sept. 1, 1933, his determination of what are 'equitable readjustments' should be accepted, at least prior to Sept. 1, as a prima facie compliance with his agreement, pending action by N. R. A. upon the code submitted, or any other action taken by N. R. A. taken to insure proper interpretations or applications of agreements. This will afford N. R. A. an opportunity to survey the general results of the reemployment program and to iron out difficulties and misunderstandings over agreements that are of a substantial character."

In an oral opinion, Mr. Richberg said it was impossible for him to state whether the word "compensation," as used in the agreement, meant the rate per hour or the rate per week or month.

List of Exemptions.

A ruling as to what individuals are to be considered exempt from the benefits of the agreement classified these as:

1. Professional occupations.
2. Employés of federal, state and local governments.
3. Agricultural labor.
4. Domestic servants.
5. Persons buying goods and selling them independently or persons selling solely on commission, provided, however, that persons regularly employed to sell on commission, with a base salary or guaranteed compensation, come within the requirements of the agreement.

ITALY "SEIZES" FOUR ISLANDS IN MEDITERRANEAN

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

ATHENS, July 28.—A series of conferences between Premier Tsaldiras and other governmental leaders were held today, following a report from the governor of the Greek Cyclades islands that sailors from an Italian torpedo boat had landed yesterday without permission and that surveying crews were on four uninhabited islands which lie between the Italian Dodecanese island of Kalymnos and the Greek island of Amorgos. The Italian commander and Greek naval authorities have promised to seek instructions from their home governments on the question of ownership of islands.

JOBS INCREASE AS EMPLOYERS SIGN TRADE CODE

Create Work for Thousands in Chicago Area.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago business men began yesterday to receive and act on the pledges sent out in President Roosevelt's emergency drive aimed to raise wages, create employment, increase buying power, and build up business.

To 50,000 employers in the city the mail carriers delivered copies of the President's blanket code in White House envelopes, with an appeal from President Roosevelt that they promptly sign the agreement to shorten working hours and adopt minimum wage scales.

Earliest to Pledge.

At noon the first signed pledges began to arrive at the offices of F. L. Roberts, district manager of the department of commerce, who is in charge of the employers' enlistments in Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin. Some employers sent their pledges by special messengers. Others put them in the mails. The first Chicago pledges officially received were reported as from Marshall Field & Co. and the William Wrigley company.

Employment began to rise slowly in Chicago yesterday as business firms began their readjustments of wages and working hours. Responses from employers here indicated that many new workers would be needed in the expansion of their forces. Some concerns reported they had already increased their working staffs.

In the industrial regions, in the Calumet-South Chicago area, ocular demonstration of a revival of employment was seen in smoking chimneys, long idle, and in report of mills and factories that were putting men back to work.

Send Word by Telephone.

Some business houses sent word by telephone that they were ready to send in their signed pledge, but were delayed because they had to copy it for the files. No duplicate forms had been sent out.

On Tuesday, the date when the blanket code becomes effective, employers who have signed up are to file their certificates of compliance, attesting that they have adjusted hours of labor and wages in accordance with the agreement. In exchange they will be given by the postal authorities the "Blue Eagle" banners, posters and stickers to be displayed showing the concern is working under the new code. In Washington the authorities said the Blue Eagles were not to be displayed for a week.

Lists of those who have signed up are to be prepared and posted Wednesday. Every postoffice in Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin will display on its bulletin board the names of employers who have enlisted in the drive. They are to be posted weekly.

Provisions of Blanket Code.

The meat of the blanket code, which is part of the nation-wide plan to restore business and employment under the national industrial recovery act, is in the provisions for maximum hours and minimum wages as follows:

Factory and mechanical workers are to be employed not more than 35 hours a week until Dec. 31, 1933, but with the right to work a maximum week of 40 hours for any six weeks within this period, but not more than 8 hours in any one day.

Accounting, clerical, banking, office, service or sales employés, except outside salesmen, and other white collar workers, are limited to a 40 hour week.

Minimum wage scales are 40 cents an hour in industry, unless the rate was less on July 15, 1929, when it is to be not less than 30 cents. For the white collar workers they are $12 to $15 a week, depending on the size of the city. The minimum rate set for Chicago is $15 a week.

DEMAND FOR WORKERS

Employment bureaus in the city reported increased demands for help. With the rising demand for workers, Joseph L. Moss, superintendent of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, predicted a sharp drop in the number of clients on the relief rolls.

"The figures for July are not yet available," Mr. Moss said, "and a proper reflection of the reception of President Roosevelt's plea will not be seen until we have the August figures. We must keep our clients on the relief rolls until they have received one pay check, which, for most of them, will be about Aug. 15. However, I am counting heavily on a downward trend in the number on the rolls. I have been increasingly optimistic since the middle of April, and things look better than ever right now."

At one relief station it was reported yesterday that nearly 20 families a day are being dropped from the rolls as the members find employment. J. W. Bergthold, superintendent of vocational service for the bureau, said that three firms, whose names he would not divulge, had each requested 100 men, who are being selected from the bureau lists. Mr. Bergthold pointed out that only recently the bureau was receiving requests for only 400 men each month. The vocational service has also received numerous calls for men to do rehibilitation work on homes.

Call for 35 Butchers.

The stockyards' branch of the Illinois free employment service yesterday received a call to supply 35 experienced butchers to packing houses. A. L. McInerney, superintendent of the central placing bureau of the service, reported a continuous increase in the demand for workers at the five branches of the service in the city.

C. J. O'Laughlin, vice president of the Consumers company, said that the working force of his company, approximated at 800 persons, would be increased by 100 a week from Monday.

"We are raising wages and cutting hours in conformity with the blanket code," Mr. O'Laughlin said, "and we are glad to report that this will readjust our schedules and then we will have room for the 100 more employés."

J. B. Berryman, president of the Crane company, said that 800 employés had been added since May.

"We are postponing complete readjustment until the codes of four separate industries under which we operate are approved in Washington," Mr. Berryman declared. "Meanwhile we are adding from 10 to 15 men a day."

The Grigsby-Grunow Radio company announced that 700 employés would be taken on next week.

"We have decreased the maximum working hours from 50 to 35 a week," M. D. Harrison, secretary-treasurer, said, "and this necessitates increasing our force by 700 men. We ordinarily employ about 3,000, but at this time of the year always have to drop 700 from various departments, so the addition of 700 more will bring us up to normal again."

Plan to Increase Force.

E. S. Mansure, head of the Chicago branch of the E. L. Mansure Drapery Trimming company, announced that the company had already increased its force of 200 men to 250 and plans to add 200 more by Aug. 1.

Officials of the Williams Oil-O-Matic company reported that they have added 75 men during the week.

"We cut our working hours to the maximum under the code from our previous maximum of 50 hours a week," an official said, "and are now working in two shifts to afford more employment. The wages of all employés under 50 cents an hour have been raised 10 per cent and employés receiving more than 50 cents an hour have been raised 5 per cent. We will need 50 more men shortly."

Add 1,000 New Employés.

Col. R. H. Morse, president of the Fairbanks-Morse company, manufacturers of farm appliances, said that they recently added 1,000 new employés, and shortly will add several hundred more.

"We have informed President Roosevelt that we will coöperate with him," Col. Morse said. "We will play the game to the best of our financial ability."

A. E. Bastien, president of A. Starr Best, men's furnishers, was another merchant who telegraphed the President that he would coöperate. Mr. Bastien announced that wages have already been raised above the minimum and that the 40 hour week will go into effect Monday. He said that if business warranted it the force would be increased.

Cement Company Adjusts Hours.

The Universal Atlas Cement company announced that wages and hours had been adjusted in conformity to the code and that employés were being added gradually.

I. Callner, president of the Chicago Retail Lumber Dealers' association, said that lumber yards in the city had added more than 500 workers in the last week and would add more within the next few weeks.

"Our code has not yet been approved at Washington," he said, "but we expect it to be approved and in effect next week. Lumber dealers serve the public directly and for this reason the yards may have to stay open more than the maximum of 40 hours a week. We will qualify that, however, by arranging shifts and in this manner spread employment."

Thomas D. Heed, chairman of the board of directors of the Edward Hines Lumber company, said that under the code many employés now working on part time would go on full time, and that the company would shortly try to hire new employés.

H. C. Woolley, vice president of the Chicago Retail Hardware association, said that working hours would be cut to the new maximum next week, and that at a meeting within a few days, members of the association would discuss means of spreading employment.

Drug Store Employés.

A 56 hour week is necessary for all drug store employés, with the exception of registered pharmacists, according to Dr. George L. Secord, president of the Chicago Retail Druggists' association. He said that the national association code, providing for these hours, had been filed at Washington. Dr. Secord estimated that the 1,000 registered pharmacists and assistant registered pharmacists unemployed in the city at present would find work when the code goes into effect.

Executives of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. and of Mandel Brothers announced last night that they had agreed yesterday to abide by the terms of the President's plan. The announcement followed a telephone conversation between store representatives here and Bruce MacLeish of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. and Leon Mandel II., both of whom are in Washington. The two men, according to the announcement, were called to confer with the President and to aid in drafting the code for department stores.

Start Enforcing Evanston Beer Ordinance; Seize 3

Evanston police began enforcement of the Evanston beer ordinance yesterday, arresting three men on charges of selling beer for consumption on the premises. The Evanston beer ordinance permits the sale of beer within certain restrictions, but prohibits the drinking of beer at the place where it is purchased. Yesterday's drive was begun 24 hours earlier than had been expected, the authorities previously having set today as the time for the beginning of the drive.

CHASE AND CAPTURE CHAS. EGAN, SUSPECT IN STROOK SLAYING

Charles Egan, alias Aue, 41 years old, part owner of the Lido Gardens, 7009 Stony Island avenue, was arrested in Blue Island last night for questioning in connection with the slaying of Al Strook, south side cabaret man. Strook was shot July 17 and died four days later.

Egan had been sought for several days, and last night police squads from the South Chicago station, accompanied by Assistant State's Attorney Gordon Nash, sped to Blue Island on receiving information that he might be found in Sonnenschein's tavern at 13335 Rolls avenue. As the Chicago detectives, aided by Blue Island police, neared the tavern Egan ran out a back door. He was caught after a short chase and taken to the South Chicago station. He refused to answer questions, explaining his attorney had advised him not to do so.

Police say they believe that Egan killed Strook. This belief is based on the story of John Curtin, 27 years old, 6317 Ingleside avenue, who says he was with Egan when, he alleges, Egan shot Strook. A brawl in Egan's café, in which Strook shot another man, is regarded as the motive of the slaying.

STOCK EXCHANGE 5 DAY WEEK MAY BE PERMANENT

Considers How to Comply with New Law.

New York, July 28.—(AP)—A permanent five day week for the New York Stock Exchange is a likely result of the code which brokerage houses here are outlining following receipt of President Roosevelt's letter requesting a blanket working agreement for the nation's industrial activities.

Practically all stock exchange members received the President's blanket code today. Partners of the leading houses immediately went into informal conference and the week-end will be largely devoted to an exhaustive discussion of the problem.

To Confer with Johnson.

A representative of the association of stock exchange firms, it is understood, will confer soon with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the national industrial recovery campaign.

There apparently is no question of Wall street's desire and willingness to back up the administration's recovery drive. At the same time it was pointed out that a code for the brokerage business must necessarily embrace a considerable degree of flexibility because a day of abnormally heavy trading cannot be gauged in advance.

Cannot Agree.

Thus far, leading members of the stock exchange have not been able to agree on any limitation with respect to working hours and salaries of employés. Firms which were interviewed today said that if any agreement along the lines adopted by the major industries were applied to the brokerage business, additional employés would be necessary and the exchange would have to be closed on Saturday.

The governing committee of the stock exchange announced today that trading would be suspended on all Saturdays during August as well as the first Saturday in September. While no suggestion was made that this was in the nature of a code trial, several prominent brokers interpreted it in that light.

Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, was not available for comment on the situation and no statement was forthcoming from the governing committee.

New York News Signs Up.

The New York Daily News announced today it had signed the N. R. A. blanket code agreement designed to raise wages and increase employment. The paper announced its general acceptance of the code in an editorial last Saturday.

As a result of its signing the agreement, the News raised the weekly wages of 37 office boys from an average of $13.50 to $15 and reduced the hours of 85 building department employés to 40 hours a week with no reduction in weekly pay. Twenty-two new workers will be employed in this department.

The News adopted a five day week in all its nonunion departments last October so that virtually all employés in the business and editorial departments have been within the 40 hour week and are not affected by the code.

The paper said signing of the pledge, however, will result in immediate pay raises and shorter hours for 122 employés and will make 30 new jobs.

Hourly wage rates in the mechanical departments already exceed the minimums provided by the code and many of the union workers, including those in the composing and pressrooms, are on short week schedules of their own. Negotiations have been started to work out with the unions modifications of contracts by mutual consent to conform with the code.

Theaters Devise Code.

Washington, D. C., July 28.—(AP)—Chorus girls, dramatists and stage hands would be brought under the national recovery administration through a proposed code submitted today by the legitimate theater industry.

The code also expressed the intent of "revitalizing" the legitimate theater "so that the road may be restored and plays once more be given in every section of the country."

For actors with two years' theatrical experience if the box office price is $4.50 or more, $50 minimum for week of 40 hours; box office price between $4 and $4.50, $45 a week; between $3 and $4, $42.50; below, $3, $40.

Employers' Agreement.

The employers agreed that at the end of two weeks of rehearsals they would pay a full week's salary to all actors receiving $100 a week or less; that for the first and second weeks of production half salaries would be paid.

For musicians and stage hands a minimum wage of $30 for eight performances a week was set, except where the prevailing wage on July 1 was higher. That would then be considered the minimum.

For theatrical wardrobe attendants, $30 for week of 40 hours.

Company managers and house treasurers, $40 per week.

Press representatives, $50 per week where stationed in one locality and $75 where traveling.

Other employés, such as ushers, ticket takers, scrub women, theater attendants and the like, 30 cents an hour for a 35 hour week, and 30 cents for porters for a 40 hour week.

JOHNSON GETS AUTO INDUSTRY TO ACCEPT CODE

Flying Visit Suceeds; Ford Is Holdout.

Detroit, Mich., July 28.—(AP)—Ending a flying visit to Detroit, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, dashed back to Washington tonight in an army airplane, bearing the wage work agreement of the nation's automobile industry.

The agreement, not yet formally approved by the administrator, and as yet unsigned by Henry Ford, provides for a maximum 35 hour week, and a minimum wage ranging from 40 to 43 cents an hour, depending upon the size of the city in which the automobile plant is located. Child labor is barred.

Flies to Detroit.

Gen. Johnson flew unannounced to Detroit last night, dove headlong into a hurriedly called conference of directors of the National Automobile chamber of commerce, who a few hours previously had ended a session without reaching an agreement on the signing of the code. This morning he called another conference, and shortly before noon a third. Then he emerged, triumphant.

"My only regret is that Henry Ford has not signed up," he said. "Up to now, every code that has been presented to us has been signed 100 per cent by the industry involved."

Officials of the Ford company said Mr. Ford is awaiting an opportunity to study the full code before making any statement.

Open Shop Stumbling Block.

An insistence upon further assurance that the industry's traditional open shop policy would be retained in the code, it was understood, brought a hitch in the N. A. C. C. meetings. Some observers said they understood Johnson came here to bring that assurance.

"It has been repeatedly said by the administration that it is not the function of the N. R. A. to organize either industry or labor," Johnson declared. "To obtain the benefits of this act it is not necessary for workers to join either company unions or any particular labor union.

"Employers may bargain individually with their men. They cannot, however, refuse to bargain with the representatives of labor chosen by labor."

Although no official statement was made, it was reported that about 96 per cent of the membership of the N. A. C. C. signed the code. The Ford Motor company is not a member, but Ford representatives attended some of the sessions. Johnson himself talked by telephone to Edsel Ford, son of the manufacturer.

Some of the manufacturers estimated tonight that the 35 hour maximum work week agreed upon will mean the employment of about 60,000 more men in the industry. The industry, they said, now employs about 200,000 men in its manufacturing operations.

MELLON OFFERS TO PAY HALF OF DELINQUENT TAX

Bellmawr, N. J., July 28.—(AP)—The offer of Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, to pay 50 per cent in settlement for delinquent taxes on property of the big timber land company has been accepted by the borough council.

The company defaulted to Mellon, who held its mortgage, it was said.

The former treasury official made a similar offer to nearby Brooklawn, where the company also held land, but the borough council there refused the settlement and the matter is to be considered at a massmeeting of citizens.

WYOMING TO GET 23 MILLIONS FOR IRRIGATION WORK

Upper Mississippi Project on U. S. Program.

Washington, D. C., July 28.—[Special.]—A new wrinkle in spending federal funds on reclamation projects was explained today by President Roosevelt when he announced that 23 million dollars out of the public works pork barrel would go to the Casper-Alcova project on the North Platte river in Wyoming. The President also announced that the public works administration would donate 30 per cent of the 63 millions to be spent on the Grand Coulee dam across the Columbia river, probably loaning the remaining 70 per cent to the state of Washington.

And the upper Mississippi 9 foot channel, the President said, was definitely decided upon as one of the public works enterprises. The work of deepening the upper Mississippi river is expected to cost some 124 millions. Approximately 13 millions have been expended. The new work will be carried ahead, the President said, at a rate to complete the channel in from two to three years.

The proposal for a dam in Alcova canyon of the North Platte is one that has been kicking around congress for the past ten years. It has been the pet scheme of Senator John B. Kendrick [Dem., Wyo.]. But, while the Republicans were in control, the big reclamation money went to Boulder dam and the Wyoming project never got farther than to pass the senate in 1926.

SPAIN TO DEPORT YANKEE WRITER FROM MALLORCA

MADRID, July 28.—(AP)—Spanish authorities informed Claude G. Bowers, United States ambassador, today that Theodore Pratt, American writer, had been ordered deported from Mallorca as an undesirable resident.

Pratt, who came to Palma, Mallorca, recently from the other side of the island as the result of a disturbance excited by an article he had written for the American Mercury, has remained there awaiting a decision in his case. The deportation order was not protested by Ambassador Bowers. The Mallorcans took offense at Pratt's comment on conditions in the island and customs of the island residents.

The American ambassador was told also that the defense in the case of the five Americans charged with an attack on a civil guard at Palma had five days in which to make its preparations. Afterward the prosecution will have forty days to complete the charges.

Violent Earthquake Felt in Dutch Harbor, Alaska

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, July 28.—(AP)—A violent earthquake was felt in this region at 3:49 a. m. [Pacific standard time] today [6:49 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time], but no damage had been reported several hours later. The shocks were of 15 seconds duration. No settlements of any size are in the Aleutians. Minor quakes are frequent in the area.

ROOSEVELT DEPARTS TO HYDE PARK HOME FOR BRIEF VACATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt left Washington tonight for his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., on the Hudson river, 80 miles north of New York City. The departure of his special train marked the beginning of the second installment of a piecemeal summer vacation. The first installment was the yachting trip which the President took along the Maine coast immediately following the adjournment of congress.

The second installment at Hyde Park is expected to last until about Aug. 9, when the President will return to Washington for a week or ten days, then go back again to Hyde Park, probably until Labor day.

Mrs. Roosevelt traveled with the President, and he was also accompanied by Marvin H. McIntyre, one of his secretaries, and by an office staff complete, with stenographers, telephone operators and a telegrapher.

The Hyde Park stay is to be only partly recreation. An office has already been set up at Poughkeepsie, nearby, and direct telephone and telegraph wires will keep the President in communication with affairs at Washington.

2,000 EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES TO AID U. S. ROAD PLANS

Local reëmployment committees are to be organized in 2,000 counties in the United States in connection with the $400,000,000 federal road building program.

Plans for the organization were disclosed yesterday by R. C. Jacobson, state reëmployment director, on his return from a two day regional conference at Kansas City, which was headed by W. Frank Persons, director of the United States employment service. Of the 2,000 counties which are to benefit under the federal program only 135 have public employment offices.

Reëmployment committees will be organized in every county where road or public works projects are planned and which do not now have employment offices. These committees will try to centralize employment bureaus, register unemployed workers, and fill jobs as they become available. Only local unemployed workers who are citizens or declarants will be eligible.

CHICAGO MILK DEALERS' PACT IS UP TO WALLACE

Sets Minimum Retail and Wholesale Prices.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—[Special.]—The Chicago milk trade's marketing agreement, bringing all milk distributors in the Chicago area under a blanket federal licensing system, is expected to be signed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace tomorrow.

Final details of the agreement and its accompanying blanket license were completed today by experts of the agricultural adjustment administration and tonight needed only the secretary's signature to become effective. The Chicago agreement is the first marketing pact under the farm adjustment act to be completed and put in operation.

The agreement sets minimum retail and wholesale prices for milk in the Chicago area, prescribes production prices to be paid to producers in the Chicago milk shed, fixes definite bases of production for milk farmers and sets up a code for fair competitive practices in the wholesale and retail distribution of the commodity.

Ten cents a quart, seven cents a pint and four cents a half pint, except that organized charities may purchase bottled milk for 9½ cents a quart. Comparable minimum retail prices for buttermilk, cream, cottage cheese and soured cream are also stipulated.

Imposition of the licensing system upon distributors of milk in the Chicago area was requested by representatives of the milk trade themselves as the safest and most effective method of enforcing the agreement. The blanket license will be applied to all dealers as soon as Secretary Wallace signs it. Distributors who then violate the pact will have their license to operate revoked by the government.

LYLE WINS WRIT FORBIDDING CUT IN JUDGES' PAY

Appropriation to Be Used Up by Oct. 15.

Superior Judge Peter H. Schwaba yesterday granted a mandatory injunction restraining city officials from making any deductions during the current year in the salaries of the chief justice of the Municipal court and his 36 associate judges. The order was obtained by Judge John H. Lyle.

The effect of the order, it is said, is to compel the city to pay the judges at the rate of their full salaries—$15,000 annually for Chief Justice Sonsteby and $10,000 each for the others—until the salary appropriation is exhausted. As the council in the 1933 budget applied a 78 days' pay cut to judges, the appropriation falls by $78,750 to provide for the full statutory salaries.

May Sue for Remainder.

The appropriation, according to city officials, will be exhausted about Oct. 15 unless there is a transfer into the salary account from some other fund. If there is no transfer, the judges' remedy will be to obtain judgments against the city for the remainder of their salaries.

Last year the judges accepted a 48 days' pay cut. This year they at first sent a demand to the aldermen for an appropriation which would pay full salaries both to themselves and to the court's employès, who also had taken a 48 days' pay reduction in 1932. Later, however, the judges agreed to accept a 48 days' pay cut, and ordered the same reduction for the court employès. City employès and aldermen took a 78 days' pay cut in 1932 and are taking the same reduction this year.

Rejected as Discriminatory.

After receiving the 48 day order from the judges the aldermen decided that there should be no discrimination between the political employès of the court and the civil service employès of the city or between the elected judges and the elected aldermen. They ordered a 78 days' pay cut for everybody paid out of city funds.

The aldermen realized that the judges had on their side the law that gives the court the authority to fix the number and salaries of court employès and also the statute which provides that the salary of an elected official may not be reduced during his term. But they pointed out that the latter statute applies also to Mayor Kelly, themselves, and numerous other elected officials, all of whom have accepted salary cuts voluntarily.

R. W. SEARS HEIR BEING GUARDED AFTER THREATS

Wesley M. Sears, 31 years old, son of a founder of Sears, Roebuck & Co., has received a series of threatening letters recently and is constantly attended by a bodyguard, according to reports reaching Chicago avenue police yesterday. Mr. Sears has made no request for police protection, however, it was learned.

At the Pearson hotel, 190 East Pearson street, it was stated that Mr. Sears, a resident there for a number of months, had checked out Thursday and left no forwarding address. The hotel management professed to know nothing of threatening letters nor the bodyguard. Sears is connected with a loop brokerage house.

On Dec. 5, 1928, on petition of his mother, Mrs. Anna L. Sears, and his wife, Mrs. Lillian Carroll Sears, the then Probate Judge Horner appointed a conservator for the $800,000 estate of Mr. Sears' deceased father, Richard W. Sears, adjudging the son a spendthrift and incompetent. On Jan 9, 1930, the wife reappeared before Judge Horner and asked removal of the Northern Trust company as conservator, asserting that her husband was once more competent. The estate, which had shrunk to $400,000 in the interval, was restored to his control.

MUSSOLINI IS 50 YRS. OLD TODAY; GOES TO THE SEA

ROME, July 28.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini becomes half a century old tomorrow. He plans to spend his 50th birthday quietly at Riccione, an Adriatic resort, with his family. Il Duce will enjoy sea bathing.

Mussolini expects a gift, however, even though a small one, from his grandson, Fabbrizio, son of his daughter, Edda, and Count Galeazzo Ciano. Count and Countess Ciano brought Il Duce's only grandchild back from Shanghai a few months ago, where Count Ciano was Italian consul general.

It is probable that the Italian newspapers will not even mention Mussolini's birthday tomorrow. That he does not want to give the impression of growing older is indicated by the fact that when the Cianos arrived from Shanghai the newspapers were forbidden to speak of Mussolini as a grandfather. No photograph of little Fabbrizio has been published anywhere in Italy.

COAL PRODUCTION IN RUSSIA FALLS; WORKERS DESERT

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, July 28.—Soviet coal production has fallen about 5 or 6 per cent in the last six weeks and the reasons for this alarm the soviet press. The reason given by a special correspondent of the Industrial Gazette is the excessive labor turnover, which increased this month from a rate that would be nearly 100 per cent if reckoned annually—a shocking enough figure—to 150 per cent or more. Part of this, the correspondent admits, is seasonal—collectivized peasants who had volunteered for mine service having returned to their villages for the harvest—but nearly half of the last six weeks' departures have been those of workers who simply quit without notice or even drawing pay. This the correspondent ascribes to the bad housing and feeding of the miners and the lack of consumers' goods.

Conviction Brings Year in Bridewell.

A window in the grocery of Otto Gustafson, 2602 East 79th street, was smashed by a well hurled brick on Oct. 1, 1932. But the evidence which caused the conviction yesterday of the two window breakers in the court of Judge Rudolph Desort was printed in a daily newspaper of May 22, 1932.

Those convicted are Robert O'Connell, 44 years old, a wagon driver for the Hunding Dairy company, and Harry McLean, 43 years old, a bricklayer. The conviction carries a maximum sentence of a year in the Bridewell.

Find Brick in Auto.

Evidence at the trial showed that O'Connell and McLean, riding in an automobile, were halted for questioning by a police squad in the South Chicago district on Oct. 1. In the car was a brick, wrapped in one section of the newspaper dated more than five months earlier.

Not satisfied with the stories told by the two men, the policemen took them on a tour of the district. They had not gone far when one of the captors saw Gustafson's broken window. Summoning the owner, the investigators entered and found the brick that caused the damage. It was wrapped in another section of the same newspaper, similarly dated May 22.

Evidence Is Sufficient.

O'Connell and McLean denied being the smashers and virtually the only evidence presented by Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty was based on the wrapping of the two bricks. A jury agreed that this was sufficient and found the pair guilty of malicious mischief.

It is believed that the attack on the grocery was made because Gustafson was selling milk from the Meadowmoor Dairies, Inc., a cut price concern.

TROOPS ORDERED TO PENNSYLVANIA COAL STRIKE AREA

Harrisburg, Pa., July 29 [Saturday].—(AP)—Gov. Pinchot early today said he had ordered Pennsylvania National Guardsmen to the Fayette county coal mine strike area.

Pinchot added he is preparing a proclamation of martial law under which the state troops will replace officers of Sheriff Hackney, who a short time earlier advised the governor he would not withdraw in favor of state police.

Sheriff Assails Governor.

Uniontown, Pa., July 29 [Saturday].—(AP)—Sheriff Harry E. Hackney early today refused to accede to Gov. Pinchot's demand that he withdraw his deputies from the Fayette county mine strike area.

In a telegram in answer to Pinchot's threat that he would declare martial law in the coal fields unless the deputies are removed, the sheriff also scored the governor for calling state police off duty in the county.

"I would be pleased to have the state police assume the responsibility for maintaining order entirely," Hackney asserted, "but I cannot in justice to myself, to my office, to the people of Fayette county, and to the commonwealth of Pennsylvania sign away my duties and my responsibilities."

NORSE EXPLORING SHIP STRANDED IN MACKENZIE BAY

[Copyright; 1933: By the New York Times.]

COPENHAGEN, July 28.—News has been received here that the ship Poualbjoern of the Norwegian expedition led by Dr. Adolf Hoel is stranded in MacKenzie bay, Greenland, but has succeeded in putting 18 men ashore.

An S O S was picked up by Dr. Lauge Koch, leader of the Danish Greenland expedition, aboard its ship, and it is steaming through ice floes to Dr. Hoel's assistance.

Dr. Koch and Dr. Hoel were the chief antagonists in the recent Danish-Norwegian dispute over East Greenland before the world court at The Hague, and their first meeting since then will be as rescuer and rescued.

INMATE OF OLD PEOPLE'S HOME DIES.

Carl R. Nielsen, 81 years old, a retired butcher, died last night in the Danish Old People's home, 4801 Hurlbut avenue, of injuries suffered Wednesday when he fell out of bed.

Second to Wed

The second wedding among members of the cast of "Gay Divorce," now playing at the Apollo theater, took place last night when Martin Cravath, 23 years old, one of the principals in the show, and Sandra Jonson, of 5325 Kenmore avenue, were married in Waukegan by Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt. The bride, who is 18 years old, is the daughter of Theodore Jonson, a Chicago contractor. They expect to live in New York. The first elopement was that of Jacquie Simmons, a chorus girl, and Jack Voeghlin, former manager of Earl Carroll's theater in New York, on Sunday.

BEER ON SALE AT WESTERVILLE, AFTER 60 YEARS

Is Anti-Saloon League Capital of Nation.

Westerville, O., July 28.—[Special.] For the first time in sixty years beer was on sale in Westerville, the dry capital of the nation, today.

And what is more, Charles V. Taylor, who holds the permit to sell beer here, intends to continue, despite pleas of Dr. Howard H. Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon league, and Prof. R. E. Mendenhall of Otterbein college, chairman of the Westerville law enforcement committee.

Westerville is the national headquarters of the Anti-Saloon league. It is from here that all the propaganda issued by the organization is sent out, and the realization that sixty years of dry local rule was to be broken stirred the leading supporters of the old dry regime.

Try to Dissuade Him.

Dr. Russell and Prof. Mendenhall visited Taylor at his café at 55 East Main street today to try to persuade him to abandon sale of the beverage.

Joseph H. Larimore, publicity director of the Anti-Saloon league, received an anonymous letter today urging him to take some action against the sale of beer in Westerville and suggesting that "the public uprise."

"I have been in business at this spot since 1913 and always have operated a respectable place and I expect to continue doing so. I had the recommendations of some of the best men in town to get the permit," Taylor said. "I've heard of the talk against my place, but only two people have been in to see me about it." He referred to Dr. Russell and Prof. Mendenhall.

No Signs as Yet.

No beer signs yet adorn the front of Taylor's place, but he intends to have them in a week or so "when everybody cools off."

Although Taylor was selling beer across the counter early today, few sales were registered, due, Taylor intimated, to the crowd of protesters which gathered in front of the poolroom.

"I've got beer, but apparently everybody is too scared to buy it. The Anti-Saloon league makes me sick," Taylor indignantly declared.

U. S. A. CAN'T BE WRONG! EUROPE GOES OVER TO GIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—The United States appears to have made one deep impression upon Europe during the world economic conference. That was the conversion of the foreign delegates to the drinking of gin [not the bathtub variety].

The long bar of all nations in the Geological museum was deserted today except for the bartenders and waiters, who were packing up bottles of vodka, raki and other strange drinks on which the delegates kept going for the last six weeks. The chief bartender remarked that the foreign envoys, after sampling the various liquors available, had tried America's national drink under prohibition and found it good, and that thereafter gin, in its various mixtures, was the most popular drink.

The last traces of the conference were being wiped out today. Secretaries and experts dashed around and got in the way of cleaners and charwomen who were busy clearing away the masses of débris left by the representatives of 66 nations.

The secretaries were packing six tons of documents, which will be sent in a day or two to Geneva for filing in the archives of the league of nations.

A NAP IN CHICAGO CHANGES AIMEE'S VIEW ON DIVORCE

She Jeers at Hutton's Vaudeville Debut.

Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton awoke yesterday afternoon from a refreshing nap in her suite in the Drake hotel, combed the silver blonde hair which once was flaming red, used a lipstick to good effect, and remarked snappily:

"Judas Iscariot had his thirty pieces of silver and David Hutton has his vaudeville contract."

Gone was the pretty confusion, the "just can't understand it all" attitude with which she greeted interviewers when she arrived in the morning over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to stop a day on her journey west. At that time the California evangelist had sighed when asked how she felt about the divorce action filed by her rotund husband, David Hutton, a singer who has foresaken the chanting of hymns for the caroling of popular airs on the stage.

Her Station Interview.

"I hardly know how to feel," she had grieved to reporters in the railroad station. "I hardly realize what has happened. I'm going home to find out what it is all about. Every letter and cable he sent me was full of love and devotion. Then, suddenly, came the catastrophe."

But the Aimee of the afternoon was far different from the Aimee of the morning.

"Why should I jump into the lake because I've been sued for divorce?" she said. "Naturally, a husband who doesn't make any money feels embarrassed because a wife is supporting him. Poor David sold out for a vaudeville contract. I am told, and I honestly believe, that he got his contract on condition that he sue for divorce within three days in order to get the publicity."

She's Sorry About the Eggs.

Aimee expressed regret that her husband's debut before the footlights of a Hollywood theater had been somewhat marred when a woman in the audience tossed a few eggs at him.

"Wasn't that too bad?" she said, smiling happily. "But the way of the transgressor is hard. David will not be missed at the temple. His singing was wonderful when it was dedicated to the service of God, but I fear that he will not be so happy on the stage. He has gone, but God's work goes on. We are like little waves lapping at the edge of ageless rock."

Mrs. Hutton said that she intends leaving Chicago this morning, either by train or plane. She expressed a desire to see the World's Fair, but was fearful that she might be recognized and not be able to enjoy the sights without crowds following her around.

Plans for Heavy Incognito.

In order that her incognito might be respected, her manager made elaborate plans for her to visit the Streets of Paris, where she might be shocked, and the Hall of Religion, where she was to meet the Cherry Sisters, photographers and reporters being invited.

Even Mrs. Hutton's little speech about A Century of Progress was predicted by her manager.

"She will say," he announced, "that the World's Fair attractions range from the horrors of hell to the delights of heaven."

The prediction proved nearly correct. After viewing the Streets of Paris and the Hall of Religion last night Mrs. Hutton said:

"There is everything in this Fair from the wickedness of Satan to the glory of God."

FUSION IS SPLIT; OPPOSE O'RYAN; TALK LA GUARDIA

New York, July 28.—[Special.]—Opposition to Gen. John F. O'Ryan, chosen for the fusion nomination by the group headed by former Gov. Charles S. Whitman, grew today. The Anti-Tammany fusion forces were divided in two camps, which may battle in the Republican primary.

Former Representative F. H. La Guardia, as expected, declined the nomination for president of the board of aldermen. With former Assemblyman Langdon W. Post having declined the nomination for borough president of Manhattan, Mr. La Guardia's decision to stand with Samuel Seabury against the Whitman group wiped out two-thirds of the proposed ticket.

Although several members of the Whitman group declared they believed Gen. O'Ryan would accept the nomination, there were other opinions that he would decline it. No definite decision from Gen. O'Ryan is expected before Monday. Then he will find that he is opposed by Mr. Seabury and that there is strong opposition to his selection among both Republicans and independents. He will find, apparently, that if he does accept the nomination offered by the Whitman group, he will have to make a fight for the Republican nomination in the primary election.

Sues Mate Over His Tales of First Wife's Pancakes

Michael Wonicki had been married before and was always telling her how well his first wife could make wheat cakes, Mrs. Anna Wonicki, 3010 West 53d street, charged yesterday in a bill for divorce filed in the Superior court by Attorney Victor Frohlich. She also charged him with jealousy, asserting that he made her keep a diary of her actions every time she left their home.

BAD WEATHER BALKS ARMADA'S HOP TO IRELAND

Balbo Postpones Trip Indefinitely.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CLARENVILLE, N. F., July 28.—Reports of bad weather over the Atlantic tonight disrupted the plans of Gen. Italo Balbo and his Italian armada of 24 seaplanes to take off early tomorrow for Valencia in the Irish Free State. Gen. Balbo postponed indefinitely the armada's departure.

This lap, the third on the return trip from A Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, to Italy is 1,800 miles. This is 300 miles longer than the hop from Reykiavik, Iceland, to Cartwright, Labrador, on the westward crossing.

24th Plane Joins Fleet.

The armada arrived at Shoal Harbor Wednesday after a flight from Shediac, New Brunswick. Yesterday was spent in refueling the seaplanes and transferring excess baggage to the royal Italian yacht, Alice, which has served as tender for the expedition in Labrador and Newfoundland. The plane, I-ROVI, which was forced down by a broken water pump at Victoria Harbor, Prince Edward Island, on the Shediac to Shoal harbor hop, rejoined the squadron yesterday.

Lindberghs May Extend Tour.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, July 28.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh will extend their North Atlantic aerial mapping tour to Baffin Land, Norway, and Denmark, it appeared from reports reaching Denmark today.

Col. Lindbergh, now in Godthaab, Greenland, cabled an American oil company to deliver a consignment of gasoline and oil at Stavanger, on Boknfjord on the southwest coast of Norway. This indicates he may hop from Greenland to Iceland, from Iceland across the Faroe and Shetland islands to Norway and from Norway to Copenhagen.

Daugaard Jensen, governor of Greenland, will leave Copenhagen tomorrow on a supply ship for Greenland. Letters and parcels for Col. Lindbergh are aboard the vessel. The ship is due in Greenland next week.

Mattern Reaches Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 28.—(AP)—James Mattern, en route to New York on his interrupted world solo flight, landed here at 7:45 p. m. Chicago time tonight from Regina, Sask. He was accompanied by Pilot "Pat" Reid. They planned to take off at dawn for Toronto. Mattern left Edmonton, Alberta, at 9:5 a. m., stopping at Saskatoon, Sask., several hours later.

TOKIO IS REALLY FEELING SLUMP; WOMEN NAKED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, July 28.—The humble art of eking out a hand to mouth existence has finally reached its apex in the slums of Tokio. Laborers in the lowly wards have begun stripping their wives to pawn almost every bit of their clothing for the price of car fare and cheap lunch. Many a wife in the slums is thus obliged to remain strictly indoors nowadays.

The practice of pawning wives' clothing was brought on by necessity, investigators report. With hard times growing worse, many of the laborers do not even have the price of carfare.

With everything in the house already in the pawnshop, one practical laborer, it is said, cast a longing glance at his wife's attire. The good wife, sensing what was in her mate's mind, said she had no objection, especially as the weather was so hot. And that, it is said, is how the unusual custom of stripping one's wife started in the slums.

ECONOMY PLAN ADDS 466 GRADE SCHOOL CLASSES

Reorganization Program Gets Under Way.

While the "Save Our Schools" committee continued its protest movement against the retrenchments made by the board of education, officials worked yesterday on plans for the reorganized school system under the lines of the economy program. Supt. William J. Bogan was ill at home, but his assistants were at work on the changes ordered by the school board.

Don C. Rogers, director of building survey, sent out a crew of sixteen loaned to him by John Christensen, school architect, to inspect the 692 portables clustered around school buildings in all parts of the city. Seats and other equipment in the portables will be transferred to manual training and household arts rooms in the elementary schools to provide comfortable quarters for thousands of Chicago's school children this fall. There will be 356 portables discarded entirely.

Revamp School Rooms.

The task of revamping the rooms for elementary school pupils will be worked out under the supervision of Frank Sullivan, director of educational expenditures. Frederick J. Lane, assistant to Mr. Bogan, will be in charge of transferring 21,000 of the former junior high school students into 7th and 8th grades in the elementary schools. It will mean approximately 466 new grade school classes.

The "Save Our Schools" committee received a letter from George F. Zook, United States commissioner of education, in reply to a communication to President Roosevelt.

"The President has referred to me your night letter of July 16, relative to the educational situation in Chicago," said Commissioner Zook. "As doubtless you know, the federal government has no authority to interfere with the conduct of educational affairs in the states and localities.

"However, I join you in regretting the action of the Chicago school board, which deprives Chicago children of educational opportunities which are so desirable in modern life."

200 at Protest Meeting.

Two hundred persons gathered in the Douglas park auditorium at 3200 Ogden avenue last night to protest against the closing of Crane Junior college. The speakers were Morris Siskind, labor editor, Dr. Z. Lorber, associate editor, and M. Blumen, circulation manager of the Jewish Daily Forward, and Meyer Halushka. Other meetings were held in Pulaski hall at 1707 South Ashland avenue and in the home of Mrs. Thomas B. Thompson at 10510 South Leavitt street.

A protest gathering at Shotwell hall, 55th street and Blackstone avenue, was postponed until next Wednesday when Clarence Darrow and State Representative Josephine Perry will speak. A massmeeting has been called for Wednesday at Ridge park, 96th street and Longwood drive. A meeting on Thursday will be held at Riis park, 6400 Fullerton avenue, with Prof. A. R. Hatton of Northwestern university as speaker.

It was reported last night that A. W. Clevenger, secretary of the Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools, an organization which fixes the standards of colleges and of accredited high schools, has mailed a letter to Supt. Bogan protesting against the school board's economy plan.

Three More Die of Heat in Los Angeles District

Los Angeles, Cal., July 28.—[Special.]—Two more deaths from heat near Fresno, making six fatalities there during the current four day hot wave, and one death at Thousand Palms Junction, east of Los Angeles, were reported today as the year's record hot spell continued in southern California. Temperatures ranged from 80 degrees in Los Angeles to 112 in nearby cities. Drizzles of rain in scattered Los Angeles neighborhoods amazed old residents. None of whom remembered any rain as having fallen during July for years.

Enforce Ordinance Against Trucks in Three Streets

Police yesterday started enforcement of a recently passed ordinance which forbids the driving of trucks of two tons or more capacity in La Salle street, from the river to Chicago avenue, Wabash avenue, from Grand avenue to Rush street, and Ohio street, from Michigan avenue to Wells street. The North Central association sponsored the ordinance, pointing out that the heavy trucks and trailers not only impeded traffic in the three arteries, but also damaged the pavement, recently laid on the streets.

7 DEFENDANTS IN RACKET PLOT FOUND MISSING

At least seven of the twenty-four alleged conspirators named in the racket indictment returned Thursday by the Cook county grand jury have apparently fled the state and are believed to be planning to fight extradition.

This was announced yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Dodd Healy, associate of Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber in the racket inquiry. All of the missing defendants, he said, are agents or officials of trade unions involved in the alleged conspiracy to stifle trade by bombings, slugging, acid throwing and strikes.

The seven Mr. Healy listed as fugitives are: James P. Gorman, president of the Retail Cleaners and Dyers; Ben Abrams, business agent, and Al Boris, president of the Inside Dye Workers; George Bendell and George Knott, vice presidents of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers; Dave Ostran, alleged hoodlum and field secretary of the Carbonated Beverage institute, and Sam Ginsberg, alleged Capone terrorist.

Slip Police Net.

"We had police out with capiases for the defendants an hour after the return of the indictment," Mr. Healy said, "but these seven and perhaps some others seem to have slipped the net. We have reports that Knott is in Seattle and that Bendell and Boris may be hiding in Grand Rapids.

"We anticipated that the hoodlums, Ostran and Ginsberg, would flee at the first hint of indictment, and had police watching Ostran's home in Lombard for the past two weeks. He didn't appear there. Ginsberg's lawyer, Ben Feldman, says his client is in another state and professes not to know when he will be back."

If the fugitives surrender outside Illinois and fight extradition, they will apparently be taking their cue, Mr. Healy said, from a more prominent defendant, Attorney Aaron Sapiro of New York who, upon his arraignment as a fugitive there yesterday, entered a general denial and declared he would appeal to Gov. Horner of Illinois and Gov. Lehman of New York to prevent his extradition.

Asks for Continuance.

Through his counsel, David R. Siegel, former assistant United States attorney in New York, Sapiro obtained a two weeks' adjournment and continuance of the $1,500 bond fixed on his arrest, according to dispatches.

"We will fight extradition to bring this case out into the open," dispatches quoted Siegel.

"We are not going to have Mr. Sapiro's character assassinated. We are going to challenge Chicago authorities to produce one scintilla of evidence connecting him with any terrorism or racketeering. It is an unusual case and we want time to communicate with Gov. Horner and Gov. Lehman to ask a hearing. It is our purpose to answer this poisonous propaganda from Chicago."

Plan Extradition Warrant.

Notified of the New Lork developments, Prosecutor Healy said an extradition warrant against Sapiro would be drawn up today and forwarded to Springfield for Gov. Horner's signature Monday. He said the state's attorney's office was indifferent to Sapiro's avowed plan to appeal to Gov. Horner and Gov. Lehman, believing both executives would realize the place for settling the issue was a jury box.

Another of the prominent defendants, Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, economist and founder of the now defunct Cleaners' and Dyers' institute, was expected to return here early today from Reading, Pa. Dr. Squires has been arbitrating a strike of 10,000 hosiery workers there fore Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Raber Makes Statement.

Mr. Healy's chief, Prosecutor Raber, asked to explain the theory of the case in which Dr. Squires, Ald. Oscar F. Nelson of the 46th ward, Attorney Morris I. Kaplan, and a number of business men are named co-conspirators with Al Capone and Murray Humphries, had this to say:

"My only statement will be made when twelve men are in the jury box. Then this investigation will be blazed wide open—not before. I expect the trial to last two months and to produce a sensation every day. Until the trial is on, I want the public and the jury to believe these men are innocent."

Gives $10,000 Cash for Bond.

Jerry Donovan, business agent of the Beverage Drivers' union and one of two defendants arrested immediately after return of the indictments, was released yesterday when his attorney, William R. Fetzer, former municipal judge, produced $10,000 cash for his bond. The other jailed defendant, Sam Feldman, president of the Cook County Hand Laundry Owners association, remained in the county jail.

BOMBS HURT 7 IN OFFICES OF 2 CHIROPRACTORS

Paterson, N. J., July 28.—[Special.]—Bombs wired to electric light sockets exploded in the offices of two chiropractors this afternoon. Seven persons were injured.

The explosions were a few minutes apart. The first was in the office of Charles Baumler. Baumler was not in his office, but all of the injured were waiting to see him. They are:

Mrs. Sadie Brocca, 52, of Haledon; Mrs. Pauline Garino, 58, of Paterson; Elmer Smith, 15, of West Paterson; M. H. Ellenbogen, a shirt manufacturer, who has an adjoining office.

They were taken to Paterson General hospital suffering from multiple contusions and lacerations.

Firemen and policemen had just arrived at the Baumler office when the second bomb exploded in the office of P. J. Barbour four blocks away.

There, Mrs. Christine Kramer, 29, of Haledon, and her daughter, Shirley, 4, were cut by glass and Barbour was slightly hurt.

Ten Judges Prepare to Fight Crime.

should be a complete investigation of the entire situation by the grand jury, the state's attorney, the sheriff, and the judges of the Criminal court. It would seem proper in this case that the judge in whose courtroom the murder occurred should institute a special inquiry in the nature of a contempt proceeding for the purpose of disclosing all the facts and punishing those responsible."

The jury also recommended that in future no one be permitted near detention rooms in the Criminal court building except the proper officers, that no friends or relatives of defendants be permitted to gather about a court bench during a trial, and that courtrooms be kept clear of crowds.

Witnesses Give Testimony.

These recommendations followed a session in which the jury, headed by Attorney Frederick Z. Marx, heard the testimony of a number of witnesses.

Sheriff William Meyering, whose employés allowed relatives of Scheck and Grundhoefer to visit them in the detention room of Judge Molthrop's court, was represented at the inquest by Attorney William J. Flaherty. A demand was made following the courtroom murder for the removal of the sheriff from office.

The first important witness was Seth Wiard, ballistic expert of the coroner's office. He testified that the sawed-off part of a pistol barrel found in the basement of the Scheck home belonged to the gun which Scheck used to kill Policeman Sevick.

Lieut. Andrew B. Barry of the state's attorney's office told of finding the sawed-off piece of the barrel in the basement of the Scheck home at 5040 Wellington avenue.

The lieutenant testified that with the barrel sawed off the revolver would easily fit into a woman's purse. It was in either the purse carried by Scheck's mother or his sister, Mary, that the pistol was slipped through the bars of the detention room, it is charged.

Judge Praises Policeman.

Judge Molthrop was the next witness. He described the turmoil in his courtroom when Scheck and Grundhoefer appeared there in their attempt to escape. The judge praised the conduct of Policeman Sevick, who tried to stop the fugitives.

"He saw his duty and gave full measure of devotion," Judge Molthrop said.

At this point it was brought out that Policeman Sevick was not on actual duty, according to his hours of duty, but was appearing in court as a witness. It was declared by Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel that a policeman is always on duty when crimes are being committed in his presence.

The question was brought up because of the disclosure on Thursday that the city board of awards has failed to vote the usual $5,000 award to the widow of Policeman Maurice Marcussion, who was killed last January when he tried to stop a holdup while not officially on duty.

Tells of Arranging Visits.

The coroner's jury next went into the manner of the visits to the prisoners, which are a violation of court rules and because of which eight bailiffs have been discharged.

Soder admitted that he had arranged for the visits. He said he asked Bailiff Jacob Brossius for permission and that the bailiff told him he was busy, but to return later and he would "take care of him." Soder later told Bailiff Martin McMahon that it was all right to make the visits on the order of Bailiff Brossius. The bailiffs testified that it had so occurred.

The fact that the authorities knew of rumors that there was a plan afoot to smuggle a gun to Scheck also developed during the testimony. Mrs. Frances Soder, wife of Soder, said she had heard the rumor several months ago and had informed her husband. He in turn said he told the criminal court bailiffs.

Chief Bailiff James Gabriel denied that he had been informed.

Scheck, who was twice wounded in his attempted escape, had recovered sufficiently yesterday to be taken from the Bridewell hospital to the jail. His is to be one of the first cases to be tried, Judge Prystalski said.

Roosevelt and Ickes Both Stamp Collectors

LAUNCH WORLD POLICE UNIT AT MEETING HERE

Plan Offices in Washington and Vienna.

The International World Police, an organization which will act as a clearing house and service unit to the police departments of all nations, was launched yesterday at the Hotel Stevens after long deliberations on the part of police executives of the important cities of Europe, Canada, and the United States.

While details have not been worked out it is planned to establish the two main offices at Vienna and Washington. Officers will be elected tonight at a dinner which will be given the visiting police executives by Mayor Kelly. Expansion of the work to South America and the orient is expected to follow this initial action.

New York Official Presides.

Thirty-two administrative and executive heads of police departments of the world were present at the meeting, which was presided over by J. J. O'Connell, deputy chief inspector of New York. The following resolution was adopted:

"After deliberation it was evident that there is need for closer coöperation and coördination in international police problems between administrative and executive heads of police forces throughout the world. Therefore it was decided and resolved that the International World Police be formed as an association to foster friendly relations and to bring such closer coöperation, coördination, and rapport."

This action is the result of three years' work in this country and abroad by Barron Collier of New York.

"My idea originally was the formation of an international bureau through which police information could be correlated and disseminated," Mr. Collier said. "The project has grown to much greater proportions. The European and American bureaus will employ their own officers and will act as a clearing house for international criminal information. Their complete criminal libraries will be available for instant communication between the police in each country."

No Decision on Finances.

Whether the new organization will seek financial aid from the various governments or will be maintained through other means is still unsettled. The first president is expected to be an American.

The organizers of this new weapon against crime are acting as individuals and not as representatives of the various organizations to which they belong, and the world police does not depend on these organizations.

$7,500 FUND TO AID SURVIVORS OF POLICE HERO

A trust fund of $7,500 was ordered established yesterday by the board of trustees of the policemen's and firemen's death benefit fund for the widow of Policeman Maurice Marcusson and his son, Nat, by a former marriage. The fund will be shared jointly by Mrs. Marcusson and the boy.

The award had been granted tentatively last week, but confirmation had been delayed by an investigation of a disputed statement in the record. The statement was that the policeman had been employed by a loan company at 323 West Jackson boulevard, where he was killed in an attempt to stop a robbery. A letter received by the board yesterday from Police Capt. Matthew Homer said that Marcusson had not been employed by the loan company.

"Even if the policeman had been employed by the loan company it would not have prevented the award," said John A. Richert, chief of the city council finance committee staff, "but it was necessary to have the record clear."

Police Hero Accepts Hopeless Odds and Dies Fighting Gang

Following is the second of a series of articles recounting the manner in which nine Chicago policemen have been killed in action since Jan 1.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Roscoe C. Johnson, a Negro policeman assigned to the Wabash avenue station, was sitting comfortably in a storeroom on the second floor of the Gordon Baking company plant at 5324 Federal street last March 21 when he heard a commotion outside.

"Down on the floor, everybody!" was the command Policeman Johnston heard, and he knew that there was occurring the holdup which officials of the company had feared. Johnston had been assigned to sit in the storeroom for just such an emergency.

Peering out, the policeman saw some ten persons, including several women, lying face down on the floor. Guarding them were three men. Two of the men carried revolvers and the third held a sawed-off shotgun pointed squarely in Policeman Johnston's direction.

Robbers in Complete Command.

The three holdup men had entered the building on the first floor, covered Mary Brankin, the switchboard operator, with their guns, and rounded up Arthur Rush, an official, and a number of others. They had forced these persons to walk upstairs to the cashier's office, being apparently familiar with the room arrangement of the place.

The man with the shotgun had taken up a position at a doorway where his gun covered several entrances. From one of these entrances Policeman Johnston, in the darkness of the storeroom, was peering. He was in complete safety as long as he remained still.

He saw one of the robbers grab a bag containing $250 in silver. He saw another advance to the safe, which contained $6,000.

Johnston Comes Out Shooting.

Even a brave man, under these circumstances, might have hesitated. The shotgun, with its deadly load of slugs, was pointed directly at the storeroom entrance. It was certain death to emerge from that entrance, but Policeman Johnston, his blue uniform and star proclaiming instantly his profession, came out shooting.

The bandit with the shotgun had only to shift his weapon slightly. He fired, and Policeman Johnston met the certain death which he had known he would encounter when he left the security of his hiding place. His finger had pulled the trigger of his gun three times before he fell, with the right side of his head and right shoulder blasted away by the terrible charge of lead in the shotgun.

The holdup men, frightened, made no attempt to complete their robbery. The man with the bag of silver coins dropped it. Then he and his companions ran from the building and escaped in an automobile.

Stains in Abandoned Auto.

The car was later found abandoned in a south side street. Bloodstains in the automobile indicated that at least one of Policeman Johnston's shots had taken effect.

The policeman left no insurance, no bank account, no personal property. His policy with the Policemen's Benefit association had lapsed, but his comrades decided that they would pay for his funeral and authorized the monthly payment of $25 to his daughter, Lorraine, now 17 years old. He was divorced from his wife.

STEEL WORKERS ARE QUESTIONED BY MRS. PERKINS

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 28.—(AP)—In the quiet of the basement of little St. Ann's Catholic church in Homestead, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins tonight heard in secret just what steel employés think of the hours they work and the wages they are offered under the steel code.

In a surprise move, she sat down with Slovak laborers, all members of the church, after 10 hours of trooping through the Homestead and Duquesne plants of the Carnegie Steel company with corporation executives, and listened to the "little fellows."

She then urged them to talk to her privately, "just as you would to your priest."

"I work at the McKeesport tin plate plant," said the first speaker. "We all are against the company representative plan there. It would give corporations control of our decisions. And as for the 40 hours, there is nothing to guarantee how many hours we will get a week. We favor a six hour day—that's enough to work in a steel mill—and more money."

Lewis Asks Investigation.

Washington, D. C., July 28.—[Special.]—Federal investigation of the shooting of four strikers in the vicinity of the mines of the H. O. Frick Coke company, subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, was requested by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in a letter sent today to Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Mr. Lewis charged that the troubles which have broken out in the Fayette county, Pa., coke regions and which have spread until they involve 21 mines and 12,000 men, have been caused by the attitude of the agents of the Steel corporation subsidiary.

C. M. T. C. CAMP OPENS WITH 680 BOYS ENROLLED

The annual Citizen Military Training Corps camp opened yesterday at Fort Sheridan when 680 youths of college and high school age enrolled for the camp. All except ten of them passed their physical examinations, and late arrivals are expected to increase the enrollment to 730.

Economy measures of the war department have reduced the enrollment to that figure this year, as compared with approximately 2,000 in former camps. As a result, no basis or first year students are being accepted.

FUND FOR POLICE HEROES' KIN IS RAISED TO $3,558

Mayor Kelly Sends $250; Urges Citizens to Aid.

Mayor Kelly, in a letter accompanying his contribution of $250 to THE TRIBUNE Police Hero fund yesterday, urged Chicago's citizens to support the fund created on Tuesday to provide for the bereft families of the nine policemen slain by gunmen since Jan. 1. The fund was started after Policeman John Sevick was killed in the Criminal Courts building on Monday by a smuggled gun in the hands of a criminal. Yesterday gifts of $730 brought the fund's total to $3,558.10.

"It is my earnest hope that the citizens of Chicago will respond generously to your appeal for a fund to be given to the widows of our brave policemen who fall in defense of the interests of those citizens," the mayor wrote.

A Spirit of Appreciation.

"No monetary gift, of course, can compensate for the loss of a loved one, but the spirit of appreciation and helpfulness behind the gifts will at least show that our citizens are not unmindful of the valiant service rendered by the unfortunate victims of murderers' bullets."

Sending a check for $100, Attorney Silas H. Strawn said: "I deem it the duty of every good citizen to manifest his appreciation of the service rendered the city by the policemen who have been killed by hoodlums while in the faithful discharge of their duty, protecting the lives and property of our citizens."

Another $100 was sent by Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railway.

$250—Edward J. Kelly, mayor.
$50—Peter M. Kelly, William Roy Carner.
$15—Anonymous.
$10—St. Clair Guest, Dr. William Allen Pusey, H. Victor Keane, George Carman, W. H. Hutson.
$5—E. P. Conrad, Christ Athans.
$1—Harry C. Tiller, Patrick J. Heffernan, W. D. Webster, W. T. Jane, Mrs. Fritchard.

Total	$ 730.00
Previously acknowledged	2,828.10
Grand total	$3,558.10

Those who wish to contribute to the fund should make checks payable to THE TRIBUNE Police Hero fund and send them to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

M. P.'S DEMAND BRITAIN CANCEL JAPANESE PACTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—The house of commons broke up for the summer holidays today.

Among the questions discussed before the adjournment until Nov. 7 was the Japanese competition with Lancashire cotton industry. Several speakers urged the government to renounce the Anglo-Japanese treaties.

Maj. C. F. Entwistle of Bolton, one of the centers of the cotton industry, insisted that the Japanese must conform to western standards of living or their goods be prohibited.

MRS. HARRIMAN SAYS HUSBAND'S MIND WEAKENED

Dates His Decline from Death of Son.

New York, July 28.—[Special.]—The wife and daughter of Joseph W. Harriman took the witness stand today in federal court and told of the indicted banker's mental decline, which began, they said, with the death of his son Alan in 1928.

Mr. Harriman had been brought to court from the psychopathic ward at Bellevue hospital. During the proceedings he stared into space, seeming to lack any emotional reaction except once, when he wiped his eyes at the mention of his son's name.

The banker's daughter, Mrs. Boykin Wright, summarized what she said was her father's present condition by comparing him with her own children.

Referring to his return to the Regent Nursing home after his disappearance eleven days ago, she said:

"He just didn't seem to know what it was about. He was like my own children, who are still very young."

Call River Witnesses.

To support the contention that Mr. Harriman's condition was such that it would be unfair to place him on trial now for falsifying books of the Harriman Natonal bank, Attorney William J. Donovan called other witnesses.

A boatman on a car float, a railroad watchman, and a pile driver workman revealed that while police and federal agents were widely searching for the banker he was rowing on the Hudson river.

Samuel Mancione, the boatman, said that from a pier on July 18 he saw Harriman in a rowboat 300 feet from shore, rowing in circles. Mancione asked him what he was doing.

"Fishing," the banker replied.

"Fishing? You ain't got a pole or a line," Mancione said he replied.

Joseph Rogus, a pile driver, said Mr. Harriman had asked him for a glass of water, and from a pail which he brought the banker drank three dippersful. Rogus looked into the rowboat and saw it had five inches of water in the bottom.

At 4 o'clock the same day Joseph Lopez, a switchman for the New York Central railroad, saw Harriman, he said, at 72d street and Riverside drive. The banker was dripping wet. Lopez helped him into a taxicab, which returned him to the nursing home.

Mrs. Harriman Shows Strain.

Mrs. Harriman went to the witness stand attired in black. The strain of testifying for an hour and a half was evident. She used a hearing device. A nurse sat beside her.

The death of Alan, their son, in an automobile accident in 1928, Mrs. Harriman said, had been a shock from which her husband never recovered. Asked about her husband's two disappearances from the nursing home she said Mr. Harriman had never done anything like that before.

"Mr. Harriman was a man who always had his two feet on the ground," she asserted.

During her own illness, she testified, her husband was constantly with her. It was during this period, she said, that he began to drink heavily.

Only Recently Drinking.

"He'd never been a drinking man," she said, "during all the years we had been together."

Dr. Louis Casamajor, senior neurologist at the New York Neurological institute, testified that he believed Mr. Harriman was suffering from an "organic disease of the brain of a slow and degenerative nature."

Dr. A. A. Brill, also a psychiatrist, gave similar testimony.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH BLACKMAIL ACCUSES BARTON

New York, July 28.—[Special.]—Mrs. Frances W. King, testifying in her own defense today in the Court of General Sessions, said that Bruce Barton, author and advertising executive, was the father of her son, born in St. Anne's hospital on St. Patrick's day, 1923.

Mrs. King is on trial on charges of blackmail and attempting extort $50,000 from Barton under threat of publishing a libel against him. An unpublished book, "Roos Martin," is the basis for the indictment against Mrs. King.

When Mrs. King from the witness stand today accused Barton of the paternity of her child, Assistant District Attorney Pilatsky asked her if a Chicago doctor was the father of her child. She emphatically denied that such was the case.

Mrs. King was a spirited witness, and did not hesitate on several occasions to argue with her examiner or with the court. At one point she remarked: "Mrs. Barton is suing Barton for divorce in the Supreme court now, if my information is correct."

"Where did you get your information?" demanded Mr. Pilatsky.

"None of your business!" Mrs. King snapped.

Judge Joseph E. Corrigan, who is presiding, ordered her to answer the prosecutor's question.

"I'm sorry, I must refuse," said Mrs. King coolly. "I do not wish to involve any one else in this."

Mrs. King's attorney wanted to know whether the reason his client was refusing to answer was on the ground that it might tend to degrade and incriminate her.

Mrs. King, after a slight hesitation, decided that this was her reason.

During a recess, Mr. and Mrs. Barton, who have been present at all the sessions, said there was not the slightest truth in the statement that either has secret divorce proceedings pending.

Hindenburg Oak Cut Down; Red Prisoners Lose a Meal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 28.—All communists under protective arrest have been deprived of their noonday meals for three days by order of the Prussian secret police. The punishment was inflicted because unknown persons cut down the "Hindenburg oak," which was planted at the Tempelhof air field on May 1. The "Hindenburg oak" was planted near the "parade poplar," where the former kaiser stood to review the troops. Theodore Roosevelt once stood under the shade of the poplar alongside the kaiser, ransom to replenish their treasuries. Tens of thousands of dollars have been obtained from their victims.

"No section of the United States has been free from this scourge. There have been a series of kidnapings from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast.

"There have been arrests in comparatively few instances. Convictions are even rarer because the kidnapers take effective means of blocking conviction by threatening their victims with death or terrifying reprisals before releasing them.

"These problems confronting the law enforcing agencies throughout the state must be overcome, and will be overcome. Nothing must deter us from organized and aggressive action.

"The plan proposed at the conference is simple, and I hope will prove effective. First, the state will use any part or all of its police force to aid local officials in apprehending known or suspected kidnapers. Already for several weeks, twenty picked men have been on this duty in the northern part of the state assisting the state's attorney of Cook county. Other state police have been assigned to other portions of the state, and more will be assigned at the request of local officials.

Clearing House for Information.

"Second, a clearing house for information and a centralized and secret bureau of investigation has already begun operating in our state bureau of criminal identification and investigation.

"In active charge of this special service branch will be the superintendent of the bureau, and the acting superintendent of state police. Third, the attorney general's office, when requested, will aid local prosecutors in obtaining convictions. Fourth, a plan of close coöperation with federal officials will be maintained.

"Part of the operating plan of the special service division of the state's bureau of criminal identification and investigation provides for a simple and quick functioning alarm system, whereby local law enforcing officials can be mobilized swiftly when a kidnaping occurs."

Courtney Is Applauded.

The first speaker the governor called upon was Assistant Attorney General Winning. The second was State's Attorney Courtney of Cook county, who was warmly applauded when he said that coöperation in his territory had resulted in "having things pretty well cleaned up." He urged that the authorities "take the fight to the gangsters." He was followed by Capt. Daniel A. Gilbert, his chief investigator.

Other speakers were Capt. Matthew Zimmer, representing Chief Allman of Chicago, Sheriff William D. Meyering of Cook county, Sheriff Jerome Munie of St. Clair county, Sheriff Peter Fitzgerald of Madison county, Assistant State's Attorney Charles H. Blim of Will county, Chief W. O. Freeman of Evanston, Commissioner A. P. Lauman of East St. Louis, and State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county.

SECRET POLICE SEIZE ALL COPIES OF U. S. MAGAZINE IN PRUSSIA

BERLIN, July 28.—(AP)—The secret police today seized all copies of the June edition of the American Red Book magazine which could be found in Prussia. The action was taken because of an article on Germany by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. It was said that the Vanderbilt article "is calculated to endanger public security and order."

Called Hitler "Little Chit."

New York, July 28.—(AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., being on a yachting trip, could not be reached today for comment on the seizure of the June issue of Red Book magazine in Prussia because of an article by him. The publishers of the magazine said they might issue a statement later.

The article in question was titled "Under the Sign of the Three H's" and was devoted mostly to purported interviews with Hitler, the former crown prince, Prince Ferdinand, and the former kaiser. At one place in it the author, speaking of Hitler, referred to "The miracle which throws a great nation at the puny feet of a little chit of an Austrian corporal."

13 LABOR CZARS RULE GERMANY'S INDUSTRIAL LIFE

Employers and Workers Must Accept Decisions.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 28.—Thirteen labor trustees, or rather labor dictators, rule supreme over the thirteen labor districts into which Germany has been divided. This is one of the most striking features of the Nazi government.

The labor trustees only are responsible to Chancellor Hitler. Their power far surpasses that held by the once powerful trade unions with their millions of members. The entire police force of the reich is at their beck and call to enforce the measures they deem necessary. Strikes and lockouts will be put down, if necessary, by force of arms.

Settle Wage Disputes.

All wage disputes are settled by them. Employers and workers alike must accept their decision. There is no appeal to a trustee's award.

One of the first measures of the labor dictators was to decree that no worker and employés may be peremptorily dismissed, provided, of course, that he or she did not commit a criminal offense. In the future every worker must be given a two weeks' notice of discharge.

The labor trustees also decreed that youthful workers as well as war wounded are entitled to a yearly vacation of 12 days. Heretofore only the full fledged worker was entitled to a vacation.

Workers were warned today that they must not regard their employers as enemies by Hans Biallas, chief of the press department of the German labor front. Proclaiming how the labor front has created a united labor body out of workers and employers, Biallas said:

"Every member of this powerful front must feel himself a member of a great army which has undertaken a war on unemployment. A soldier in the war who regarded his superior as an enemy was a traitor and was court martialed. The worker who still regards his employer as an enemy is no better. The employer, who arrogantly considers himself better than his fellow worker is a bad officer and sabotages victory just as much as did those officers who held soft jobs in the rear."

Recruits Prussian Council.

Meanwhile, Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering of Prussia is recruiting his state council from among the most famous men in Germany. Goering established the council to help him administrate the state.

His cabinet, professors, doctors, bankers, princes, social leaders sit together in this conclave of fifty men who help direct the fate of Prussia. The newest appointee is Wilhelm Furtwängler, conductor of the Philharmonic orchestra and the former royal opera house. New appointments are being made daily.

The functions of the state council will be similar to those of the old time parliaments. Whenever Premier Goering calls the council together its members may extend their advice. They may report to him about conditions or measures they believe should be changed.

LAKE OF WOODS DISPUTES STILL AWAIT DECISION

More Damage Claims Are Filed.

Washington, D. C., July 28.—(AP)—The Lake of the Woods, whose waters, lapping the shores of both the United States and Canada, have for 35 years been a source of disputes, is still piling up controversies for the courts to decide.

The international aspects of the situation have been ended by treaties, but each year sees new damage claims against the federal government, and resulting litigation, as the shore line of the lake advances and recedes.

The source of the controversies goes back to 1888, before the American shores were opened to settlement. In that year a dam was built in the principal Canadian outlet, which raised the lake's level three feet. It was partially destroyed in 1893, lowering the surface to about on and one-half feet above the natural level. In 1898 a new dam was built, which raised the then level some nine inches. In the same year the land was opened to settlement.

Investigation Is Ordered.

The rise flooded the lowland along the United States shores. Property owners were irate. Many complaints were made. However, official action was subject to many delays. Finally in 1912 the Canadian and American governments directed the international joint commission, which has jurisdiction along the border, to investigate.

Five years later it reported, recommending that the lake level following construction of the second dam be maintained, that flowage rights be purchased to provide drainage in the event of unusually high water and that protection works be constructed.

These recommendations, generally speaking, were incorporated in 1925 in a treaty between the United States and Canada. A year later congress enacted the legislation under which citizens who had suffered losses due to the constantly varying shore line of the lake might obtain redress.

Many Still Unsettled.

Following negotiation of the treaty with Canada, the war department was authorized by law to acquire the necessary ground for flowage purposes by condemnation or otherwise. This and the several hundred claims for damages entered by land owners produced a long series of court disputes, more than 200 of which are still unsettled.

Numerous grounds were advanced to support claims for damages. They ranged from allegations that harvested crops had been damaged by raising the lake to assertions that firewood had floated away.

NEW AUTO THEFT LAW EXPECTED TO AID POLICE DRIVE

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 65; recovered, 78; stripped, 10 [from police records for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight Thursday].

Lieut. John Kelly, in charge of the stolen automobile detail at the detective bureau, said yesterday that he expects to receive considerable aid in the police campaign against thieves who steal automobiles to strip them by the operation of the state law governing second hand automobile parts dealers. The law, which takes effect Tuesday, provides that such dealers must pay a state license and file with the secretary of state full reports of the source of all parts which they sell. The dealers are already licensed by the city and required to make such reports to city officials.

CUMMINGS ASKS WHY TOUHY BAIL IS ONLY $50,000

Praises Husting for Work in Kidnaping Case.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 28.—[Special.]—A telegram of commendation to the office of United States Attorney B. J. Husting for his part in keeping Roger Touhy, gang leader and his three braves safely behind the bars in the Milwaukee jail and to E. J. Koelzer, assistant U. S. attorney for his vigorous actions was received today from Homer S. Cummings, attorney general of the United States. The telegram also expressed surprise that bail was not fixed at $100,000 instead of $50,000 for each of the four prisoners.

The four prisoners are held on a charge of kidnaping William Hamm Jr., wealthy St. Paul brewer. The others are Gustave Schafer, Willie Sharkey, and Edward McFadden.

How He Arrives at Bail.

"Please ask Court Commissioner Floyd E. Jenkins how he arrived at the $50,000 figure and why he refused the higher bail?" the attorney general's telegram directed.

A letter was mailed in response tonight by Mr. Koelzer explaining that the court commissioner felt that any bond higher than $50,000 would be considered excessive and unwarranted and would not be upheld by the courts.

A copy of the complaint issued in the western Wisconsin district at Madison was received at the district attorney's office today. Mr. Koelzer explained it will be held as additional insurance that the four suspected kidnapers are kept in jail here. If the $50,000 bail fixed in the first complaints should be raised, the Madison indictments will prevent the release of the men, who will then be taken before the court commissioner who will set bail on the second complaint.

Kept from Other Prisoners.

Touhy and his men still are held in their separate cells in the county jail. They are not allowed association with other prisoners and see no one but their jailer. William Scott Stewart, Touhy's counsel, who talked with him Tuesday, has not seen him since then and they have had no other callers. The only privilege they have is that of having one meal a day sent in at their expense. They always chose dinner at night for this meal and the rest of the day eat regular jail meals.

Frank Callen, county jailer, said today they are not disagreeable prisoners, but are making the best of their luck.

Word from Chicago today was that among other things that made Touhy's identification by Hamm perfect was that Touhy's right thumb is off at the joint. During the time Hamm was held by kidnapers, it is said he saw this thumb and when he faced Touhy he identified it absolutely. He also is said to have identified the other three prisoners.

Hamm's father came to Chicago and in the office of Melvin Purvis, chief of U. S. investigation, identified the money found in the possession of the men. Touhy paid $22 to a telephone repair man in Elkhorn for knocking down a pole. This money was marked by Hamm before he paid it over to the kidnapers. The serial numbers of the money is also identified. Hamm marked the money in a certain way that he is positive of his marking and that these bills were his money.

ALLEGED TOUHY ALLY QUIZZED ON KIDNAPING

George Wilkie, 39 years old, alleged member of the Touhy gang, and his wife, Stella, 26 years old, were questioned by a federal agent at the detective bureau last night about the kidnaping of William Hamm Jr., millionaire St. Paul brewer. It was reported later that Wilkie would be removed today to Milwaukee where Roger Touhy, gangster, and three of his followers are being held in $50,000 bonds each for the Hamm kidnaping.

The Wilkies were seized early yesterday in their apartment at 7719 North Paulina street by Sergt. John Fogarty and a detective bureau squad. They were held incommunicado at the bureau throughout the day. Last night R. T. Amis, assistant to Melvin Purvis, head of the Chicago office of the United States bureau of investigation, questioned the couple. Both husband and wife, it was understood, admitted some acquaintance with the Touhy gang.

ADIOS TO ANOTHER CONFERENCE.

The world economic conference is, by one view, on ice permanently. It is, by another view, merely taking its breath and its bearings. It has been, by one opinion, a failure. It has been, by another, productive of much good. The Americans and British are on the brighter side. The other delegates are thumbing their noses or holding them.

The British, either in return for the acceptance of the small token payment on the debt or in anticipation of favors to come, handsomely acquit President Roosevelt and his at times dazed delegates of wrecking the meeting. The finding that it has not been wrecked does preclude the indictment of a wrecker, although earlier in the proceedings there was positive conviction that American monkey wrenches were in the machinery.

Luckily the failure of international conferences never leaves the blight forecast as the consequence of such failure when contemplated as of the future. On many occasions the evaporation of the conference contained the only reasonable hope the United States could have of it. Once, when matters were briskly pushed to decisions and conclusions, the only material result was the voluntary surrender of American sea power. At the Washington conference, the one which inspired Europe to put so much faith in the international meeting as the machinery for getting what it wanted, the American surrender was prepared in advance. It had only to be accepted by other nations whose statesmen had not expected to get so much for nothing. They concealed their astonishment and have been arranging conferences ever since.

Some idealistic provisions went along with the American scrapping of battleships. One was the pact for preservation of peace in the far east. It has been remembered only to be ignored. Its breach was the only consequence of its signing. America has sent delegates to other conferences and has learned that its interests are safe only when its representatives are back home again, having agreed to nothing. The less they sign the better their country finds itself. Their hosts are too good at signing invitations, the American guests are too good at signing promissory notes. The second naval conference which had a success in part found that part in the increase of Japanese naval strength and the limitation of America's most effective type of cruiser.

Americans should know from experience that the failure of a conference contains their highest probable good. The economic conference in London began to evaporate when Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's opening remarks on the excluded subject of debt fell flat. The breach of good faith only exposed the real purposes for which the debtors had convened with their creditor.

When Mr. MacDonald had been put in his place the conference was stumped. There remained only to discover ostensible reasons for abandoning it. The discovery was not difficult. It asked only that sixty-six nations should expose their hands.

The world, which had been told that it was unthinkable that the nations should not compose all their difficulties when their representatives met in London, will find that no acute apprehension or panic follows as the delegates reach for their hats.

BACK TO THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

A Rio de Janeiro report says that the Brazilian government has been informed of the acceptance by Bolivia and Paraguay of the proposal to put the negotiations for settlement of the Gran Chaco conflict back in the hands of Argentina, Chile, Peru, and Brazil as conciliators. This is accompanied by the request of the two fighting nations that the league of nations withdraw its commission. A report from Geneva says that the league is much disturbed by the decision. The commission to handle the dispute has been appointed and two of the members are on their way to South America.

The Gran Chaco fighting was notable in the league's record because alone in all the fighting the world has seen under the league auspices it was attended by a declaration of war. The circumstances made it extremely disquieting to the league, which was doubly anxious to get a settlement. The intervention of Europe in the affairs of South America is traditionally offensive to the old sound policies of the western hemisphere, but the American department of state, becoming internationally minded again under the late administration, did not keep the bars of protest up. It had indeed done things which invited European interference.

The experience of all American countries with European influence has been troublesome and disturbed. It has brought invasion and coercion. Within our own time it has contained threats of war and of seizure of territory. Various Central and South American countries at times have expressed themselves unfavorably to the Monroe Doctrine, but it has been the great pacifier in the affairs of the western hemisphere. It is a great mistake to impair such a policy of freedom from imperialistic and colonizing foreign powers. There never was any excuse for the European trend which the American state department took. It departed from its firm ground and needlessly involved itself in the consequences of European decisions. The good offices of the neighbors of the two South American nations in conflict are quite adequate for the purposes of mediation and no good purpose could be served by opening the door to a league of nations settlement. That would be the camel's nose.

It is to be hoped that not only the American state department but also the nations to the south are now willing to retrace their steps and go back to the doctrines which prevailed for over a hundred years to give American countries a security they could not have if they were subjected to the intrigues, motives, and complexities of European acts.

DEATH FOR KIDNAPERS.

Walter McGee has been sentenced to death for the kidnaping of Miss Mary McElroy in Kansas City. The jury found him guilty after he had been identified in court by Miss McElroy as her abductor and after her father had identified him as the man to whom the ransom of $30,000 was paid.

The arrest and conviction of McGee reflect great credit upon the police, the prosecution, the jury, and the judge. A few more drastic punishments and the crime will have lost its popularity with the criminal classes. Unlike murder, which is often committed in passion, kidnaping is almost always calculated in cold blood. If a high record of convictions is established for this vilest of crimes, that fact will enter into the calculation and effectively discourage criminals from attempting abduction.

Fortunately for the safety of life and property, the pursuit of the kidnaping gangs of late has been remarkably successful. The farmer on whose property August Luer, the Alton banker, was held prisoner has made a full confession in which he has implicated others who were participants in the plot. Likewise, William Hamm Jr., the St. Paul brewer, has identified four Touhy gangsters from Chicago as his abductors. The police and federal authorities have done their work well. They have proved that kidnapers have little chance to escape from a determined pursuit. Because the criminals must operate in gangs there are many mouths to tell the story; and because the gangsters must communicate with the relatives of the victim, a means of finding the kidnapers is always at hand.

The police have produced results because an aroused public opinion demanded summary action and would accept no excuses for failure. If juries and judges will consistently follow the Kansas City precedent in convicting the guilty and sentencing them to the most severe penalties which the law will permit, there will be few kidnapings in the future.

THE DRYS ON THE RADIO.

Complaint is made in California that clergymen opposed to the repeal of the 18th amendment are misusing the radio for the delivery of sermons which are, in effect, covers for a "rabid, almost vicious fight in behalf of the 18th amendment." James H. Hanley, a member of the federal radio commission which has received these complaints, is quoted as saying that such clergymen would be cut off under a strict interpretation of the law and he characterized the practices of permitting such expressions of opinion a "rank discrimination."

This reaches a point where it should be urged: Not so fast! The idea that the repeal of the prohibition amendment should be removed from public discussion or restricted in argument is, in truth, a prohibition doctrine, but that did not justify it when the control was dry and it cannot justify it now.

When THE TRIBUNE was at times almost a lone battler against the evils of the Volstead act and the elemental faults of the 18th amendment, there were prohibitionists who wanted to suppress this newspaper. They also proposed boycotts of it and its advertisers. They would have suppressed opinion wherever they found it opposed to their law and their wishes. The fact that the administration now wisely and rightfully urges the states to ratify repeal does not reverse the rule on freedom of speech. The conduct and utterances of anti-repealists may be so violent as to offend some ordinary rules of radio performance or the licensees may be at fault, but no rule can be safely permitted bureaucracy if based upon the dislike of the bureaucracy for the opinion expressed. Repeal is in political action. Censorship cannot be exercised against the anti-repealists merely because they are opposing an administration measure. Government control of opinion is quite as abhorrent to American ideas of public security in the hands of one side as it is of the other.

PROCEED FOR CONTEMPT.

One aspect of the murder of Policeman Sevick seems to us strongly ignored. The circumstances culminating in the murder took place, if not in the presence of the judge, at least in the environs of the court, clearly constituting contempt, and are therefore appropriate subject matter for investigation and punishment of all the contributing offenders under contempt procedure. The inquiry of the state's attorney into the facts and the initiation of criminal proceedings, especially against the murderer and his accomplices who are also guilty of murder, should, of course, be pressed by Mr. Courtney, but pending its results punishment for contempt could be lawfully imposed and with little delay.

We think this aspect of the case should be considered at once by Judge Molthrop. All individuals who contributed to the shocking tragedy are unquestionably guilty of interfering with the court and are therefore guilty of a contempt which ought quickly to land them in jail.

Editorial of the Day

AFTER REPEAL—WHAT?
[Danville Commercial-News.]

Any lingering doubts about the prohibition issue were dissipated by repeal victories Tuesday in Arkansas and Alabama. Prohibitionists may not carry a single state. They would lose Kansas if an election were held tomorrow. Two-thirds of the states will have ratified the repeal amendment by the end of the year.

Now that this obvious decision is on the way sooner than many expected, the question arises, what next?

It is assuredly time for the American people to consider what they're going to do with prohibition repeal when they get it. The decision probably will be up to congress next winter.

We have light beer now. Stronger beer will be available with repeal. Are we to have all kinds of liquor sold freely in licensed private liquor stores, or private stores or barrooms for restricted sales, or government dispensaries, or what?

A MAN down in Paterson, N. J., drank a dozen quarts of 3.point-2 beer, and afterwards a committee of doctors declared he wasn't intoxicated. But there are those who will say that if you can't get results from a dozen bottles of 3.2, then why not sixteen bottles or twenty? Hope springs eternal in the human breast. There must be a kick in that stuff if you stay with it long enough. Oh, there must be.

THE REVEL OF LITTLE BOY BLUE.

Over a wasteland bare, forlorn,

And suddenly the fair bluebell,
Forget-me-not and asphodel,
Cornflower and delphinium tall,
Rose azure-lovely at his call.

"It is so lovely now," said he,
"I really must have some playmates to see!"
So he lifted his horn and blew . . .

And all at once with merry prance
Came boys and girls in lightsome dance;
A pretty sight it was to view
Every one with eyes of blue.

"One thing more we need, I ween;
This lovely country should have a Queen!"
So he lifted his horn and blew . . .

Forth she came o'er the flowered sward,
Eden-graced as the leopard;
Robed as blue as the sky above,
Eyes a sapphire treasure-trove.

"Now for a banquet rich and rare
To honor our lovely Lady fair!"
So he lifted his horn and blew . . .

Blue eyes popped at blackberry tarts,
Blueberry muffins, damson carts;
They ate and danced and crammed until
None had one teeny place to fill.

A more wonderful I have never seen!"
And he lifted his horn and blew . . .

(Sad was he that his golden horn
The Queen smiled as each tiny tot
Wove her crown of Forget-me-not!

IF THIS ENTHUSIAM about the blue eagle of the National Industrial Recovery Act keeps on going we can see where a constitutional amendment is on its way through making every Blue Monday a national holiday and requiring all American eagles to be captured and dyed a rich, deep marine blue before being turned loose again. And there's always that darned fly in every bottle of ointment. It's only a question of time before the radio crooners break loose with the Blue Eagle Blues.

ME, I'M DIFFERENT! Most people on vacation let their thoughts dwell on the work they left behind or the things they've got to do when they get back. They're like the street car conductor who spends his day off riding around on a street car with another conductor. I don't want even to think about the Line when I'm up in the woods. I'll have to use a net or a seine or something to catch speckled trout and pickerel and things like that with. I can't bear to use a line; it'll remind me of work. And as for contributors, while I love 'em when I'm running the column, I wouldn't even be guilty of contributory negligence when I'm on vacation. And, besides, there's a good road from my cabin to a town not more than twenty miles away that gets out a newspaper every day, and, with the old gasoline bus standing all hitched and a-rarin' ter go, it won't be hard to run down to that town and watch 'em go to press almost every day.

Go now quickly with him

And forget our dreams. Forget
The thirteen starlings circling
High above us, there in the windy blue,

As I shall forget your lips
And your feotprints on my heart.

Let me be prematurely old . . .
Lest I remember Pennsylvania mornings—
And wild blackberries—and Antares.

Lest I remember . . .

DOWNWARD TRENDS IN DISEASES.

THOSE who oppose vaccination and vaccines should be in a state of coma by now or else they should be having spasms. They started out to oppose smallpox vaccination. In spite of the worst they could do vaccination has progressed to the point where smallpox scarcely ever kills any one and pitted faces are rarely seen among persons less than 40 years old.

When the anti-vaccinationists saw that that battle was likely to prove their Waterloo they switched to a fight against typhoid vaccination. In spite of the worst they could do the world war was fought almost without deaths from typhoid. That disease is now quite rare. Old people can remember when it was not.

Next they swung into line against diphtheria vaccination. Again they lost out. This protection has now become fairly general and diphtheria is on the way to take its place with smallpox and typhoid. It is about where typhoid was ten years ago. In another decade it will be lower than typhoid now is.

This is only a part of the story. The poor deluded ladies and gentlemen, dabbling in matters about which they knew nothing, have had nothing but defeats. However, what they have suffered is not a circumstance as to what is in store for them. The people want freedom from these infectious diseases and they are not in a mood to listen to those who want them continued. There are a series of vaccines, some now coming into fairly general use, and others just breaking into the field.

The next disease of the group, the control of which is to be seriously undertaken, is measles. The vaccines available for use in the control of this disease are efficient enough, but they are not in a form that lends itself to commercial use. Therefore it has been slower in coming into general use. It consists in using blood serum from the parents or from persons recently convalescent. A recent suggestion is that an extract of placenta be used to immunize for a brief period, to abort an oncoming attack, and to produce a lifetime immunity—whichever method seems best in a given case. This proposal cannot be put on a wholly satisfactory basis, but it can come nearer it than the methods now in use.

It is known that a mother who has had measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, or infantile paralysis passes on to her baby protective substances that prevent him from having these diseases for the first several months of his life. This is not true of smallpox, chicken pox, whooping cough, or of pus infections.

Drs. C. F. McKhann and Fu Tang Chu have succeeded in isolating the substance which is protective against measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, and infantile paralysis. This substance can be used to protect the baby against any one of these diseases. We need it particularly for measles because that disease is prevalent in the first two years and especially the second year of life.

IMPETIGO.

C. M. writes:

1. Can you give me information as to the cause of impetigo?
2. Is it contagious?
3. My son, 19 years old, had a few pimples, as I supposed, break out around his chin. They became festered. What can I do to help him get rid of them?

REPLY.

1. Impetigo is an infection of the skin with staphylococci.
2. All varieties of it are contagious. One is so much so that it goes by the name contagious impetigo.
3. Your son probably has acne. If he will work like a beaver at keeping the dirt off and the grease out of his skin his acne should not trouble him.

AUTOMOBILE PURCHASE.

Chicago, July 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a sixteen year old boy permitted to buy an automobile without his parents' consent? 2. Will the state issue him a license when he is under age? 3. If an accident should occur who would be responsible for the damage done? 4. Would the boy's widowed mother, who owns a home, be held responsible or [5] the state for issuing a license to a minor? The boy in question has money enough to buy a $25 car. M. D. F.

1. There is no law against it if the seller is willing to deal with him but since minors are permitted to disaffirm such transactions, the transaction would seem unwise from the point of view of the seller.
2. We see no legal objection.
3. Depends on the facts as to negligence.
4. She would not be liable unless the trip in question was undertaken for her.
5. No.

Section 31 of the motor vehicle law is as follows: "No person shall operate or drive a motor vehicle who is under 15 years of age, unless such person is accompanied by a duly licensed chauffeur or the owner of the motor vehicle being operated." This state law supersedes city ordinances on the same subject matter.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROPERTY PURCHASE.

Chicago, July 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A has a cottage valued at $4,000 carrying a $2,000 first mortgage. A bought a bungalow from B for $3,500 and has only $300 paid on the contract. A has given a quitclaim deed [recorded] on his cottage to a party for debts. If A moves out from the bungalow bought from B without a release from B can B sue and have the quitclaim deed set aside? G. J.

If the property conveyed by the quitclaim deed did not exceed the debt owing to the grantee then action to have it set aside would have to be brought within the four months' period allowed by the bankruptcy act. If the value exceeded the debt then the transaction would be regarded as a fraud on creditors and could be set aside at a later date. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MECHANIC'S LIEN.

Chicago, July 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a mechanic does work on a building, as painting and decorating, does the transfer of the property to the wife have any effect on the man collecting his pay for labor performed on said building? The work was completed on Sept. 30, 1932, and the transfer was made Dec. 12, 1932. W. E.

If the mechanics' lien is already attached, it would follow the property into the hands of transferees.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 29, 1917.

PARIS.—Four persons were killed when German airmen bombarded a hospital in Paris early yesterday. This was the second air raid on the French capital within twenty-four hours. The raid began soon after midnight. Firemen thronged the streets sounding an alarm on sirens and bugles. French airplanes had been humming in the air since sundown and many more quickly appeared, flashlighting signals to one another. As the warning was sounded an hour later than on the previous night, there were only a few people in the streets. At 1:15 o'clock a bugle was sounded announcing that the raid was over.

LONDON.—Led by wounded soldiers and women, a mob yesterday stormed a church in which a pacifist meeting was in progress, broke up the meeting, injured a score or more persons, and virtually wrecked the interior of the structure. The pacifists were stoned by men, women, and children as they sought safety in flight. They belong to the newly organized Workers and Soldiers' council, modeled upon the organization of that name in Russia.

WAR SUMMARY.—Rumanian troops continue their pursuit of the Teutons in the direction of Kedzi-Vasarhely and capture a number of villages and important heights. Russian troops in Rumania drive forward to the Putna river and capture the town of Boduple. German troops capture more ground to the east and southeast of Tarnopol. Advance is continued below Kolomea. Artillery battles of great violence take place in western Belgium. Berlin reports repulse of French attacks on Chemin des Dames.

CHICAGO.—Uncle Sam interrupted his war plans yesterday long enough to take a good look at the switchmen's strike in Chicago and then prepared an ultimatum. No formal threat was made, but the authorities made it plain that unless a speedy settlement of the controversy is reached the United States government will step in to end the strike.

CHICAGO.—For the first time this summer THE TRIBUNE finds it necessary to deal with the weather in Chicago as a matter of heat news. Heretofore it has been so cool and balmy as to merit no notice from a heat standpoint, but yesterday the mercury leaped to 94 degrees at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This is the high mark of the season.

CHESTER, Pa.—David Schwartz, a deputy sheriff, and an unidentified Negro were shot and killed last night in a fight in the heart of the Negro section. The shooting occurred after a day of quiet following the race riots of the last three days and nights.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—Is there an exhibit of drawings of devices on which patents have been granted?

ANSWER—These drawings are not segregated. However, some individual exhibitors may have drawings showing the development of their particular devices.

QUESTION—What value has a dime dated 1853, at the Fair? How much are Indian head pennies worth?

ANSWER—The dime is worth 10 cents, the penny 1 cent.

QUESTION—Will there be a horse team pulling contest at the Fair?

ANSWER—No such event is scheduled as yet.

LOW LICENSE NUMBERS.

Chicago, July 25.—Because we have paid our automobile fee promptly every year since 1916, must we be insulted in your editorial columns?

I resent your statement that we flout all laws and are exempt because we possess lower numbers than those who decided a couple of years ago that a low number had a social position.

The law provided that those who paid the fee before expiration might renew their present number again. We received our number without any political influence, as you infer, and keep it only because it is easy to remember and has sentiment interest. HARLAN W. BIRD.

BUT "CORRECT ENGLISH" APPROVES—AND ALSO DR. USAGE.

Stoughton, Wis., July 19.—Having been delighted with finding THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in many odd parts of the world, and being more or less an addict of that periodical, may I be excused for having the temerity to make a suggestion?

On the editorial page of your Chicago edition you list several laudable platforms for Chicago, one of which is to "cut taxes in half." I contend that a thing cannot be cut in half any more than it can be cut in third or tenth; and while I do not believe that the matter of tax reduction will hinge on a grammatical flaw in your exhortation, I would suggest that you consider changing the wording of that platform to some such phrase as the following:

Cut taxes in halves.
Cut taxes a half.
Cut taxes 50 per cent.
Cut taxes in two.
Reduce taxes by one-half.

THE TAXPAYER'S SIDE.

Chicago, July 26.—It would be interesting to know how many of the 230,000 citizens, protesting against the school cut, have paid any real estate or personal property tax in the last 5 years.

In the last 7 years I have paid over $900 in tax on my bungalow. In 1932 I paid $166 out of a yearly salary of $1,500, over 10 per cent of my earnings for that year. I think I am entitled to relief.

I know many families with children in school, well able to pay tax, but who are protesting a personal tax bill of $15 to $20 as unreasonably high. I hope the board of education will stand pat on the school cut. OTTO JENSEN.

THE LESSING MONUMENT.

Chicago, July 26.—The Gotthold Ephraim Lessing monument about which your correspondent inquires is situated in one of the most beautiful spots in all Chicago. It is in the rose garden in Washington park, between 55th and 55th streets, just off Cottage Grove avenue, and immediately north of the conservatory. The entrance to the garden is in the sunken garden facing the conservatory or off the parkway leading from 55th street. EDWARD O. DIETERLE.

A CORRECTION REITERATED.

Chicago, July 20.—I refer you to the article on page 5, July 19, also article on page 3 of today's issue of THE TRIBUNE, regarding the records of an "outlaw union being seized."

For your information, will say that the records have not been seized and, furthermore, local No. 150 of the I. U. O. E. is not an "outlaw" organization. I am enclosing copy of letter from William Green, president American Federation of Labor, to the state's attorney, which is self-explanatory. [The letter commends local 150.]

Local No. 150 of the International Union of Operating Engineers is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and all of its affiliated bodies and has been since its inception.

Am also enclosing a copy of a court order [restraining with his consent the state's attorney from interfering with local 150].

The first time I noticed the article in the paper I took it for granted that it was a misprint, but upon noticing the article in today's paper, believe your editor has been misinformed, and wish you would have this statement corrected.

I have been a citizen of this city for many years, as well as the members of this local; all are law abiding citizens as well as taxpayers and we have never been in any trouble around here.

Also, the records of the local were not seized; a writ was served to deliver the books and was protested by Mr. Ahern; further, the books were not impounded and the books are now back where they originally came from.

WILLIAM E. MALONEY,
Business Manager, Local No. 150.

FUR SAMMONS.

Chicago, July 22.—The thought suggests itself that if Chicago and Cook county authorities either can't or do not want to put crooks and murderers of the Fur Sammons caliber behind the bars, then the least they can do is let other cities do the job.

When I read in the papers that this gorilla was arrested in Kansas City I was hoping that Baltimore would get him before Chicago does. Had he been turned over to Baltimore, he would no doubt have been removed from circulation by now.

All I can say is I hope Sammons doesn't kill some one else between now and the date of his trial next fall, but if it has to happen I hope the victim will be some public official through whose greed, politics, or incompetence he is now at large. DISGUSTED.

THE PRESIDENTIAL GLASS.

Oak Park, Ill., July 25.—Well, folks, I suppose you noticed it was good old 100 per cent Adam's ale that quenched the President's thirst while he made his tremendously important radio broadcast last night. His "Where's that glass of water?" was a pertinent inquiry.

$1,000,000 SUIT CHARGES CORNER IN CORN MARKET

G. F. Swift Jr., Allen Moore and H. J. Blum Named.

A $1,000,000 damage suit against Gustavus F. Swift Jr., member of the packing company family; Allen F. Moore, former Republican congressman at large from Monticello, Ill., and Herbert J. Blum, a veteran operator on the Chicago Board of Trade, was filed in the United State District court late yesterday afternoon.

The plaintiff was E. W. Backus, president of the Backus-Brooks Lumber company of Minneapolis. He charged that the defendants in July, 1928, violated the Sherman anti-trust act against monopolies. The suit alleged that the three men "cornered" the market in July corn by controlling 9,000,000 bushels on the Board of Trade, and charged that they made Backus pay an exorbitant price for 950,000 bushels of corn he had contracted to deliver by July 31 of that year.

Charges He Lost $300,000.

The declaration charged that Backus had lost $300,000 through the alleged manipulations of the defendants, who, according to the suit, are "experienced Board of Trade operators." Under the anti-trust law, a plaintiff may sue for "three-fold of his losses." The remaining $100,000 asked in the damage suit is for attorney's fees.

The damage suit was filed after Backus, through his counsel, Morris Townley, had filed in the same court a few hours earlier a bill of discovery directed against L. A. Fitz, agent for the department of agriculture. The bill of discovery asked that Fitz turn over to Backus the records of grain purchases and sales kept by the department under the federal grain futures act.

The bill explained the transaction in which Backus lost his $300,000 and demanded the purchases and sales records to establish the identity of those persons who "manipulated the market."

Insists on Immediate Action.

Soon after filing the bill of discovery Attorney Townley appeared before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. The bill was opposed by Warren Canaday, acting district attorney, representing Fitz. While presenting his facts Attorney Townley stated that immediate action on his bill of discovery was essential because he wished to file the damage suit.

He explained that the statute of limitations allowed five years during which to bring damage actions, and added that the five year period would expire by July 31. Judge Woodward pointed out that under the rules of the court the defendants in the bill of discovery would have 20 days in which to answer his suit and by that time it would be too late to file the damage action.

"Why don't you file the damage suit immediately? Then we can treat the bill of discovery in the proper manner," the judge remarked.

"I'll file it immediately," said Townley, and did so within an hour.

Relates Fluctuations in Price.

The damage suit names the alleged manipulators of the corn market, charging that through their "cornering" of the market the price of corn on July 31, 1928, "did not reflect the actual and commercial value of the grain." The price, according to the bill, had been $1.06 a bushel in early July. This was jumped to $1.15½ a bushel on the last day of the month. A few days later corn was selling at less than $1 a bushel, it was alleged.

Because he was aware of the alleged "corner," although, according to the suit, he did not then know the identity of the manipulators, Backus allowed his contracts to deliver 900,000 bushels of corn to default. Eventually, through investigation by a committee of the Board of Trade, he purchased the corn at $1.12½ cents a bushel and was assessed a fine of 8 cents a bushel for defaulting the contract.

The suit explained that Backus had contracted much earlier in the year to deliver the grain on the assumption that corn prices would decline. His suit explains that he had sold "short" and was forced to pay the high price to cover his contract.

In the bill of discovery Backus stated that only recently he had learned through "hearsay" that the men who cornered the market were Swift, Moore, and Bloom, "among others."

The "Ossified Man" at Fair Gives Pegler His Life Story

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

The Ossified Man lay on his little table, bent to about the shape of a chair rocker, waiting for his next performance in Prof. C. C. Pyle's "Astounding and Astonishing Aggregation of Educational Oddities" at A Century of Progress. The crowd in the amphitheater at this time was slowly moving along the other side of the hall, its silent progress being marked now and again by the clatter of a dropped souvenir cane, the squashy sound of a falling body as some lady or gentleman student, overcome by the marvel of the rubber skinned people or the man who sews buttons on himself, flopped to the concrete floor—out.

There seems to be considerable overstudy in Prof. Pyle's university which is one of the intellectual feasts of the Fair. The people come in a-hungering for knowledge, stuff themselves with the first few courses and, in frequent cases, collapse.

A Modern Educator.

But Prof. Pyle is a modern educator. His school is not innocent of those departments which have lately been denounced as frills. He maintains his own department of hygiene just out in the alley where a nurse takes charge of overworked or overwrought students, arranges them, head down, on a slanting cot, breaks ammonia crackers under their nostrils and sends them back to class. If they come to quickly they may return to the auditorium in time to catch up with their classmates. Should they linger on the cot, however, they may remain over for the next semester which starts not more than thirty minutes later and make up those subjects which they missed while absent for illness.

"There is one thing I do wish," Prof. Pyle said. "I do wish my friends, in writing of the educational display which I am giving here for the nominal tuition of forty cents, would say no more about my having conducted those transcontinental bunion derbies. It is not false pride, mind you. Why, bless your soul, my friends, the old professor has never engaged in any enterprise which could cause the blush of shame to mantle his cheek.

Gives Him a Headache.

"But mention of those bunion derbies always gives me a headache. It reminds me of those country sheriffs, those attachments, and of the educational two-headed chicken which always reached up with its off claw to scratch its spare head loose from the fastenings just at the moment when the crowd was marveling at top speed. We used insect powder on that chicken at the rate of about a bushel a week, but still it would haul off and scratch itself with its foot that way and bat that other head loose just when the assistant professor in charge would urge the people to step up and give this puzzling prank of mother nature their undivided attention. There were some times when I thought I should quite perish of embarrassment.

"Then there was that wretched matter of the shortage of funds at the end of each race and all the angry disputing and unreasonable demands. You will understand, I am sure, when I tell you that the memory of the bunion derbies gives the old professor a very severe headache, and oblige him greatly by saying no more about them.

Meet Mr. Averdurff.

"And now here," the professor said brightly, throwing wide the back door of the Ossified Man's little classroom, "is a man I want you to meet. This is Harry Overdurff, the Ossified Man. Harry, this gentleman is a distinguished writer on scientific subjects. I am sure you two will derive mutual profit from the meeting. And, Harry, you old devil you, what is this I hear about you running around with that little dancer from the rhumba show till all hours of the night? The idea. A man in your position. Ha-ha-ha! In your position, Harry."

An old man with his head cocked jauntily on a rigid neck, with his wasted arms laid across his body and his knees pulled up immovably, the fixed, bowed posture in which he has lived for 33 years, smiled brightly.

"I'm glad to meet you," he said. "No, I wasn't sparking around with any rhumba girl, either. Girls are a worry and I haven't had a worry in the world since 1900, when I began to ossify."

Just Joking, Harry.

"O, pshaw, Harry, I was just joking," the old professor said. "Tell me, how do you like the house tonight? Good house, don't you think?"

"Yes, a splendid audience," the Ossified Man said. His eyes expressed enthusiasm. "I work best for a good house. I can feel a good audience. Give me just a few people out there and somehow I don't seem to get my real stuff into it. But these are good crowds. I have been going great tonight. Did you catch me from out in front? I thought I had them going."

"How old are you, Harry?" the professor asked. "Fifty? Sixty?"

"I'm 63 years old," the Ossified Man said proudly. "Y'wouldn't think it to look at me, would you? Well, that's because I've always taken good care of myself. I was born on Christmas. And I've got a brother, 72, born on New Year's day. We lived down in Athens, Pa. He still lives there. The poor fellow has been a coal miner all his life, but he is getting too old to work now, and I guess life has been pretty tough for him all the way.

Goes on the Road.

"I had it pretty tough myself until I ossified. I was 35 years old at the time. I spent a couple of years in hospitals and then I went on the road and I've been trouping ever since. Carnivals, amusement parks, fairs. I played Wagner's at Coney Island a whole summer. Played a whole season at Revere Beach up in Boston. My old brother never got around anywhere. Just down the coal mine. Nothing but work all his life, when he could get work."

"Are there any other ossified men in the business?" the old professor asked.

The Ossified Man's countenance clouded just faintly.

"O, there's been some," he said. "They claimed to be ossified, but they couldn't let you sit on them, like I can, or put your whole weight on their face and not budge their neck, like me."

"You're next, Harry," the call boy said.

"O. K.," said the Ossified Man. "Well, good-by. I'm glad you came."

That Astounding Marvel.

"And now, ladies and gentlemen," came the voice of the lecturer from out in front of the platform, "we come to one of the most astounding marvels to ever puzzle the savants of the old world. Harry, the Ossified Man, who has completely turned to stone"

Crash! Another souvenir cane went clattering over the concrete floor as another student gave way under the strain of excessive cerebration under the teaching of Prof. C. C. Pyle. Some one got his legs, two others took him under the shoulders.

"Just lift him out this way," said Prof. Clint Finney, who holds degrees from Ringling's, 101 Ranch, Buffalo Bill, and the old Gentry show. "Just lift him this way, please. He'll be all right in a minute." His voice was sweet with kindness and gentle reassurance. "Nothing to be alarmed about, ladies and gentlemen. A gentleman just fainted, that's all. Probably came away without any supper. People always ought to eat supper before coming to the exhibitions. Don't ever neglect your supper, ladies and gentlemen."

20,000 SHRINERS MARCH IN FAIR PARADE TODAY

Letts and Osteopaths to Give Programs Also.

BY EARL MULLIN.

A roll of drums and a fanfare of trumpets will sound in the court of honor at the Fair this afternoon to start 20,000 Nobles of the Mystic Shrine on a triumphant march down the Avenue of Flags, opening the pomp and panoply of Shrine day at a Century of Progress Exposition.

The attendance yesterday, swelled by throngs of children attracted by the bargain admission charge of 5 cents, totaled 150,375 at 11:30 o'clock last night. Among the children were 2,000 orphans, who were guests of a group of 68 Chicagoans. The attendance was the largest since the last preceding Children's day.

Dressed in the gala uniforms of their order, the Shriners, drawn from all over the United States and marching to the massed music of four bands, will stage a ceremonial procession on the mainland and the island, ending in the court of the Hall of Science for a one hour program.

Medinah Temple Is Host.

The day's ceremonies, with Medinah Temple Shriners as hosts to the visiting nobles, will open at 2:30 p. m. in the honor court at the 14th street entrance. The parade, with 1,000 band and drill team members leading off, will form in the honor court to lead the procession. Thousands of other nobles, wearing the insignia of their rank will follow in the line of march.

Bands from Syrian temple of Cincinnati, Tripoli temple of Milwaukee, and Medinah temple of Chicago will participate. Seventy persons will intone the ceremonial chants for the presentation. A score of drill teams will perform during the program in the science courtway.

The line of march extends down the colorful Avenue of Flags, across the 16th street bridge to the island, down the island to 23d street, and back to the mainland for the trek to the court.

Today Is Latvian Day.

Two other special events will be presented. Latvian day will be observed with Letts presenting a program of music and speeches, and the Osteopathic assembly will be held with the Chicago Association of Osteopaths acting as hosts to the visitors. The feature events of the day plus the second all night Saturday program of the Fair are expected to bring a record throng to the Exposition in the 24 hour period.

The Latvian program will open at 5 o'clock this evening in the Court of States and will feature the Latvian choir, a string orchestra, Ottille Brickman, soprano; Esther Klopman, violinist; Arthur Sprude, baritone; Const Sabonis, baritone; and Mildred Pekul, contralto. Dances and a play, "St. John's Night in Latvia," will be presented. E. J. Hughes, secretary of state of Illinois, and J. M. Ullman of the Latvian group will speak.

St. Paul Cruiser Uses Seaway to World's Fair

McGregor, Ia., July 28.—[Special.]—The cabin cruiser Franklin D. Roosevelt, owned by John W. Kessler, Jr., St. Paul, Minn., capitalist, docked here for the night and left early today for the World's Fair, Chicago. The boat will take the Hennepin canal at Rock Island. This is the first pleasure craft from the Twin Cities to make the all water trip to Chicago. They left St. Paul Wednesday. Accompanying Kessler on the voyage are his wife and father, John W. Kessler, and party of St. Paul business men and inland navigation enthusiasts.

LOSE 2D FIGHT TO RAISE NAZI BANNER AT FAIR

Demands of a group of Nazis in Chicago that the swastika banner of the Hitler government be unfurled over the German-American building at A Century of Progress met a second refusal yesterday on the part of the advisory committee of the Chicago Germans comprising the World's Fair section of the national group. Miss Marie Becker, president of the German-American Hostess Society, Inc., presided at the gathering, which was attended by Vice Consul Tannenburg of the German consulate.

While Consul General Hugo Simon has advised the executive committee that he would like to see the wishes of the government respected and the Nazi flag raised to join the other seven now flying on the building, he does not intend to make an issue of the matter. Since the German government is not participating officially in the Fair, the committee feels that it is not imperative that both the old imperial banner and the Nazi flag be hoisted, although both are now official.

U. S. Judge Names Receiver for Fair Tourist Service

Federal Judge Charles Woodward yesterday appointed William A. Hirsch as receiver for the Universal Tourist service, an organization sponsored by church organizations and indorsed by A Century of Progress, which recently suspended operations when its president, I. D. Padorr, disappeared leaving debts aggregating $65,000. The service was intended to inform World's Fair visitors where they might find suitable lodgings.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Among the features planned for the reunion of '93ers on Illinois day, Aug. 11, is a trip of an 1893 Illinois Central train from the south side of Chicago to the downtown district. Only people in '93 costume will be permitted to ride on this train. A parade down Michigan avenue to the Fair grounds will follow the train ride. A replica of Columbus' flagship, the Santa Maria, will sail from Jackson park to the dock at the A. & P. carnival and will be used as headquarters for the '93ers association during the day.

The Texas Grand Opera association, which will present a performance of Verdi's opera "Aida" in Soldiers' field on Aug. 23, Texas day, is an outgrowth of the Houston Civic Opera association, founded and sponsored by Mrs. John Wesley Graham, head of the Texas Music Teachers' association.

Brazil will join the numerous foreign nations having official exhibits at the Fair, according to an announcement of officials yesterday. The exhibit of the South American republic will be placed in the foreign section of the Travel and Transport building, near the south end of the grounds. An official reception will be held in the exhibit in August.

Several special trains and extra equipment on regular trains will be put in service today to care for the heavy Chicago traffic calculated on a basis of advance ticket sales, officials of the Chicago and North Western railway announced yesterday. The North Western will bring approximately 15,000 persons into the city over Saturday and Sunday.

Bulgarian day will be observed at the Fair tomorrow with a program in the court of the Hall of Science from 2 to 6 p. m. Addresses will be made by Judge W. Grabeloff, president of the Bulgarian section; Dr. D. Doseff, president of the Bulgarian-American club, and officials of the Fair.

Two postponements of special programs were announced yesterday by the Fair. Colorado day will be observed during the last days of September instead of Aug. 1, and the international water festival on the lagoon has been advanced from Aug. 3 to Aug. 17 on account of a conflict with the Great Lakes water festival on the earlier date.

Swimmer Saves Rich Youth by Towing Boat 4 Miles

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, T. H., July 28.—Sargent Kahanomoku, brother of the famous Olympic swimmer, Duke Kahanamoku, swam for four hours today through shark infested waters towing a disabled motorboat occupied by Paul I. Fagan Jr., 17, son of a wealthy California family. The boat ran out of gas four miles off Diamond Head and began drifting to the open sea. Kahanamoku leaped into the water, and, towing the boat with one hand while Fagan paddled with a seat board, they reached shore after a terrible struggle. Sharks forced Kahanamoku into the boat several times.

MURCIA, Spain, July 28.—(AP)—Fifty miners, who have been underground since yesterday, when they went on strike in protest against working conditions, stayed in the mines today, and officials hoped to settle the controversy shortly.

NARROW GAUGE RAILWAY TO FAIR ATTACKED AGAIN

The Illinois Central railroad yesterday began a new fight to prevent the narrow gauge railroad from operating in Grant park to and from the World's Fair grounds. A petition to the commerce commission declared that the permit for the short line was illegally issued and unless the commerce commission revokes it the I. C. will ask the courts to order the line discontinued.

The commerce commission ordered automatic signal crossing gates at three crossings of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, Glenview road, Dundee road and Dempster street.

A request that an existing grade crossing at Stough street in Hinsdale be abolished was denied because the commission said in certain instances doing so would require people to travel a half mile to use a viaduct under the C. B. & Q. railroad.

This mistake was made in our order department. We regret very much any inconvenience that this error may have caused the Standard Oil Company and its patrons.

The New Anti-Sludge Motor Oil

means fewer quarts between drains

MORE ISO-VIS "D" customers are coming back every day and saying to us: "You told me it wouldn't form sludge. Why didn't you tell me that it lasts longer? What I like best about Iso-Vis "D" is how little I use of it." Standard always leans over a little backwards in what it says about its products. We'd rather promise too little than too much. But you can add low consumption to low price and freedom from sludge as the reasons why Iso-Vis "D" is the oil for you to use in your car. Drive into a Standard Station, drain and refill your crankcase and get set for the lowest oil cost you've ever experienced.

Drain and Change to Anti-Sludge Iso-Vis "D"

Why shouldn't Iso-Vis "D" last longer? It forms no sludge to stick piston rings—even tends to loosen up rings already stuck by ordinary oils. And next to high speed, stuck rings are the most important cause of high oil consumption. The use of Iso-Vis "D" actually tends to reduce the oil requirements of even an old car. Start now to cut down your motor oil costs by draining the crankcase, flushing clean, and changing to Iso-Vis "D".

Countess of Portsmouth Visits Relatives Here on Way West

Spends Day in Chicago Before Leaving with Husband for Wyoming Ranch.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THOSE relatives of the countess of Portsmouth who are in or near Chicago this summer received telegrams yesterday morning announcing the arrival of their titled kinswoman and her husband, the earl of Portsmouth, at noon yesterday, and all who could manage it on such short notice met them at the train, for it was their first visit here in about four years.

It wasn't a very long visit, however, for the guests left last night for Wyoming, so anxious were they to reach their ranch near Sheridan that they couldn't tarry even to see the Fair. They will be back here in the late autumn, however, on their way back to England, and they will visit the Exposition then. Although they have lived on a beautiful country estate, Morchard Bishop, in Devon, since the former Oliver Henry Wallop succeeded to the title in 1925, he and his wife always consider the ranch where they lived for many years as home, also, and they try to visit it annually.

The countess formerly was Marguerite Walker of Chicago, and some of her relatives living here now are Mrs. John Paul Welling, Charles M. Walker, Mrs. James A. Field, Mrs. Helen Walker Szukalska, and Samuel J. Walker, all nieces and nephews.

Tomorrow the president of A Century of Progress is going to celebrate his 66th birthday with the good wishes of all of his children and grandchildren and a great white cake with 66 flickering candles.

It was in 1867 that Rufus C. Dawes was born, the son of Gen. and Mrs. Rufus R. Dawes in Marietta, O. Completing his college training he came to Chicago to live.

Mrs. Dawes has planned a buffet luncheon in celebration of Mr. Dawes' birthday at noon in their Fullerton parkway apartment. The Robert Shermans [Mrs. Sherman was Jean Dawes] will be there with their children, and so will Beverly Jefferson with his bride, who was Margaret Dawes before their marriage last spring, Miss Helen Dawes, Palmer Dawes, and Charles Dawes and his wife and children.

Pony Show to Be Tomorrow

The time is 10:30 tomorrow morning. The place is Paul Lewellyn's farm, three miles west of Lake Forest. Boxes and parking spaces may be obtained at the gate. If it rains everything will be the same for the following Sunday morning.

These are the four essentials that Miss Libby Chase has asked us to underline this morning concerning her second annual Misery farm pony show. "I just want to be sure everybody comes in the morning, not in the afternoon," she cautioned.

Interest in the event has reached such a climax this week that there is sure to be a crowd of many hundreds of parents, friends . . . and farmers around the ring tomorrow morning. Last year there was a record attendance but the fact that the show is patterned after the Delhi horse show [East Indian] this time insures even a bigger turnout.

"Bubbles" Ryerson, Mrs. Donald Ryerson's young son, who is to be the ringmaster, was practising his acts all day yesterday in front of the mirror. The pig is all stuffed for the pig sticking act, and Mrs. William R. Odell Jr. has finished painting the "stable" for the Bengal lancers.

Mrs. Frederick Hauck, one of Miss Chase's two sisters, came down from Minneapolis especially to stuff the pig, but had to leave again the middle of this week to motor to New York with her husband. Mrs. Polly Chase Boyden, Miss Chase's other sister, however, is here from New York and will be one of the most interested spectators [if not one of the "hands"] tomorrow morning.

Society to Attend Arlington Closing.

Hardly will the Arlington Futurity have become a matter of history this afternoon when the huge key will be turned in the front doors of the Post and Paddock club and the last red, yellow, and purple table umbrella will be folded and packed away until another racing season. Today brings to a close the 1933 round of racing at the Arlington track.

Chicago society with fashionables from other cities as guests will crowd the club and terraces. Most of the parties are coming for a 12:30 luncheon.

The John Hertzes have invited a large group of guests. Other hosts and hostesses for the afternoon will be the Otto W. Lehmanns, the Charles McCullochs, the Warren Wrights, the Laurance Armours, and the Watson Armours, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Henry Rowley, and the Robert J. Thornes.

The big attraction at Fort Sheridan tomorrow afternoon will be the appearance of Maj. Harry D. Chamberlain as captain of the Fort's polo team. At 3:30 o'clock Maj. Chamberlain, who is one of the best horsemen in the country, is to line up with Capt. Clifford B. Cole, Lieut. G. S. Smith, and Lieut. Lawrence G. Smith in the third game of the season against Onwentsia. Playing for Onwentsia will be Charles F. Glore, Richard Simmons, Prentice Porter, and Herbert Lorber.

Four six footers . . . members of the polo team from Lexington, Ky., are up here to meet the Oak Brook four at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on one of Oak Brook's five fields. An hour and a half later there is to be a second game with an army team playing the Civilian All-Stars.

Riding Club Gymkhana to Be Barrington Event.

There's to be an event of social and sporting importance a week from tomorrow in Barrington when the Riding club of Barrington Hills holds its annual gymkhana at Revonah farm, the country place of Mr. and Mrs. Jevne Haugan.

Potato polo with two periods of eight minutes each is to be one of the events. Then there will be an egg and spoon race, a chair race (riding to Jerusalem), a polo bending race, and a trotting race, besides, of course, the three gaited and five gaited saddle classes.

The committee itself speaks for the social importance of the gymkhana, for it includes the Donald Batmans, the John Barneses, the Clifford Beymers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cameron, the junior C. H. Canbys, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Cardwell and their daughter, Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. W. Burton Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Richmond Kenyon, Mrs. Campbell Leffingwell, Dr. and Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson, the Russell Pettengills, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp, Col. and Mrs. Tryggve A. Siqueland, the Frank S. Whitings, and Miss Elizabeth Van Hagen.

Select Matador for Bull Fight Party.

George F. Douaire Jr. is to be the dashing and daring matador tonight in the bull fight that the Cushman Brewer Bissells and the J. Donald Scotts are giving as part of the entertainment at their Mexican fiesta party, but at the last minute plans were still a bit unsettled as to who would impersonate the bull, the horse, and the picadors. The party is being given at the Scotts' Lake Forest home for Mrs. Scott's and Mrs. Bissell's sister and brother-in-law, the John R. Ryans, who will be here another ten days before returning to Philadelphia.

For those who do not enjoy bullfights there will be a tango marathon and dancing to a rhumba orchestra. Since the guests have been asked to come in costume, they, with the music and the supper served outside, will combine to make a real Mexican atmosphere.

The Charles B. Goodspeeds will be saying au revoir to their friends next week, for they are sailing next Saturday for a six weeks' motor trip through France.

Fitches to Live In Milwaukee

When the J. Earling Fitches and their family, consisting of their two month old son, J. Earling Fitch Jr., and Brier Louise Anderton and Charles Anderton Jr., arrive in New York on Aug. 31 Mrs. Fitch and the children will go to Lake Placid to spend ten days with Mrs. Fitch's mother, Mrs. William Van Doren Wright, and Mr. Fitch will go to Milwaukee to hunt a house in which to install his family when they join him.

Mrs. Fitch is the former Jane Wright Anderton. Mr. and Mrs. Fitch have been living in Cannes since their marriage a year ago last April, but they plan to make Milwaukee their permanent home. Mr. Fitch is the son of Mrs. Frederick C. Thwaits of Milwaukee and Oconomowoc.

There was a happy addition to the Lloyd Alan Laflin household Thursday night when an eight pound daughter arrived at the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest. Both on the maternal and the paternal sides she has a proud heritage, for her mother is the former Beatrice Clow, daughter of the William E. Clows, and her father is the son of Mrs. Louis Ellsworth Laflin. Her aunt is Miss Francise Clow, one of the most attractive debutantes of the last season, and her uncle, Louis E. Laflin Jr., who only last summer married June Kennedy of Pittsburgh. The Lloyd Laflins have another little girl, Baby Lynn, who has just passed her second birthday.

Stores Offer Polka Dotted Silk Stockings

BY RHEA SEEGER.

During these days when scarcely any one shops seriously or, rather, when almost every one shops generally for things that amuse as well as brighten up a jaded summer wardrobe, new items are bought just as soon as they are unpacked. And spotted socks are new . . . they are just what they sound, polka-dotted silk stockings to wear with white and pastel tinted sports and spectator sports dresses.

At first they will shock your sense of sight, but the longer you look the smarter they become. The dots are small and well spaced against a sheer white background . . . you can find scarlet, yellow, pale green, black, brown, and blue for colors, and they are most exciting worn with plain white shoes and white frocks.

Along with all the good buys in simple and different sports dresses (this summer you can find more snappy, young models than ever before) there are plenty of snug, white and pastel colored berets that really fit. There are charming powder blues, dusty pinks, and pale watery pink tints, glowing yellow affairs, and all kinds of tricky white numbers—just the kind you need for all out-of-doors hours. Most of them are crocheted of string; they neither shrink nor stretch, and take to a tubbing of soap suds with all the nonchalance of a frequently washed rag.

Now is a good chance to stock a supply of white fabric gloves . . . you can get them these days for a song. It's almost quicker and cleaner to buy a pair than to struggle washing the numerous much abused gloves you bought earlier in the season.

Some charming fabric gloves made with light bands of sheer white dotted organdie as flaring cuffs are a complete knockout with summer ensembles . . . look for the gay orange with white dots, or blue, and pink or red and green . . . they are exhilaratingly cheerful and do grand things for dark cotton or linen street costumes.

Wears Linen Suit at Beach Party

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

This is the way pretty Mrs. Malcolm Henderson looked at the beach party the Sydney Heaps and the Jacob Bischofs gave for Miss Betty Dixon and her fiance, A. Parker Bryant. Or rather, this is the way she looked when the party started, but as the evening progressed and it became warmer she removed her little white hat and scarf and the coat to her smart linen suit, but she still looked charming. Mrs. Henderson was Miss Paula Wilms until her marriage to the young British vice consul last February.

One Out of 5 Children Hit by Depression

U. S. Bureau Finds Them 'Below Par.'

Washington, D. C., July 28.—[Special.]—One-fifth of the children in the country, and in some sections a larger proportion, are "below par" as a result of the industrial depression, according to a summary of child welfare news issued today by the children's bureau of the United States department of labor.

The statement is made on the basis of material accumulated for more than two years by Dr. Martha M. Eliot of the children's bureau and upon evidence gathered by Bailey B. Burritt of New York, representing the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. Both authorities agree not only that the depression has left its mark on the nation's children, but that it is having "a very real and increasingly severe effect on their health and nutrition."

"It is probably quite safe to estimate that today somewhere in the neighborhood of one-fifth of all preschool and school children in the United States are showing the effects of poor nutrition, of inadequate housing, of lack of medical care, and in many cases the effect of the anxiety and the sense of insecurity that prevails wherever there is no work," according to the summary.

"In some regions, without question, the proportion of below par children is far greater than this, reaching truly appalling figures; in others, where conditions have been more favorable or where the effects of unemployment have been more satisfactorily mitigated through relief measures, the proportion is possibly lower."

"So far in the present depression severe malnutrition among infants has been rather conspicuous by its absence," the bureau said, attributing the fact to the education of mothers, the success of relief agencies in supplying milk for infants, and the increased safety through pasteurization and boiling of the milk given babies.

There are, however, "indications that malnutrition among mothers is having its effect on new born babies and nurslings."

Figures are quoted from the health department of New York City, where more than 300,000 school children were examined annually during the six year period 1927-'32.

During the first three years the percentage of malnutrition was 13 per cent. In 1930 it jumped to 16, in 1931 to 17, and in 1932 to 21 per cent.

Hale Death Forces Retakes of Movie

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 28.—[Special.]—The motion picture rôle that Louise Closser Hale wished most of all to play was the rôle of Aunt March in "Little Women," and the Providence which governs such things saw that she spent four interesting days enacting the part last week and this week, before her sudden death.

The film which Mrs. Hale appeared in must, of course, now be reshot. Edna May Oliver is taking the part at Radio studio. Director George Cukor said that everybody in the cast was glad that the fine, white haired actress had the satisfaction of playing Aunt March before she died. It was a rôle which Mrs. Hale herself had asked to be cast in.

Walter Huston has been cast for the old army sergeant in "Rodney," tale of an artillery horse, whose medal for valor in a forgotten battle, was awarded him 20 years later. Radio RKO has not yet found a horse which combines the needed qualities of film appeal, personal aspect of mature wisdom, and camera adaptability.

Lona Andre's first job under her new Paramount long term contract is to go to New York and play the stage lead in the new Schwab and Mandel show "Take a Chance," which will be filmed in its stage form. Buddy Rogers also is to be featured. Miss Andre and her mother, Mrs. Freda Anderson of Nashville, will stop off in Chicago Sunday on their way from Hollywood for the slim little brunette's big chance on Broadway.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, July 28.—Mrs. Charles Whitney Dall and her children, C. W. Dall Jr., Stewart Dall and Miss Priscilla M. Dall of Cedarhurst, L. I., are spending several weeks at Bisby lake in the Adirondacks.

Mrs. Henry Heller of 40 5th avenue is sailing tomorrow morning on the Vulcania on a cruise of several weeks.

Margaret McKinley, Great-Niece of President, Weds

Washington, D. C., July 28.—[Special.] — Miss Margaret McKinley, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James Fuller McKinley, was married today to Lieut. John Cogswell Oakes Jr., U. S. A., son of Col. and Mrs. John Calvin Oakes of Charleston, S. C. The bride is a great niece of President William McKinley. Her father is adjutant general of the army. The ceremony was performed in Bethlehem chapel of the Washington cathedral by Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Yes, sir, and yes, MA'AM! You're gwine to go for this one!

Nothing very startling about it—but, after all, are the things or folks who startle, those to afford us the greatest comfort or enjoyment? The answer is "No!"—and so, I give you "Mama Loves Papa"! It's one of the funniest, most human little domestic comedy dramas that's visited our screens in many a day. Refreshing, too, in its cleanliness.

When you meet Mama [Mary Boland] and Papa [Charles Ruggles] they've been happily married for twenty years. Papa's an office worker with a passion for puns—"Sanctuary much," etc.—and Mama's a comfortable, competent, bromidic hausfrau who never has the slightest idea what he's talking about. Despite this lack of mental coöperation, Mama and Papa get along like a tired foot and an old shoe.

Then, a certain lecturer, Mr. Pew—Papa would have spelled it differently—speaks words that put ideas in Mama's head. She decides to "shine" on Papa and cause his latent seed of ambition to burst into flower. Well, you have simply no conception of what this does to Papa! See him, then, as the tool of a racketeer with a man-eating wife [Lilyan Tashman], who—but I MUST not tell you more and spoil your fun!

However, you know Charles Ruggles and Mary Boland! Here are comedy experts who never let you down! They are perfectly delightful as the Todds and have the assistance of a hand-picked cast who do plenty pleasing playing.

Direction rings the bell. Dialogue hits the bull's-eye. Photography—O, hang up, Mae Tinée! If you're trying to say "Mama Loves Papa" is a good picture, you've SAID it!

On the stage Texas Guinan et gang as of yore. Not the best of company for a nice little movie.

'Quaker Girl' Bonnet and Coat Shown at Paris Fashion Show

PARIS, July 28.—(AP)—A "Quaker girl" style made its debut today in the 1933-1934 winter fashion shows.

Peggy Morris, an English designer, showed a black angora wool coat fashioned with a high round collar buttoning under the chin and dropping to a corded shoulder line.

It was accompanied by a little black velvet bonnet worn well back from the forehead and fastened on by a chin strap.

Other coats were of dark wools, without fur trimmings, and followed the same demure line, buttoning close around the throat.

The display also featured wool ensembles combining two colors, such as bottle green in a wool jacket and skirt with a mustard yellow wool blouse.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

The numerous young ladies and gentlemen whose names won't be printed in tomorrow's TRIBUNE as my guests for our Buddy Rogers party at the Hotel Sherman next week probably won't feel so disappointed when they see what our next affair is going to be.

The year just wouldn't be complete without a —— Ooh! I almost let the cat out of the bag! But I'm not going to tell you until tomorrow.

Now all you fortunate youngsters whose names WILL be listed tomorrow should have your invitations by Tuesday at the very latest. If they don't arrive by that day, or you don't understand the arrangements, please telephone me at my office, because it's going to be an awfully nice party, and I don't want any of my guests to miss it!

The boy smiled and answered:

"Yes, madam, it's up about five miles."

"O, is that so?" the woman commented. "I did not know the Fair was that long. I thought it was just over here in the Hall of Science."

IT was at the Floating theater at the Negro concert that delighted Fair visitors the other evening. There were a great many musicians on the stage, and the conductor was resplendent in immaculate white ducks, his face shining above a row of brilliant medals on his chest. "Daddy, is he the king?" she asked.

THE above sly reference to the general unsightliness of passport photographs brings to mind the clipping that, with singular humor for government office, is pasted on the door of the passport bureau on North Wells street. "If the officials don't recognize me for this picture, I can't land. And if they are able to, I'll jump overboard."

'Aida' to Mark Italian Day at World's Fair

Give Opera in Concert Form Next Thursday.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"Aïda" in concert form will be sung in the court of the Hall of States, A Century of Progress, next Thursday, as a feature of Italian day. Judge Francis Borrelli is chairman of the Italian day committee; John Pane Gasser will have a dual function as general manager and singer of the rôle of Radames in the performance; Gennaro Papi, whose brilliant baton has not been raised hereabouts since Ravinia ceased to function, will conduct.

There will be a company of about 150 members. The name of the artist to sing the name part has not yet been made public, but Ada Paggi will appear as Amneris, Mario Fiorella as Amonasro, Giuseppe Montovani as Ramfis, and Mark Love as the king. There will be an orchestra of 100 and an extra band of 25 for the triumph scene. With the exception of some minor cuts, the opera will be sung in a fair degree of completeness. Popular prices will be charged: 50 cents for reserved seats; 25 cents for general admission.

Clarence Eddy, dean of American organists, will emerge from retirement to play part of a recital next Friday afternoon before the National Association of Organists at St. James' Episcopal church. His associates on the program will be Porter Heaps of Chicago and Powell Weaver of Kansas City.

This will be the final day of the association's twenty-sixth convention, which will open Monday evening. A liberal amount of organ music will be presented during the week. In addition to business meetings and papers on the two crafts of building and playing organs, there will be recitals at Kimball hall, First Congregational church of Oak Park, University of Chicago chapel, Hall of Religion of A Century of Progress, Thorne hall on the McKinlock campus of Northwestern university, St. Andrew's Catholic church, St. Luke's procathedral of Evanston, and St. James' Episcopal church. Kimball hall is the place of registration and business meetings.

Among the organists to appear will be representatives of the Chicago Club of Women Organists, and the Van Dusen Organ club, Edwin Stanley Seder, Wilhelm Middelschulte, Leslie P. Spelman, Virgil Fox, Julian R. Williams, Thomas Webber Jr., Charles M. Courboin, Rollo Maitland, and the three already named. Additional musical appearances will be made by Else Harthan Arendt, soprano, and the Chicago Bach chorus.

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Swell Garrick—the World's Perfect Tailor's Dummy—is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training, rather than tailoring skill. Maitland, a crooked gambler, is the purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Fairclough. He and Schewan, his chief, plot to trick Rhoda out of a fortune. Maitland has Rhoda adjudged insane. She has been administered a drug which will produce temporary madness. Having no proof of guilt, Garrick determines to settle the matter in his own way. His solicitor tells him that if Rhoda can gain and maintain her liberty for twenty-eight days she will be considered legally sane. Garrick undertakes a bold rescue. He escapes to London with Rhoda. Garrick hires Alf, a farmhand out of work, as a helper and buys his silence. One of the gang is shot during an encounter in Garrick's home and the police suspect Garrick. Garrick buys a controlling interest in "Jelke World Famous Fair." They travel about for a week when the gang overtakes them. They escape, but Garrick is separated from Rhoda and Alf. Garrick disguises as the chauffeur of his friend, young Alistair. He calls at the gangs' headquarters in search of incriminating evidence. The gang walk in on him and they have with them Alf, from whom they intend to learn Rhoda's whereabouts. Garrick saves Alf. They go to a shack in a lonely meadow where Alf had left Rhoda. Instead of Rhoda Garrick finds an old hag occupying the shack. He stands guard in a hollow in the rear. A man calls for the old woman in a car. Garrick conceals himself in the back seat. He learns that the woman he thought a hag was in disguise and that they have Rhoda in custody. When they arrive at their destination Garrick watches them enter the house, then pays them a surprise visit. The woman, Mrs. Tarranio, and the man, Gus Escale, are believed by Rhoda to be friends of her uncle.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

FOUL PLAY AFOOT.

Into one of the bottles Mrs. Tarranio poured the contents of a paper packet. Then she tore all the gold foil from the neck of the bottle to identify it.

"Fill his glass from this one," she ordered Gus. "It will get to work in about ten minutes—and he'll be like a baby for about three hours. Then you and Voller can get him away in the car—dump him down somewhere and ring the police. Now come back with me and I'll make the girl go to bed."

Rhoda required no further persuasion to retire and a couple of minutes later Garrick had accepted Esdale's offer of a "bit of supper."

"Phew! I feel a bit done!" exclaimed Esdale. "Let's have a drink first."

Garrick did not stand by his elbow as he poured out the drinks—and Esdale's movements with the bottle were concealed by his shoulders.

"Well, Garrick—here's thundering good luck to you both!"

"Very good of you, Esdale!" The wine looked good and smelt good—it sparkled its invitation to a tired man, giving no hint of the powerful drug.

Garrick let the champagne touch his lips as if he were sipping it—but he swallowed nothing.

It was no fine instinct that warned him that foul play was afoot. It was nothing more mysterious than plain observation.

As Garrick had been about to drink, Esdale had looked at him. And

"Very good of you, Esdale!" The wine looked good and smelled good.

Garrick knew that look of old. It was the quick, calculating glance of a boxer who wonders whether his blow has taken effect.

"So there's a punch hidden in this drink, is there!" thought Garrick. It was a situation requiring a certain amount of tact. He did not want to quarrel with Esdale—he did not even want to force him to show his hand. On the other hand, he had no intention of meekly consenting to be doped.

The classical thing to do in these circumstances was to attract the other fellow's attention and substitute the glasses. But a man who is giving another man doped wine is likely to be on guard against that kind of thing. There was, too, a trick that could be done with a champagne glass and the milled edge of a coin—provided the glass itself were of first quality.

"I'm afraid I'm a bit of a savage," laughed Garrick. "I like a smoke even when I'm drinking wine. Do you mind?"

As Esdale gave hurried assurances Garrick took out a cigaret and pretended to fumble for matches. Really he was groping for a sixpence.

"Here, I've got a match!" Esdale lit a match and held it for him. While he was doing this Garrick ground the edge of the coin against the under side of the bowl of the champagne glass.

A moment later he knew that the glass was indeed of the first quality—for it had not splintered. There was a clean cut in it of about an eighth of an inch through which the champagne was trickling.

Garrick put his finger over the cut. He held up the glass and let some of it trickle down his wrist. Then he pretended to drink, and let more trickle away.

"You know, the surface of the Great West road is positively disgraceful!" he remarked. The glass was more than half empty now and Esdale refilled it. Under cover of a protest, Garrick kept hold of the glass.

The second glassful was easier to manage than the first.

"No more for me, thanks!" he protested. "As a matter of fact it has gone to my head already."

Esdale, beyond doubt, looked pleased.

The table was spread with a cold supper. Garrick moved to a chair and stood holding it uncertainly.

"It has gone to my head," he said shakily. "I say, Esdale, old man, you—won't think me an ungracious pig if I—well, really, I don't feel as if I could eat anything! The fact is, I've had rather a strenuous time lately."

"If I sit down in that chair you'll want a jug of cold water to get me out of it."

"By Jove, you're pretty well dead beat!" exclaimed Esdale. "I know how you feel—I've been like that myself. Come along, I'll take you to your room!"

The room was on the first floor, next to the drawing room. Esdale bade him good night and went—but Garrick knew that he was listening outside the door.

Garrick would have turned the key—but there was no key in the door.

"Never been—so tired—in all m'life," said Garrick for the benefit of Esdale listening outside the door.

There was a switch over the bed. Garrick jumped noisily on to the bed without removing any of his clothes and switched off.

"Now we'll see what the little game is!" he told himself. He had never been more wide awake in his life.

Ten minutes passed. Then, although he could see nothing he knew that the door had been opened.

"Garrick!" It was Esdale's voice, above a whisper. Garrick took no notice. The name was repeated loudly. Then Esdale switched on the light. This was dangerous. Garrick groaned and turned, so that the light should not play directly on his eyes.

"Garrick!" Esdale came over to the bed and shook him by the shoulder. Garrick groaned but remained, to all outward appearances, in a deep sleep.

"It's all right, Voller! Come in! . . . Catch hold!"

Garrick felt himself lifted laboriously from the bed. Esdale, evidently, was not in very good training, for his breath came in painful jerks.

Garrick had the utmost difficulty in restraining his laughter. It was highly amusing to be carried downstairs at this tremendous cost.

They had another rest at the bottom of the stairs while Esdale panted. Fully three minutes had passed before he regained his breath.

The next stage of the journey was through the hall and into the yard at the back. The luxury saloon had been brought as near the house as possible and into the interior of this Garrick was finally carried.

Just as Esdale was about to start the engine Garrick heard Mrs. Tarranio's voice. She had evidently thrust her head through the front window for, though she was speaking little above a whisper, Garrick could hear her.

"I've just rung Benny. He's not at home tonight—so there'll be no one in the bungalow. You'd better put him in the garage."

The big saloon was backed on to the road. There was a fast run for about ten minutes and then Garrick again submitted to being lifted out of the car and being dumped, presumably, in "Benny's" garage.

"Hadn't we better cover him over with a rug, Mr. Esdale? He might get a chill—sleeping on a stone floor like that."

"Quite unnecessary!" grunted Esdale. "He won't be here more than half an hour I should think, at the outside."

Garrick waited until the saloon had purred itself away, then sat up.

He could guess what their intentions were but he wished to make quite sure. In a few minutes he went out to reconnoiter. From the position of the lights of London he gathered he was probably on the outskirts of Brentford.

He walked along a side road, vaguely in the direction of London, until he found a convenient hedge. Some fifteen minutes later the police car came along—and Garrick knew.

"They want to befriend Rhoda—so that she can step into her inheritance. And they want to get rid of me. Pretty obvious! Well—they'll get the surprise of their lives tomorrow."

GASOLINE ALLEY—AND THAT'S GRATITUDE

YES, SIR, CLARENCE PUSHED ME IN AN' THERE IT WAS.
THEN CLARENCE MUSCLED IN' AN' TOOK IT AWAY FROM SKEEZIX.
I JUST BORROWED IT.
THE BIRD THAT STOLE THE WATCH THREW IT INTO THE BUSHES SO AS NOT TO BE CAUGHT WITH IT ON HIM. WE MIGHT AS WELL TURN THE KIDS LOOSE.
THE LITTLE BEGGARS STICK TO THEIR STORY ALL RIGHT.
YES, BUT HOW ABOUT THE REWARD, MR. WOOD?

BY MARY MEADE.

Time again for our Saturday morning question clinic—and again we have more questions than can possibly fit in this one short column. Requests that are not printed on Saturday's are answered by mail.

Miss A. J. of Chicago is making a special plea for a recipe for whipped cream cake—the kind of cake that is being served so much at afternoon teas and club functions. So here it is for all of you:

WHIPPED CREAM CAKE.

2 cups whipped cream [1 cup unwhipped].
2 eggs, beaten.
1 cup sugar.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
¾ teaspoon vanilla.
1½ cups pastry flour.
Pinch of salt.

Whip the cream with a rotary egg beater until stiff. Add the eggs to the whipped cream and continue beating until light and foamy. Add the sugar, beating continuously, then the vanilla and salt. Sift the flour before measuring, then resift three times with the baking powder. Combine the dry and liquid ingredients. Bake in three medium layer pans in a moderate oven [375 degrees F.] for 30 minutes. Put together with custard or fruit filling.

Mrs. K. A. P. has two questions. First, can iodized salt be used in pickling? My sisters says it will make the pickles soft. The answer is that the iodine in iodized salt has no effect whatever on pickles and this salt may be used in place of ordinary salt without danger of softening. If your pickles become soft, perhaps it is the fault of the recipe.

Second, "Which is the correct way to prepare a whole ham? My husband says not to parboil the ham, but just put it in the oven with sort of a dough on it and let it bake until tender. I always thought a ham would have to be parboiled for two or three hours and then finish baking in the oven until done."

The truth is that a ham may be baked either way, though the parboiling method is perhaps the one most used. You no doubt have a recipe for the parboiling procedure. For one way of baking a ham without first parboiling it, follow these directions:

BAKED HAM.

Sprinkle the fleshy side of a ten pound ham with cinnamon and ginger and one-half teaspoon ground cloves and one teaspoon mustard. Cover the ham with a thick paste of flour and water. Put in a pan and fill from one-half to two-thirds full with cider. Cook slowly for three hours, basting frequently. Remove paste and rind. Bake fat side up for another hour, basting. Brush the fat surface with beaten egg and sprinkle with the following mixture: One-half cup brown sugar, one-half cup fine bread crumbs, and a little chopped parsley. Let brown thoroughly. Grapejuice may be substituted for the cider.

MARY MEADE PRESENTS:

Pastry

RASPBERRY TURNOVERS
(Puffy Pastry Pillows)

Roll out plain pastry as thin as possible and cut into oblongs three by two and one-half inches. In the center of each pastry square place one teaspoon of raspberry jam. Fold the pastry square in half, moisten the edges and press together firmly with the prongs of a fork. Chill. When ready to bake place the pastries in a hot oven (450° F.) for the first 15 minutes. Then reduce the oven temperature to slow (300° F.) until delicately browned.

Clip on the dotted line, mount on a card; mounted, the recipe just fits the new Mary Meade Recipe File . . . If you haven't one of these files, you may obtain one (containing 133 delightful recipes) at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn Street. Price, 25 cents. By mail, 33 cents.

Tour for Clubwomen.

A special tour for out of town club women visiting A Century of Progress has been arranged for Tuesday by the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations. Under the direction of Mrs. Edward Timmons, chairman of the federation's tours, the group will be taken through the Chicago underground tunnel system. Mrs. Henry W. Hardy is president.

Hooks, Shelves Should Be in Child's Reach

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Don't you groan every time you think of having to reach up to those high cupboards in your kitchen? Don't you wonder why under the sun anybody ever built a house with such inconvenient conveniences as those?

And those top shelves in both your closets where you have to keep your hats because everything else is so crowded—don't they exasperate you every time you have to stand on tiptoe to get at them, especially if you forget to do it until after you're dressed so you disarrange your costume to start a shoulder arm seam?

Think hard on this and then picture the very small child's plight in a house in which there is no provision made for a near-baby or a 3, 4, or 5 year old—I mean, as far as the height and weight of things is concerned.

You want your child to be orderly, but has he a row of low hooks on which to hang his clothes? You want him to put some of his possessions in drawers. Has he any drawers available that are low enough for him to see into and which pull out and push in easily?

How about his big, heavy toys? Has he a nice big box with a lid that they can go into, or shelves close to the floor where these or his smaller toys and his books can be comfortably stowed away?

Even when they are still a little too young to put away their own things it is a good plan to have places that are well within the children's reach and which they can recognize as their own. Later they will fall into the way of putting them there themselves.

In any case, we can't expect them to put things in their places if the place isn't there or if it is unreachable.

We have a booklet called "Helping Your Child to Be Orderly" which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Many Factors Make the Hair Healthy, Fine

Excessive Smoking Can Spoil the Luster.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If your hair is ailing perceptibly, has lost its good old vitality, don't blame the hair brush nor the tonic you're using.

It may be some internal disorder. It may be some drug you're getting into your system that's affecting your hair. It may be you're smoking too much. It may be you've dieted all the oil out of your system.

Anyway, Dr. M. M. Estrin, Brooklyn dermatologist, warns in a current hair dressing periodical that a number of things including those mentioned contribute to sick and falling hair.

Even dental decay, failure to replace teeth, is on the list. These are factors that reduce the vitality of the hair and scalp. Reasonable enough reckoning, too, since poor teeeth cause poor digestion, and poor digestion reduces the nourishment supplied by the blood stream to the scalp.

Uncleanliness, of course, is a contributing factor to hair sickness. Too strong soaps of the kind used to remove grease and soot irritate the scalp. Too frequent wetting of the hair and scalp is bad. Also tight hat bands that shut off ventilation, circulation, and nutrition of the scalp. Improper diet, either of quality or quantity, is on the list of hair beauty destroyers. Certain irritating chemicals included in hair tonics of questionable character are accused, and hair dyes made with silver nitrate or other harmful chemicals cause damage.

Age has an effect on the hair, Dr. Estrin reminds us. At the age of puberty the trouble is excess oil; later, a lack of oil affects the hair. Certain drugs and medicines affect the hair, not always disadvantageously. Iodine taken internally makes hair coarser and of different shades of brown, sometimes. Arsenic may lead to a fine head of hair [if not to the grave, we suggest warningly]. As a tonic and in small doses the doctor means.

Sulphur will leave deposits on the hair shaft, and bromides will cause hair to lose luster, sometimes. Drug fiends get a dry, lusterless head of hair in time.

All of these influences on the hair explain in a measure why nine permanents out of ten may be successful, the tenth not.

Children Give Benefits for Free Ice Fund

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The nimble feet of eleven little girls last night earned THE TRIBUNE free ice fund $11, a dollar for each dancer. It was Children's day at A Century of Progress and on the children's program last night at the Casino de Alex was scheduled the Morgan dancers. Not allowed to be paid for their work, they decided that if the management wanted to give them a dollar each they would send it to THE TRIBUNE free ice fund.

The youngsters, ages 11 to 13, went through a delightful program of tap, toe, and acrobatic dancing in colorful costumes, carrying out the theme of each dance. They are to appear again at the Chicagoland Music festival on Aug. 19. Those dancing were Mary Bien, Mary Gross, Elaine Smith, Rosemary Peterson, Florence Valiquet, Charles Peterson, Shirley Judge, Marilyn Goehler, Dorothy Wixom, Dorothy Wilkinson, and Virginia Donaldson. All live on the south side.

Another benefit, a musical, is to be given this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for the ice fund by two little girls on the north side. They are Alice Ruth Sackheim, 7 years old, who plays the piano, and Aniver Sari Sackheim, 11 years old, violinist, of 7389 North Damen avenue. The pair have been practicing for months. The children of the neighborhood are invited to come and bring 5 cents admission. Grownups will be charged 10 cents.

The circus benefit managed by a group of neighborhood children at the home of Phyllis Scatz, at 5114 Ingleside avenue on Thursday netted the fund $5.25. The children, in sending their money yesterday, hoped it would be of some service to the city's needy families.

In the contributions yesterday was a check for $15 earned by seven girls who go to Michigan City every summer. This summer they decided they would help those less fortunate, so they had a beach party. The girls, members of the Qualam club, are Leah Pereira, Jean Arnold, Bernice Heller, Carol Winterburg, Joanne Kuper, Bertha Hirsch, and Rita Picker.

In all the ice fund received $30.25 yesterday. With the two gifts just mentioned this included $10 for Mrs. Levy Mayer as a gift in memory of the birthday of Abraham Meyer. The day's gifts pushed the fund over the $1,200 mark, making the grand total $1,204.88. Gifts to this fund should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

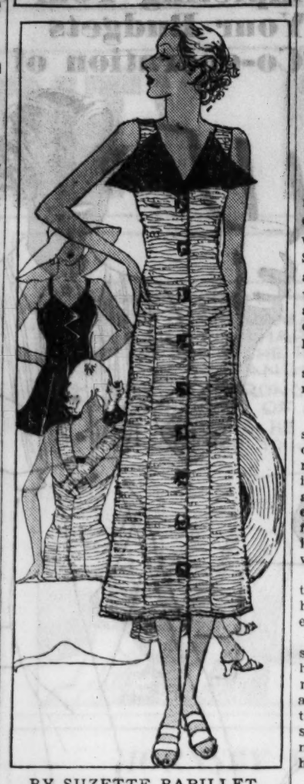
French Beach Outfit Includes Backless Coat



BY SUZETTE BARILLET.

PARIS.—[Special.]—One of the greatest paradoxes ever perpetrated, even by that whimsical lady called La Mode, is the backless coat. Apparently, that is, for when applied to beach togs the paradox turns out to be amazingly practical. It permits one to be completely and decently tailored while continuing the healthful and decorative process of absorbing the right rays in the right place.

A backless coat constitutes the outside chic of the beach ensemble, sketched today, from Vera Borea, who is, by the way, the inventor of the genre. It's in one of those heavy, woolly looking, hand woven Moroccan cottons in the creamy tone that is as near white as these exotics generally get, and which is much smarter than purer white at the moment. It's buttoned straight up the front with big square green turquoise porcelain buttons to match the green turquoise linen lapels that give it the new pointed broad chested look. It's semi-fitted, but the set-in side panels give it flare enough for comfort. The back, as you see by the seated figure, resembles a princess frock. The shoulders become crossed straps holding up the oval décolleté cut away from under the arms.

The companion bathing suit seems, at first glance, as charmingly unreasonable as the coat itself. It's in green turquoise linen, cut into abbreviated princess panties, flared at the sides [only more so] by inset panels like the coat. You can see it on the standing figure in the background. Its back décolletagé is precicely like that of the coat, except that it's lewer and the crossed straps narrower. Like the coat, it is really eminently practical—stands the water without shrinking and is, of course, perfect for sunbathing.

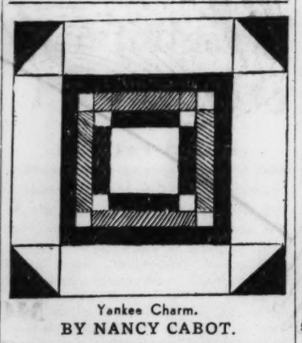
Granada, North Side Movie House, Will Open Today

The Granada theater, a $3,000,000 moving picture house owned by Balaban & Katz, will reopen this afternoon. The theater is at Sheridan road and Devon avenue. It was closed last February as an economy measure. North side business men yesterday said that they expected an increase in business as a result of the opening.

"Yankee Charm" Calls for Use of Bright Colors



Yankee Charm.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Wonder whether some rather arrogant northerners gave this quilt pattern its name back in revolutionary days? At any rate, it is a charming design and makes a strikingly effective quilt if pieced with bright but harmonious colors.

For a quilted pattern of this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn.

Harsh Words Never Right Past Wrongs

Meanness Won't Prick an Ex-Lover's Conscience.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She was engaged to an out of town man for three years. For no apparent reasons he stopped writing. She wrote begging an explanation. Silence. She wrote again and again. No answer. He wasn't dead, as her investigations proved. He was not only alive, but well and prospering and obviously happy in another girl's company.

Now, the girl is going to marry some one else shortly. A far finer man, she tells.

"What I now want to do is this," she writes. "I have many of the other man's letters. I would like to return them with a nasty note telling him exactly what I think of him and how fortunate I feel I am in escaping him. I feel I would be justified in doing this as he was meanness itself in ending our love affair the way he did.—MARION."

You might be justifying yourself to yourself, "Marion," but you'd hardly be dignifying yourself in his eyes, or later on, in your own.

It's doubtful, indeed, if your accusations in the intended letter would have the effect you imagine. If the man is through and interested in another girl he would read the letter, throw it in the waste basket—and say: "Good riddance. She was a mean one, anyway!" Like yourself, he'd be rejoicing in an escape!

But why all this rancor when the gods have been good enough to send you a better man? Are you still in love with the first one? Or are you incapable of recovering from a wounded vanity? Better get this straightened out in your mind before you rush into a marriage just for spite, if that's what you're doing.

If you're going to marry this second man, why not put all rancor behind? Why not keep all evidence of feeling deeply buried, instead of advertising it on paper? Or, if you must write the letter, write it but don't mail it.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CLASS DAY.

"After covering the Ryan brothers' house for two days, where they lived alone, our efforts were partially rewarded when Timothy walked boldly in. We knew that the house was empty during the time of our surveillance." Prof. Fordney was talking to his class in criminology.

"A few minutes later," he continued, "I knocked and was greeted by Ryan with 'What do you want?'

"I pushed my way in and asked, 'Where's your brother, John?'

"'Find out,' he replied surlily as he turned to put on his coat. As he did so I noticed a hundred dollar bill sticking from his trouser pocket. Knowing both boys had been broke for some time, I asked him where he got it.

"'Ain't you the inquisitive guy, though?' he sneered. 'Well, if you must know, there's where.' With that he handed me an unsigned letter mailed and registered in Akron, O., the day before, the writer stating he was enclosing $500 cash which he wanted either one of the brothers to bet on a horse running at Pimlico.

"When did you get this?" I demanded.

"'Listen,' he snarled. 'You dicks have been trailing me for days. I saw you standing across the street when I came in and if you're as sharp as you think you are you saw me take it from the mail box.'

"What about your brother?" I again demanded.

"'Find out, fellow,' was his retort. 'You ain't got nothin' on me, so scram. I'm on my way to the track and——"

What was wrong with Fordney's story?

New Aldington Novel Is Truth of Experience

Intense Personal Feeling Marks Work.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"All Men Are Enemies," by Richard Aldington. [Doubleday-Doran.]

THERE is reality and reality in fiction—the reality of keen, skilled, vivid, intelligent observation and the reality of intense personal experience—and between them there is an abyss as great as that between the truth of life and the truth of death. There is something of the truth of death about the reality of intense personal experience, noble, dignified, inevitable, and something that gives one a little premonitory shiver of terror to face.

RICHARD ALDINGTON.

Such reality is that of "All Men Are Enemies." Like "Death of a Hero," much of this latest book of Richard Aldington's has come drop by drop out of his bloodstream. Any reader, however insensitive, must feel that it could have been written only by a man who had himself been crushed carelessly by the clumsy hand of fate, an unconscious fate, more than anything else like the child who saw the heiden-röslein so lovely on the heath and must pluck it; the fate which, during the war years, plucked the young men so eager for life, so passionate to live it with a beautiful gusto like the hero of "All Men Are Enemies."

Few books are written as Richard Aldington has written this one and "Death of a Hero." Few books have such a militant honesty, such a belligerent passion to record the useless deflowering of mankind. "All Men Are Enemies" is not a war book in the sense that there is any actual war chronicling in it, and yet the hero is a casualty of the war as thorough, as sad as the "Hero" of the former book. It is, in its loose framework, the story of the love of enemies—an Englishman and an Austrian woman, and the success with which the war cut them off to their roots—a simile which Antony uses in trying to explain to an old friend of his why he is unable to "find" himself after the armistice. "I feel like a tree that has been blasted level with the ground, with only the roots still living. Some even of the roots are dead, some I have to kill, the rest have to grow again somehow."

His one hope of coming again to his sturdy place in the forest of life lay in finding the girl whom he loved, the only anchorage which felt sap flowing through it. Instead circumstances intervened . . . he wandered brokenly trying to find her . . . failed . . . married, because she desired it, a girl whom he had known as a boy, adored as a youth, and clung to as a farewell to life one leaves before he went back to what he felt was certain death . . . but it was never a whole marriage . . . his love for Katha had been that . . . the years were not powerful enough to give him back the life which he had lost . . . he escaped from everything, himself, most of all . . . and finally . . .

But the plot of the book is mere chaff compared to the rich, fruity reality which fills the book. Such books are vivid, at times almost past bearing, vivid with the passion of an author's eagerness to tell what to him is a great truth. It matters so little what the author is writing about. What matters is that he should have made for himself the final, inevitable decision that so far as lies in his power and so help him God he will write what he believes to be the truth.

Unlike "The Colonel's Daughter," there is no satire in "All Men Are Enemies." The author is too passionately in earnest for satire. He is writing about man's need of the perfect love and the impossibility for some men of compromise with a lesser. And the result is a book of tremendous finality.

If you are an Aldington collector you must own this American edition as it contains two passages omitted from the English edition which give it a first edition value.

London Filled with Guesses on Pen Names

Book Reveals Wedding of Countess Barcynska.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—London has been full of odd literary gossip of a personal nature, beginning with news of the marriage of Caradoc Evans to the Countess Barcynska, a novelist who has written many books under the name of Oliver Sandys. This interesting fact has become known through the dedication of a new book by the countess to her husband.

DOROTHY L. SAYERS.

But in addition there is much speculation as to the identity of a new novelist, Miss Elizabeth Cambridge, whose book, "Hostages to Fortune," has enjoyed much réclame. One reviewer goes so far as to guess that "Elizabeth Cambridge" is Miss Rose Macaulay; but there is as yet no certainty, and it seems probable that all guesses are astray.

More convincing is the news that John Palmer, who was at one time dramatic critic of the Saturday Review in succession to Max Beerbohm, and who is known as a novelist and the author of a book on Molière, as well as the editor of The League of Nations Journal of the World Economic Conference, is in other moods part author of the tales of "Francis Beeding."

And another attribution, also of the authorship of sensational mystery stories, is concerned with the work of Miles Porlock, who wrote "Mystery at Friar's Pardon" and "X. v. Rez." The former told the tale of the murder of a woman novelist; the latter was one of the most admired mysteries of the spring. Miles Porlock is said to be Philip Macdonald, who is himself a prolific and highly talented writer of mystery stories. If this be true, the maintenance of so high a standard by both Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Porlock, who between them produce many excellent books, is extraordinary. Both certainly are exceptionally good writers.

Another interesting item of information is that Miss Dorothy Sayers, whose earliest work was in verse, and who was in 1918 the author of a volume called "Catholic Tales and Christian Songs," is in future to criticize mystery novels for the Sunday Times. As she is the author of the best writing known to me on the art of the detective story [in the long preface to the omnibus book of "Great Short Stories of Detection, Mystery, and Horror"], Miss Sayers ought to give to such criticism a new note of authenticity and humor. In the matter of brains, she leaves most—I might almost say all—other writers of detective mystery stories standing.

The book trade in London has been decidedly poor, but Miss Helen Waddell's "Peter Abelard," a novel dealing with the earlier life of the famous scholar lover, is greatly admired and very popular, while a new novel by Mrs. Muir [Willa Muir], which I am told is very good, indeed, is approaching publication. I have already mentioned the interesting success of "Hostages to Fortune," by Elizabeth Cambridge.

Biographer Asks Letters from John Galsworthy

H. V. Marrot, who has been intrusted with writing the official biography of John Galsworthy, would be glad to receive communications from any one who has personal anecdotes or reminiscences of this author. His address is 59, Parkside, Wimbledon, S. W. 19, England. Original letters from John Galsworthy would be gratefully received by Maxwell E. Perkins of Scribners, 579 Fifth avenue, New York. The letters will be copied for Mr. Marrot and returned so as not to involve the problem of sending them across the Atlantic.

Meetings and Lectures

On Tuesday at 6:45 p. m. in Fullerton hall, Art institute, Robert Morss Lovett will discuss "Virginia Woolf." This is the second lecture in his series of five dealing with contemporary novelists.

On Thursday at the same time and place Bertram G. Nelson will give a reading from "Justice" by John Galsworthy which will be the second lecture in his series of dramatic readings from recent literature.

Two Authors Entertained at Fair Luncheon

Anna Elgestroom on First Visit in City.

ANNA LENAH ELGSTROOM, foremost critic of Stockholm, Sweden, and Eleanor Mercein Kelly, author of that delightful ethnological fiction which became known to a large public with "Basque People," were the guests at the luncheon given yesterday in the Trustees' Lounge at A Century of Progress by the writers' group of the social functions committee of the Fair.

Mme. Elgstroom delighted her audience by declaring in her charmingly faltering English that we must all know the story of the chameleon on the Scotch plaid, but that it aptly expressed the feeling of a foreign writer on first meeting America. Only America and Americans were clever, and no matter how often foreigners came, they were always adding so many new checks and plaids that it was with continuously changing sensations that foreign visitors traveled in our land.

In closing a gay informal talk she became serious with the suggestion that what is the matter with the world is that the leaders of men are all "on a picnic, playing holiday, on the brink of Vesuvius and Etna," that they have a false sense of security while destruction is imminent.

Mrs. Kelly found in A Century of Progress Exposition, she said, the essence of the spirit of the day, the spirit of speed as opposed to the spirit of rush. "Speed," she said, "is calmer, more serene, purposeful. The Fair emphasises that quality of modern American life." Mrs. Kelly, although an American, spends at least half of each year in Europe, and she has seen every national and international fair since the Columbian exposition of 1893, she said, although "Who's Who" says she was only twelve years old in 1893. She came down from Milwaukee especially to be the guest of the writers' group and returned there, via an official visit to the university at Madison, yesterday afternoon. She was born in Milwaukee, but lives [during her usual six months of residence in the U. S. A.] in Louisville, Ky.

Among the members of the writers' group who were present to greet Mrs. Kelly and Mme. Elgstroom were Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, chairman; Miss Jane Addams, Lloyd Lewis, Margaret Ayer Barnes, Mary Synon, Mary Hastings Bradley, Mignon G. Eberhart, and Bernadotte Schmitt.

OXFORD TREND IN ENGLISH CHURCH STIRS REBELLION

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—Observance of the Oxford movement's centenary in Great Britain has raised a wave of Low Church rebellion. It is already washing around the portals of Lambeth palace, official residence of the archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England.

The movement's 100th birthday was celebrated both in Oxford and in London with a liturgical feast of high masses and ceremonies. Oxford's observance lasted a week and in London the sports stadium at White City, where greyhounds race at night, was occupied by the celebrants.

Protest Public Masses.

Evangelical Protestantism rose at once against the two high masses sung in London. Both were marked protests. At one kites were flown in the air with streamers attached to them. The message lettered on the banners said that public masses were contrary to the law of the land.

The Protestants broadcast their concluding mass to the thousands in White City by loud speakers. During the silent intervals a low voice, speaking of service to the true God, intruded so quietly and with such conviction that at first the listeners believed they heard a continuation of the service. Then the voice ceased.

A closed police truck had followed another equipped with broadcasting apparatus to White City and had ordered the disturbers away. The disturbers had been driving slowly around the grounds, sandwiching their remarks in with the voices of the celebrants inside.

Protest to Archbishop.

As soon as the week of celebration was over a protest was lodged with Archbishop Lang.

A delegation representing laymen in 32 English dioceses deposited at Lambeth palace a strong petition. It urged the archbishops of Canterbury and York to "give heed to the deep and widespread anxiety and grief of a very large body of the laity of England at the manifest favor and approval which is being shown to the celebrations of the centenary of the Oxford movement by yourselves, by many of the bishops, and by a large body of the clergy."

"This deputation desires to remind your lordships [the archbishops and bishops] that the 'public masses' in places of entertainment constitute an outrage on the sentiments and traditions of the Protestant peoples of this land," the protest continued.

Cite Reasons for Protest.

"We desire to ask you more particularly to proclaim your public disavowal of these masses on the grounds:

"1. That the Oxford movement stands openly and avowedly for teaching repudiated by the Church of England at the reformation; that its goal is Rome."

"2. That the illustration of the 'altar' in the press makes it absolutely clear that the 'sacrifice of the mass' is the purpose and intention of the Oxford movement.

"3. That these celebrations and the work of the Oxford movement generally are not making for unity, peace and concord in the church."

The document was accompanied by an address in which the delegation repudiated "this Anglo-Catholic movement which has as its goal a reunion with the Church of Rome and complete subordination to the pope."

WED FOR SPITE, WIFE ASSERTS IN SEPARATION SUIT

Her husband told her after their wedding that he had married her only to spite his first wife, from whom he had been divorced two months earlier, Mrs. Wanda Bokhoven, 10833 South Wabash avenue, declared yesterday in a bill for separate maintenance. The bill was filed by Attorney Norman Becker in the Superior court against Bert Bokhoven, 5 West 112th place.

Mrs. Bokhoven is 21 years old and her husband is 34. The disparity in their ages caused him to treat her as a child, she charged.

BODIES OF TWO IN LAKE.

Fremont, Neb., July 28.—(AP)—The bodies of two Fremont sisters were found in Union Pacific lake, west of here, early today by two swimmers. The bodies had apparently been in the shallow water all night. They were Iva Williams, 19, and Treva Williams, 14, daughters of Lee Williams, railroad engineer.

FUTURITY ENDS ARLINGTON SEASON TODAY

GOLDEN GLOVES BOXERS READY; EASE UP DRILL

Take Excursion to St. Joseph Today.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grand Beach, Mich., July 28.—The major portion of the drills for the International bouts at Soldiers' field next Wednesday night was completed today by Chicago's Golden Gloves boys. The condition of the 16 boxers is splendid, their weights practically at the division limits, and as a result Coach Johnny Behr has declared a holiday from boxing.

There will be no ring work at all tomorrow. Sunday and Monday will complete the fight sessions, although the boys will loosen up a bit on Tuesday. The team will return to Chicago at noon Wednesday, go to the Illinois Athletic club to weigh in and then eat the only meal permitted before the bouts.

Take In Movie.

Tonight the squad and coaches made the six mile trip to Michigan City to attend the Tivoli theater. This excursion and the holiday outing to St. Joseph, Mich., tomorrow are the only letups permitted before the dash down the stretch. Elmer W. Cress, managing director of the Hotel Whitcomb, St. Joseph, Mich., will be the team's host tomorrow.

The squad will leave the Golfmore hotel at 11 o'clock by automobile and will lunch in the veranda garden of the Whitcomb. In the afternoon the team will go to Silver Beach Amusement park, to the House of David, and to the fruit market. The return from St. Joe to Michigan City will be made by motor boat furnished by the Robinson Marine Construction company provided the lake is not rough. Automobiles will bring the team back to Grand Beach from Michigan City.

The Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil headed a party of officials of the Catholic Youth organization on a visit to the camp today. The party arrived just before lunch and then watched the afternoon's boxing. There was more than a score of other visitors, several coming from St. Charles, Ill., to see Walter Matthys and Bill Treest.

Trafton Favors Big Fellows.

George Trafton, who dropped in today, is looking forward to the heavyweight battle Wednesday night between Paddy Mulligan of Ireland and John Pacek, Golden Gloves titleholder. Trafton's ring career includes bouts with Arthur [The Great] Shires and Primo Carnera and he naturally favors the big boys. We're not violating a confidence when we report that the consensus picks Pacek to beat Mulligan. But last year Duffy Dvonch was picked to whip the German heavyweight, whereupon he was knocked out.

Mulligan, so the information goes, can hit hard. It remains to be seen how he will stand up under the same kind of medicine, for Chicago's champion is not a drop the handkerchief boxer.

There is no feeling of overconfidence in camp. Each boy is trying to win a berth on the international squad and he cannot afford to loaf. The lesson learned last year when Chicago was fortunate to finish with a four to four tie after losing the first three bouts is fresh in mind. Freddie Caserio also is an important factor in keeping the boys at their work.

Caserio Knows Better.

"Look what happened to me two years ago in my match with the French middleweight champion," Freddie says. "I had whipped New York's team captain and I was a bit too certain that all I had to do was get into the ring to whip the Frenchman. It won't be like that Wednesday night as far as I'm concerned."

This community is Golden Gloves conscious and all of the employés of the hotel are working on excuses to get into Chicago Wednesday night. Several groups in nearby Michigan City are planning to make the trip.

FRANK SHIELDS BEATS MANGIN IN SEABRIGHT FINAL

Seabright, N. J., July 28.—[Special.]—Frank Shields, former member of the United States Davis cup team, who is No. 5 in the national rankings, won the 46th annual Seabright men's singles tennis championship today. The tall star defeated Gregory Mangin, Newark, national indoor champion, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1.

The women's doubles title went to Josephine Cruickshank and Alice Marble, who won from the New England pair of Virginia Rice and Marjorie Sachs. The scores were 6-2, 6-1. The champions advanced to the final round by defeating Helen Jacobs, American single champion, and Sarah Palfrey. The victors may be teamed to play against England in the Wightman cup matches.

SENATORS, YANKS EXTEND SERIES OVER MONDAY

Washington, D. C., July 28.—(AP)—Rain today stopped the Washington Senators and the New York Yankees, battling for the American league lead, but, weather permitting, the strife will be renewed tomorrow.

The game set for today will be played Monday, with no double headers scheduled in the present series.

HORNSBY MEETS ST. LOUIS BROWNS, HIS NEW CHARGES

Hose Hope to End 8 Game Losing Streak Today.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Rogers Hornsby, who a year ago at this time was finishing up as manager of the Cubs, starts out on a new road this afternoon. He'll make his debut at Comiskey park as manager of the St. Louis Browns, and besides being his first appearance as an American league employé, it will be the fourth time he has been at the helm of a major league team.

The Browns happen to be cellar residents at the time of the Hornsby ascension to the boss' chair, but this is giving the ex-Cub leader no concern, at least not yet.

"When you start at the bottom they can't throw you out for not winning a pennant," is the way Hornsby looks at his present task. "I don't know anything about the Browns, but there are some real ball players among them, and we'll get some more eventually."

Finds Two Ailing Players.

As soon as Hornsby arrived here from St. Louis yesterday morning to meet his new men he encountered trouble. George Blaeholder, who had worked like an iron man during the Bill Killefer régime, told the boss he had a sore arm. Sam West also had something wrong with his anatomy. Hornsby promptly excused them from work, so that they could return to St. Louis for medical attention. Blaeholder is the best of the Browns' pitchers and West the ranking outfielder, so there's no room to argue that Hornsby isn't assuming his new duties under unfavorable conditions.

The White Sox, now deep in an eight game losing streak, naturally will be pleased to learn that Blaeholder isn't around to torment them. They can't touch him with a paddle if he has the proper rest. The fact that he is away may so inspire the Sox this afternoon that they'll step out of their present rôle and blast their way to that of a winner. To do that they'll have to hit Sam Gray, an old fellow who in other years was a perpetual jinx. This year old Sam hasn't been so active. Walter Miller will start for the Sox.

Lot of Things Are Wrong.

To the question of the hour, "What's wrong with the Sox?" the answer is, "A lot of things." The pitching staff is about 50 per cent weaker than the staff of any other team in the league. That's the big drawback. If the pitching was good you wouldn't hear so much about the lack of hitting and the presence of errors. With good pitching the latter defects wouldn't be so noticeable.

The tough part of the pitching situation is that it probably will not improve and seventh place is now closing in on the south siders. The pitching promised to be weak when the Sox went into training. Due allowance for that caused many of the experts to predict fifth place for the Chicagoans. But the experts didn't know that Ted Lyons and Paul Gregory would be flops instead of regular starters. When you add to the bad pitching such other weaknesses as are evident in a few positions, you almost wonder why the White Sox haven't taken a dive into the cellar before this.

English Net Stars Defeat French Twice

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUTEUIL, France, July 28.—France's six year reign of Davis cup supremacy tottered today when the inspired tennis forces of Great Britain made a clean sweep of the first two singles matches of the challenge round to decide possession of the trophy.

The Frenchmen's hopes of keeping the cup were shattered when the once invincible Henri Cochet lost to Fred Perry, first ranking British player, in a stirring duel of five sets, and Henry W. [Bunny] Austin trounced young Andre Merlin.

The score of the Perry-Cochet match was 8-10, 6-4, 8-6, 3-6, 6-1, while Austin won by 6-3, 6-4, 6-0.

In their struggle for possession of the international trophy for the first time since 1912 the British now need only one more victory in the remaining three matches.

A partisan gallery sat astounded as Cochet, one time champion of the world, put up a dogged fight against the aggressive Perry, only to weaken after winning the fourth set to square one of the most gruelling matches ever witnessed on these famous courts. It was the Englishman's stamina and resourcefulness that left him the victor over the former ball boy of Lyons. Two of the five sets were lengthy deuce struggles.

While it was realized that Cochet has passed his prime, his defeat at the hands of Perry came as a shock to the defending team. Not since Bill Tilden beat him at Germantown, Pa., in 1927, had Cochet yielded to an opponent on the opening day of a Davis cup challenge round.

The lineup for the doubles tomorrow will probably pit Perry and George Patrick Hughes with Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon.

Regardless of the outcome of the doubles match or of the singles between Cochet and Austin, victory for the British is considered assured, for it appears certain that Perry will dispose of Merlin for the deciding point. There was a possibility that the French, as a last resort to stem the tide, will draft Borotra to substitute for Merlin against Perry.

Although Perry showed no signs of fatigue as he raced through the final set with Cochet, he fainted from exhaustion immediately afterward in the dressing room.

No Davis cup team from any nation has been able to win the trophy after being beaten in the first two matches. Because of the comparative youth of Austin and Perry, followers of the sport predict that the English face a long reign as custodians of the trophy.

Herbert Roper Barrett, who was a member of the first English cup team 33 years ago, and present nonplaying captain, intimated that he may withdraw Perry from the doubles and substitute George Patrick Hughes.

This change would give the French an advantage tomorrow, perhaps, but Barrett believes it would be offset when Perry, with a full day's rest behind him, takes the court Sunday in the final singles matches.

French enthusiasts staked their hopes on a comeback by Cochet today. His defeat left them without hope.

Cochet accepted his trouncing with a smile. "I was all right at the start," he said, "but near the finish my legs began to weaken and I knew when I was through."

Nine thoroughbreds at the tender age of 2 years, the most fashionable in America, will race six furlongs for a king's ransom of $48,195 in the Arlington Futurity this afternoon.

Out of the brief scramble, which will last only about a minute and eleven seconds, may come the 2 year old champion of the year. To hear the Futurity visitors talk and make wagers last night that champion will be Mata Hari, spectacular Kentucky bred daughter of Peter Hastings, owned by Charles T. Fisher of Detroit.

It will be the fourth start of her sensational career. So far she never has been defeated. The westerners were so confident she will dash on to another triumph that they made her the favorite at 6 to 5. She will have Far Star as a running companion. The Arlington patrons cannot forget the finish of the Lassie stakes a few weeks back in which Mata Hari smothered her field while she was winning with her room mate, Far Star, finishing second.

Meeting Ends Today.

The running of the Futurity brings to a close the brilliant season of 30 days of racing offered by the Arlington Park Jockey club. While the attendance and betting have fallen slightly short of the records made during boom years, the meeting has been highly successful and has engaged all the best horses in America.

The Futurity day crowd promises to be one of the largest of the season and may reach 30,000.

This will be the first attempt Mata Hari has made to defeat the colts of her age. Her job is no easy one. The betting indicated that Singing Wood, owned by Mrs. J. H. Whitney of New York, would be her chief rival. He was the second choice in the betting at 5 to 2. Eastern money to be wagered on him is expected to roll into Chicago today.

Think Filly Will Be Beaten.

The easterners naturally believe he is the best 2 year old from along the Atlantic seaboard and like tried and true easterners they cannot vision a western horse beating a champion from the east, particularly a filly which seldom win Futurity or Derby stakes.

Other easterners had not lost faith in Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney's Greentree stable entry of First Minstrel and Earnings, which will have Jockeys Sonny Workman and S. Coucci in the saddle. They were wagering quite briskly on them. As a result the Greentree entry was the third choice, but at odds of 6 to 1.

There also was quite a late stir about Willis Sharpe Kilmer's colorbearer, Sun Tempest. George Land, who trains the Kilmer horses, surprised the Futurity fans when he announced that Jockey Mack Garner would come here from New York to ride Sun Tempest. Garner is a past master at riding 2 year olds. His record at Arlington Park is one of the sensations of racing.

In Money Each Time.

The veteran Garner has ridden only in three races at Arlington. He came here for the 1929 Classic and won it with Blue Larkspur. He came to ride in the Post and Paddock club stakes in 1931 and finished second on Morfair, which was beaten a nose by Burning Blaze. Then he came back for this year's Classic and finished second on Golden Way.

Sun Tempest is a big, hard running son of Sun Briar-Windy Way, which has been threatening to do big things for some time. It may be that Garner's presence in the saddle will make Sun Tempest go on to the big effort.

Outsiders in the betting were Warren Wright's Hadagal, Adolph Pons' Discovery, and Norman W. Church's Ima Count, a son of Reigh Count.

Two Other Good Races.

One of the best programs of the season backs up the Futurity. The Drexel purse at six furlongs engages such star as Mr. Sponge, Fairbypair, No More, Gift of Roses, and Rehoboth, while the City and Suburban handicap at a mile brings into action Watch Him, Polydorus, Action, Monel, Late Date, Yonkel, and Waylayer.

Irish Exhibit Clew to Boxers' Popularity

BY JERRY CURRAN.

Those who have bothered to seek a reason for the lightning popularity of the Irish boxing champions, who meet the Chicago Golden Gloves boxers next Wednesday at Soldiers' field, have found themselves falling back on the old, old saying—"There's something about these Irish!" There is, too. Many super fighters have lived, fought, and passed on without ever receiving an ovation such as this Irish team has wrung from Chicago.

Similarly, tourists who occasionally stop off for a day or two in the old country, come back with a reminiscent gleam and the slow comment, "There's something about that country. . . ."

Exhibit Gives Clue.

On the second floor of the Travel and Transport building at A Century of Progress, removed from the blare of the side shows, set in a quiet back water, a beautiful exhibit crystallizes that something that is Ireland's. Flags of green, white, and gold distinguish it. It is the official government sponsored showing of the culture and national character of the Irish Free State. Here is beauty that is almost incongruous in its surroundings.

Strictly speaking, the Irish Free State exhibit is titled "Teasbantas Ealadhan Eireannac," or Exhibition of Irish Art, and its motif is set in the oils that grace the walls. It is not possible for discerning eyes to glance at these paintings and then turn away without savouring the thrill of this beauty.

Beauty. . . .

It is graven in every line of that "Connemara Mother and Child," by Power O'Malley, distilled in "A Connemara Lake" from the brush of Paul Henry, of the marvelous skyscapes and magically purple hills, vibrant in the strokes of Jack Yeats, whose "Be-

LEWIS PREDICTS CROWD OF 60,000 AT IRISH BOUTS

Nate Lewis, dean of American matchmakers with 40 years' experience in boxing as a manager and promoter, predicted last night that the International Golden Gloves bouts between the Irish Free State champions and the Chicagoland team Wednesday night would set an all-time high for attendance at an amateur boxing event.

"No boxing show has created so much interest since the second Dempsey-Tunney fight," Lewis said. "There is as much discussion of the bouts in Chicago now as there was of that fight a week before it took place. The Irish have struck the public's fancy and their popularity along with the usual pageantry which features all Golden Gloves bouts has excited interest to the point where 60,000 may be expected to see the bouts."

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Memphis, Tenn., July 28.—Chasteen Harris, a southern gentleman who puts you in mind of Bobby Jones and swings down the alleys of a golf lot with a "What About It?" crook to his arms, fought the battle of Shiloh over again at the Memphis Country club today, but it wasn't quite enough. Not enough to keep Jack Westland of Chicago from entering the semi-final round of the Western Golf association's thirty-fourth annual amateur tournament here, for the struggle ended on the 35th green with the slender Chicago star a 3 and 1 victor.

Bliss Opposes Dann.

In the semi-final round tomorrow, Westland will meet Walter Emery of Oklahoma City, a handsome youth of the Hollywood mould, who holds the national intercollegiate title. Emery won his third consecutive extra hole match of the tournament today by squaring his match with Leland Hamman of Waco, Tex., on the last green, after having been two down at the seventeenth tee and winning the match with a partial stymie on the nineteenth.

The other semi-final will bring together Rodney Bliss, Cornell university student from Omaha, Neb., and Carl Dann, Florida state champion, who calls Orlando home.

Harris 2 Down After 18.

It was Marse Harris of Memphis, however, who was the head man of today's show, not to mention Westland, who is a fighter from way back himself. During the morning round, it was obvious that Marse Harris' folks never had to ask him twice to eat his spinach, for he spent most of the first 18 holes exploring broccoli bordering the fairways.

Harris was 2 down at the end of the morning 18, but knocked one

CUBS AT ST. LOUIS

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., July 28.—Talk about gangster cleanups—why doesn't some one do something about these fellows Tex Carleton, Dizzy Dean, and Bill Hallahan, a trio that's been ganging on the Cubs since the very first day of the National league season?

These three pitchers always seem rested and eager to look after all the Cardinal pitching whenever the Cubs are involved. There have been games this year when Dean couldn't quite get through. So Mr. Carleton came in to finish his work. And on two occasions Dean was the one who came in and exterminated Cubs in behalf of Carleton. Hallahan has had fair success handling the Chicagoans all by himself.

All Hard Workers.

It is not to be said that Carleton, Dean, and Hallahan have confined their efforts to discouraging the Cubs—goodness, no, the Cardinals have played ninety-four games. Dean has

FULLIS TAKES VAUGHAN'S PLACE IN BIG SIX LIST

Chick Fullis walloped four hits in six times up in the Phillies' slugging match against Boston yesterday and passed Arky Vaugan of Pittsburgh into third place in the National league batting race to give the Phils three members of the big six again. Fullis' hits were good for a four point gain, bringing his average up to .337. Spud Davis, who retired after hitting twice in two chances, equaled that gain, but Chuck Klein, big six leader, was just able to hold his mark at the .370 level by hitting twice in five times up. All the American league leaders were idle. The standing:

Buster Brown Wins from Kid Firpo in 8 Rounds

Wilmington, Del., July 28.—(AP)—Young Kid Firpo, 142½, Penn's Grove, N. J., lost an 8 round decision to Buster Brown, 142, Baltimore, tonight. There were no knockdowns.

HAWTHORNE SET FOR 30 DAYS OF HORSE RACING

Gold Cup, Chicago Derby Feature Meeting.

Hawthorne, the oldest race track in Illinois, is ready to receive the thoroughbreds and other followers on Monday, when its 30 day meeting opens.

Aside from its usual run of stakes, the meeting offers two standout features. One is the final appearance in the west of Equipoise, the Whitney horse, which now ranks fourth among the money winners of all time.

This appearance of Equipoise, scheduled for Aug. 24 in the $25,000 Gold Cup, probably will be the colt's last race. Equipoise is slated for retirement this fall, and since there are no other meetings to follow Hawthorne with a stake close to the value of the Gold Cup, Equipoise may be retired immediately after running in that weight for age event.

Chicago Derby Sept. 2.

The other high spot is the revival of the Chicago Derby, scheduled for Sept. 2, and which at this time gives every indication of settling the 1933 3 year old championship. The Derby was first run in 1890, the year Hawthorne was built. Visitors of the 1893 World's Fair saw the great Morello defeat Boundless in the World's Fair Chicago Derby that year.

Hawthorne has been presenting lively scenes for several days as van after van of racers unload. There has been a steady stream of motors from Arlington to the west side, while numerous shipments are arriving from Kentucky and the east.

Among the latest stables to reach Hawthorne were the Audley farm's string of 30, 17 belonging to Benny Creech, a dozen from Johnny Theall's Lone Star stable, the same number belonging to Clyde Van Deusen, and three Chicago owned stables that have been racing at Arlington. These are the thoroughbreds that belong to John Marsch, Jimmy Norris, and Mrs. Emil Denemark.

Track Same as in 1890.

Although Hawthorne is 43 years old and many improvements have been made in the grandstand, clubhouse, infield and entrances, the track itself is the same that Ed Corrigan laid out in 1890.

SMITTY—THE BRUISER

FAVORITE IN ARLINGTON FUTURITY

Mata Hari, undefeated filly, which is the favorite today in the Arlington Futurity, closing day feature of the Arlington Park Jockey club's race meeting. The fleet two year old from the Dixiana stable will face colts of her age for the first time, but handicappers figure that she has the speed to turn back her rivals in the six furlong sprint.

Time, :23 2-5, :47 3-5, 1:00 4-5, 1:07 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Barkantine, $8.96 straight, $4.26 place, $2.54 show; Long Bit, $5.80 place, $2.92 show; Saracen Maid, $2.38 show. Winner trained by W. Brennan. Went to post at 2:20. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

BARKANTINE, strongly ridden, made up ground on outside on the turn, came around the leaders when entering the stretch and, wearing down LONG BIT away slowly and on extreme outside until reaching stretch, vigorous urging, LONG BIT, away slowly and on extreme outside until reaching stretch, where she slipped through some of the field and, closing strong, was getting to the winner. SARACEN MAID had speed from the start and saved ground throughout, was slightly forced back on stretch turn, and weakened in final drive.

Time, :23, :46 3-5, 1:12 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Timorous, $5.36 straight, $3.12 place, $2.68 show; After Dark, $3.72 place, $3.12 show; Lebruyere, $3.12 show. Winner trained by B. Parke. Went to post at 2:45. At post 3 minutes. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

TIMOROUS, beginning fast and having speed, was taken under mild restraint before going a quarter easily wore down LEBRUYERE when ready and, drawing out, was safe from AFTER DARK. Latter saved ground much of the race and closed resolutely in a good effort. LEBRUYERE worked his way clear in first quarter, saved ground where possible, and weakened in final eighth, but outstayed KUMMEL.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :22 4-5, :46, 1:11. Two dollar mutuels paid: Volta Maid, $5.00 straight, $3.12 place, $2.78 show; Blackstrap, $4.66 place, $3.50 show; March King, $5.78 show. Winner trained by F. Rector. Went to post at 3:12½. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

VOLTA MAID easily reached the lead on inside in opening three-sixteenths, was under steadying restraint on the turn, drew away in stretch, won without need of pressure, but had little left. BLACKSTRAP saved ground on the turn, but came out after reaching the stretch and, closing resolutely under stout urging, wore down MARCH KING. Latter, a strong factor from the start, went to inside in stretch and held on well.

FOURTH RACE—Three-quarters of a mile. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

DON MANUEL, difficult to handle and under strong riding after three-eighths, worked his way up slowly after reaching the stretch and, wearing down MUMSIE, was under severe pressure as he drew out. MUMSIE, rated close to the pace, took command with a rush and held on courageously, but was not good enough. LE MISERABLE, raced wide throughout, closed strong.

FIFTH RACE—Hertz course, one mile out of chute. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :23 1-5, :46 3-5, 1:11 2-5, 1:37 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Fiddler, $35.44 straight, $17.16 place, $7.12 show; Rusty, $8.28 place, $4.90 show; Louie Dear, $3.20 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 4:05. At post 9 minutes. Start good from permanent stalls. Won easily; second and third driving.

FIDDLER, racing improved under a change in riders and benefited by the pace, went wide at the turn and, offering fine resistance after straightening up in the stretch, where he continued to race wide, disposed of the leaders to win without strong urging. RUSTY forced a good pace under clever rating and, holding on gamely, outfinished LOUIE DEAR. The latter, away fast and sent along in the pacemaking, saved ground throughout and fought it out stubbornly.

SIXTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Trey, $28.08 straight, $8.84 place, $5.44 show; Count Rae, $4.82 place, $3.52 show; Constant Wife, $4.18 show. Winner trained by J. F. Patterson. Went to post at 4:39. At post 2½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

TREY, away fast and keeping up without need of strong urging the first half-mile, worked his way to the front slowly, then drew clear fast, but weakened in the closing stages. COUNT RAE, away slowly and far back for a half-mile, saved ground entering the stretch and closed with a great rush. CONSTANT WIFE, a strong factor throughout and slightly crowded back when leaving the back stretch, fought it out gamely.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and one-eighth. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

R. Price. Went to post at 5:05½. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

SURETY, having speed from the start and always on the inside, drew away after reaching the final half-mile and, maintaining his speed gamely, won in hand. GLOVE, well up from the start, held on fairly well. ACTUARIUS lost ground and dropped back suddenly at the stretch turn, but was best of others.

Unna. Went to post at 5:31. At post 4 minutes. Start good from permanent stalls. Won driving; second and third same.

OLD DEPOT, going in his best form and under light weight, began working his way up on the outside after reaching the final three-eighths, slowly wore down ALLROWES, but could not draw away. The latter saved much ground the first three-quarters, took command with a rush after coming out when entering the stretch, and held on stubbornly. VILLAGE VAMP, fractious at the post and away slowly, closed well in a good effort.

Bowden Davis Triumphs in Wisconsin Amateur Golf

Jockey Fronk Wins on Trey; Returns $28

Jockey Bill Fronk, who has come in for numerous bronx cheers for his riding at Arlington Park lately, produced one of his good efforts yesterday and drove the Audley farm stable's 2 year old Trey home to victory in the Bunker Hill purse.

Trey was a long shot at $28.08 in the mutuels and couldn't have won but for Fronk's strong ride down the stretch. He won by three-quarters of a length from the fast finishing Count Rae, with Dixiana stable's Constant Wife third.

When Trey raced to his victory another Pacific coast turf championship bubble bursted. Risky Miss, a daughter of Chance Play-Griselda, which had won her first five starts on the Pacific slope, failed to get any part of the purse. She showed plenty of early speed, but quit badly in the final furlong.

Several owners of Futurity candidates will arrive this morning to see their star juveniles run for the rich prize. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Whitney will come from New York to see Singing Wood sport Mrs. Whitney's silks. Charles T. Fisher will arrive at about the same time from Detroit. Norman Church of Los Angeles is here to see Ima Count perform, and Warren Wright of Chicago will have a big delegation out to root for his colt Hadagal.

Favorites came home again in the second and third races, which made up the daily double. Timorous won the second race and Volta Maid, from L. M. Severson's stable of Chicago, the third. The double paid $14.24.

Three Chicago owned stables will get away for Saratoga early tomorrow. The Chicagoans shipping their horses to the western watering place are Mrs. John Hertz, Warren Wright, and Fred Burton.

PHILS TRIUMPH OVER BRAVES IN TENTH, 13 TO 12

Klein Smacks Double to Score Bartell.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 28.—(AP)—The Phillies, nine runs behind in the fifth inning, came back today to tie the score in the ninth and add another run in the tenth to beat the Boston Braves 13 to 12. The victory enabled the Phillies to sweep their three game series and consolidated their hold on sixth place, giving them a full game over the idle Cincinnati Reds.

Chuck Klein drove in the deciding run in the tenth, walloping a double with two on base and one out to bring in Dick Bartell from second. Bartell got on by forcing Jimmy McLeod, who had singled, and Chuck Fullis advanced him with a base hit.

The Braves did all their scoring in the first five innings. They started in the first when Randy Moore walloped a home run with two on base and added four more in the second as Wally Berger duplicated Moore's feat, hitting his 18th homer of the season to tie Klein for the National league lead. INDIANS, 7; TIGERS, 2

Cleveland, O., July 28.—(AP)—The Indians had practically no trouble defeating the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 2, today, to take a firm hold on fourth place. The victory put Cleveland a full game ahead of the Tigers and the same distance behind the third place Philadelphia Athletics, who were idle.

Oral Hindebrand went the route for the first time since he beat the White Sox on July 3. The Tigers scored their first run in the eighth with the aid of an error by O'Dell Hale and added another on the tail end of a double play in the ninth. Hildebrand yielded only eight hits and before the eighth didn't let a runner get past second base. Score:

FORT SHERIDAN POLO TEAM WILL PREP EAST'S FOUR

The United States army championship team of Fort Sheridan has been chosen to oppose the western polo team in two tune-up matches for the east-west polo world series with Tommy Hitchcock's eastern quartet.

Boasting a 20 goal team, the Army, led by Maj. C. C. Smith, is the most powerful team in this area.

The games will be played during the week prior to the opening of the East vs. West series, which starts Sunday afternoon, Aug. 13, at the Onwentsia club field. They will be open to the public. One will be played at Fort Sheridan and the other on a field to be determined later.

Carleton F. Burke, organizer and manager of the western team, announced yesterday that he will reach Chicago from Los Angeles Wednesday. He is expected to announce the makeup of his team shortly after his arrival. Burke was in charge of the American international team which invaded South America last fall to win the Argentine open tournament and the championship of the Americas at Buenos Aires.

COHN REACHES NET SEMI-FINALS AT GRAND HAVEN

Grand Haven, Mich., July 28.—(AP)—Jay Cohn, first seeded star from Chicago, fought his way into the semi-finals of the Highland Park junior tennis tournament today, but only after a three hour struggle with Fred Renker of Topeka, Kas. The scores were 4-6, 6-0, 9-7. Tomorrow he will meet Norman Bickel of Oak Park, Ill., who defeated George Dullwig of San Antonio, Tex., 6-3, 6-2.

In the lower semi-final bracket are Ben Dey of Los Angeles and Trevor Weiss, Chicago. Day defeated C. Murphy, Hillsdale, Ill., 6-1, 6-2, and Jack Kortlander, Michigan High school champion, 6-2, 6-0, today. Weiss defeated D. Bloomfield, Chicago, 6-2, 6-3, and W. Condy, Winnetka, Ill., 7-5, 6-2.

BOLANDS PLAY KICKHAMS.

The Harry Bolands, six times champions of the Gaelic league, will play the Charles Kickhams in an all-star Gaelic football game tomorrow at Normal Park stadium, 61st street and Racine avenue.

MOON MULLINS—DIPLOMACY PERSONIFIED

Hornsby Leads Browns Today Against Sox

been in thirty-two of them, Carleton in twenty-seven, and Hallahan in twenty-two.

The Cardinals have won forty-nine games. Of these Carleton and Dean each has won thirteen and Hallahan has won twelve, leaving eleven for the rest of the Cardinal staff to fight over. [Though the Cubs have little evidence, the Cards actually have some other pitching fellows entitled Haines, Vance, Walker, Mooney, or names something like that.]

Hallahan beat Bush, 3 to 1, on 6 hits, no two of which came in the same inning, on April 13.

Malone Beats Dean.

Malone beat Dean [relieved by Carleton], 3 to 1, in the St. Louis season opener, the Cubs bunching five of their six hits in the sixth and eighth innings.

Hallahan shut out Bush, 4 to 0, allowing 5 hits, on April 21.

Root, who succeeded Bush, beat Hallahan, 7 to 5, in the first game April 30 in Chicago.

Carleton, relieved by Dean, beat Malone, 5 to 3, in the second game on April 30. Dean fanned four of six Cubs who faced him after Babe Herman and Stephenson had delivered successive doubles in the eighth.

Dean beat Bush, 6 to 1, in Chicago on June 1, the Cubs making six hits and avoiding a shutout with one run produced in the ninth by Hendrick's single and Hartnett's triple.

Mooney Starts a Game.

Mooney [it doesn't seem possible] started the game on June 3. The Cubs won, 8 to 6.

Dean held the Cubs to two hits and beat Warneke, 2 to 1, in St. Louis on June 8.

Carleton beat Malone, relieved by Tinning and Nelson, 12 to 2, allowing only seven hits, though he didn't have to bear down, on June 9.

On June 10 the Cards for the second time started a pitcher other than the poison trio and again the Cubs won, Root licking Haines et al., 4 to 3, the Cubs making their runs in the first inning.

Tomorrow Carleton will make his fourth start against the Cubs and his third against Malone. The Cubs, as you could have noticed in the foregoing tabulation, have not beaten the lank lad in three starts.

In the Sunday double header Warneke, who has won one and lost one against the Cards, will probably draw Hallahan. Bush and Dean also will work on the Sabbath. Bush has lost three and won one from the Cards.

AMERICAN TRACK STARS SWEEP SWEDISH MEET

STOCKHOLM, July 28.—(AP)—America's barnstorming track and field athletes scored a clean sweep against Swedish and Danish athletes tonight before a large crowd, including the Swedish crown prince, who presented the prizes, and Prince Carl Johan.

Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette, won the 100 meters in 10.3 seconds and the 200 meters in 21.1. Jorgenson of Denmark was second in the 100 and Ivan Fuqua of Indiana was second in the 200.

Glenn Cunningham, Kansas, won the 800 meters in 1:58 with Bjork of Sweden, second in 1:59.

Henri Laborde of Stanford won the discus throw with a toss of 160 feet 9 9-16 inches, with John Anderson of New York second. Laborde also won the shot put at 46 feet 2 2-3 inches, with Anderson second.

Johnny Morris, Louisiana, won the 110 meter high hurdles in 14.8, beating Lindgren of Denmark and Joe McCluskey, Fordham, ran off with the 3,000 meters in 8:46, 10 3-10 seconds ahead of Siefert of Denmark. Fuqua was clocked in 43 seconds in winning the 400 meters, with Kugelberg of Sweden second.

K. OF C. FORMS 20 TEAM SOFT BALL LEAGUE

Knights of Columbus in Chicago and Cook county have organized a soft ball league with all councils in this area eligible for membership. The league is composed of 20 teams divided into four sections, the south, central, north and west. Six teams each are in the south and central sections while four apiece comprise the west and north sections.

The league is an outgrowth of the old regulation baseball league started in 1926. It is under the supervision of the Knights of Columbus state athletic commission and is to become a permanent part of the K. of C. sports program. Edward Sordelet of Nazareth council is president of the league, Richard Phillips of Englewood council, secretary, and Michael Feyerer and Marshall F. Lusk, both of Ridge council, are treasurer and publicity director, respectively.

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Here are some World's Fair notes with which we were regaled in advance of the World's Columbian Exposition of 1892-'93:

There is a prospect of a fine memorial statue of Columbus being erected on the lake front. It will cost approximately $50,000 and revert to the city of Chicago at the close of the Fair.

Emperor William's band has been given permission to come to the World's Fair.

Mrs. Richards of Montana offers to furnish the traditional last nail to be composed of gold, silver, and copper coming from her state and which Mrs. Potter Palmer, president of the board of lady managers, will drive.

The white pine tree for the Forestry building, which was presented by Wisconsin through Mrs. G. C. Ginty, one of the lady managers of that state, was recently forwarded. It is 25 feet long, 20 inches in diameter, and will be the first column to arrive for the Forestry building.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, president of the board of lady managers, has officially invited Queen Victoria, the queen regent of Spain, the queen of Italy, Mme. Carnot of France, and many other leading women of Europe to appoint committees of women to represent the progress of women in the different countries. These invitations have the official endorsement of Secretary Blaine and are sent to the ministers representing the United States to be delivered to the state departments of the foreign nations.

C. W. Hinman.

As part of my college work I am compiling a biography of the late David Fraser, my grandfather, and would like to get in touch with his former friends and employés of the pioneer Chicago firm of Fraser & Chalmers. If any of those persons are surviving, will they please address me in care of The Wake? Donald McGill.

Arlington's Close.

Arlington Park closes its race meeting today with the Arlington Futurity as the feature stake attraction. Arlington has given Chicago racegoers high class sport, fulfilled their every expectation. From the viewpoint of its sponsors the season has been satisfactory, although it is unlikely any substantial profits will be realized.

Since Arlington does not race primarily for profit, breaking even in a year like this is called satisfactory. Profits, if realized, go back into improvements and increased purse and stake offerings. Lack of profits only defers those improvements.

Arlington Park, as stated here before, has achieved national recognition and placed Chicago as an outstanding center on the turf map as a spot for the best racing stables to campaign. We congratulate its management on their efforts in this particularly trying financial year.

Current Pennant Odds.

Chances of the Chicago Cubs to win the National league pennant, as reflected by current betting odds, are 5 to 2 against. Three weeks ago, during a Cub slump, they were 6 to 1 against. New York is favorite at 2 to 1. St. Louis, which three weeks ago was second choice at 5-2, is now 4-1. Here are the figures:

National league—New York, 2-1; Chicago, 5-2; Pittsburgh, 3-1; Boston, 7-2; St. Louis, 4-1; Cincinnati, 30-1; Brooklyn, 50-1; Philadelphia, 50-1.

American league—New York, 2-1; Washington, 2-1; Philadelphia, 3-1; Detroit, 6-1; Chicago, 20-1; Cleveland, 30-1; Boston, 30-1; St. Louis, 50-1.

Before the opening of the season the Cubs were first choice at 7-5, with Pittsburgh 8-5 and New York 20-1. In the American league the Yankees were first choice at 1 to 2.

Irish Exhibit Clew to Boxers' Popularity

fore the storm" so realistically captures the very sharpness of the spring air as to bring a twinge of homesickness to the hearts of those who have known the tang of it.

Art Isn't All.

There is a sharp face about from deep sunk preconceptions of the wretchedness of the Irish country cottage to the loveliness of Power O'Malley's "Supper," which is a painting of an Irish cottage interior.

But let us leave the wonder of these paintings and glance about. Here is Irish poplin, of a deep navy, clothing a davenport in distinctive loveliness. Poplin making is an art which has reached close to perfection in Ireland, and adapted as a newer idea in upholstery, it offers interior decorating a medium of striking effectiveness and charm. Yonder, Irish tweed provides a more robust but not less distinctive effect in upholstering.

Learn, from this display of Irish ornamental metal work, that the precious metals, joined with vari colored enamels, are being molded by Irish hands into medals, plaques and shields of a delightful delicacy. Look there, that the glory of Irish stained glass artists may not escape you. Feel, underfoot, the consistency of these Donegal and Dun Emer rugs, before the attractiveness of the ancient Celtic designs arrests your eye.

If you would seek the source of these intricate whorls and delicate patterns, you will find them in the loveliness of the illuminations that characterize the "Book of Kells," from which a page has been carefully copied and may be seen beneath the glass of this case.

It Blasts Old Ideas.

Citizens of these United States have certain difficulty in readjusting themselves to the revelations of this Irish Free State exhibit. Perhaps, in the classifying way of Americans, they expected corned beef and cabbage, and here they are offered the works of a school of modern painting genius.

Was there some suspicion that the Irish exhibits would justify age entrenched expectations of tumble down shacks, and pigs in the parlor, shillelaghs in the fisht and a dhudeen in the hat band? What, then, of this presentation, of grace and dignity?

It is the Ireland too little known that shines forth from this Free State exhibit. Here is the old country itself, uncaricatured, articulate in the loveliness of canvas and precious metals and the handiwork of its craftsmen.

And so, the purpose of this Irish Free State exhibit shall have been accomplished, and the labors of those who spent themselves in its presentation shall have borne abundant fruit.

HOUGHTON'S 135 LEADS IN P. G. A. TRIAL ROUND

Baltimore, Md., July 28.—(AP)—Al Houghton of Washington, Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond and Glenn Spencer and Ralph Beach of Baltimore, low scorers in the 36 hole qualifying round today, won the right to compete in the P. G. A. tournament next month at Milwaukee.

Houghton had two subpar rounds of 66 and 69, his total of 135 strokes being the lowest ever registered in the middle Atlantic qualifying round. Cruickshank had a 70—68—138, Spencer 70—69—139, and Beach 72—70—142.

Twenty-two professionals from Viaginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia competed on the suburban course. Par is 70.

PHILADELPHIA PICKS 8.

PAULSEN GETS IN.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 28.—(AP)—Guy Paulsen, Fort Wayne star and Indiana open champion, shot 36 holes today in par 142 to win the right to represent the state in the National Professional Golf association tournament. Three other Indiana professionals competed—Marion Smith of Crawfordsville, who had 146; John Watson, South Bend, 147, and Chuck Garringer, Indianapolis, 157.

American Bridge Team Takes Lead in Match

LONDON, July 28.—(AP)—The American contract bridge team led by Ely Culbertson forged ahead of its English opponents today, ending the first night's play 4,810 points to the good. Culbertson's team is playing an English four headed by Lindsay Mundy, who challenged the Americans after their victory several days ago in the Charles M. Schwab trophy tournament. The score at the conclusion of the first 50 boards of the 150 board match was: America, 22,730 points; England, 17,920.

Westland 3-1 Victor; Enters Semi-Finals

hole off at the fourth in the afternoon with a twelve foot putt only to lose the ninth and be 2 down again. He rallied again at the tenth, chipping in a 30 yard shot off the green for a deuce. On the sixteenth tee he was two down and with two to go it appeared as if it were over when he trapped his drive and sent his second over the green into the rough. Then it was that Harris made his last stand and a good one. He pushed the ball across the green and into the cup from 25 feet for a half in threes. His fondness for the spinach and a trap finally ended the match on the seventeenth.

Westland was two up at the end of his first eighteen holes against Harris. The Chicagoan took the first hole, although he overdrove the green, Harris going into the rough. Jack had a chance to go two up at the second, where he made a fine approach only to miss a four foot putt for a birdie. Harris' second shot was over the green, but he came back to earn a half in fours. The third was another divided hole, each taking a birdie four. They halved the next three holes, Harris missing a four footer for a deuce on the fourth.

Westland Out in Par 35.

Westland went two up at the seventh when Harris drove into the trap at the right. They split the eighth and ninth, with Jack reaching the turn in par 35, while Chasteen took 37 to be two down.

Harris missed a one footer on the tenth to go three down, but he evened that with a par five at the 11th, where both were in all kinds of trouble. Both drove into the rough at the right. Westland's second barely escaped a trap at the left and he sent his third over the green. He got back in four, but took two putts for a six. Harris' second shot struck a tree, the ball going into the rough near the next fairway. He was on in three and won the hole when Westland conceded it. Jack was three up again after the 12th, where he dropped his approach seven feet away for a birdie three.

Harris' Best Shot at 13th.

Harris made his best shot at the 13th, sending his drive into the rough back of a huge tree, but boosting it over and on to the green six feet past the pin for a birdie three. Westland missed another short putt at the 14th, and they halved it in fours. Jack was only one up after the 15th, where his second was short and he needed two putts after reaching the green. He went two up again, however, at the next, where he made a great shot out of a trap for his par, while Harris was exploring the rough on the bank of the green. The Chicagoan three putted the 17th, where he might have gone three up, and dropped another opportunity on the home green, where he came out of a trap in good style, only to miss another easy putt.

Harris lost a chance to be only one down at the first hole in the afternoon by three-putting for a half. They divided the next two. Harris was one down after the fourth, where he sank a 12-footer for a deuce. They halved the remaining holes to the ninth, where Harris drove to the rough and sent his second into a trap, going two down.

It appeared as if Westland had the sign on Harris at this point, but the latter holed out a 30 yard chip shot from off the tenth green for a deuce and the hole. They halved the next three holes. Westland again went two up at the 14th, where Harris' second shot fund a gully. Harris missed another opportunity when he three-putted the 15th.

Harris made his greatest shot of the day at the 16th. He drove into a trap and overshot the green with his second, but sank a 25-footer from the rough at the edge to gain a half and prolong the match. His tee shot to the 17th was in the rough and his second landed in a trap, so that he finally conceded the hole.

Three Coast Stars Play in State Net Semi-Finals Today

The semi-finals in men's and women's singles and men's doubles and the final in women's doubles constitute the program today in the Illinois state tennis tournament at the Chicago Town and Tennis club, Thome and Ridge avenues.

Of the five California entries Gene Mako, Don Budge, and Joe Coughlin survive, the other place in the men's singles being won by Ed Lejeck of Chicago, who caused the biggest upset of the tournament Thursday when he defeated Jack Tidball of Los Angeles, seeded No. 1.

Lejeck will meet Budge at 2 o'clock, and following their match Gene Mako and Joe Coughlin will play.

Coughlin, a hard hitting southpaw, caught up with the field yesterday by defeating Bill Seward, also a Californian, in a quarter-final match, 6-4, 6-6, 6-2.

In the women's singles semi-finals today Jackie Ayer of Chicago will meet her doubles partner, Helen Bartavis, at 2 o'clock, and on an adjoining court, at the same time, Katherine Wolfe of Elkhart, Ind., will clash with Mary Reed of Chicago. Miss Wolfe is seeded No. 1, while Miss Ayer is seeded No. 2.

The quartet came through the quarter finals easily yesterday. Miss Ayer beat Stephanie Zalinski, 6-2, 6-3; Miss Bartavis defeated Catherine Sample of Lake Worth, Fla., 6-3, 6-1; Miss Wolfe won from Sara Hinde, Lake Forest, 6-1, 6-1, and Miss Reed advanced at the expense of Jeanne Smeltzer, Berkeley, Cal., 6-2, 6-1.

TROTTING RACES ATTRACT CROWDS AT COUNTY FAIR

The annual Cook county fair opened yesterday on the sixty acre tract at North avenue and River road, which is its home.

Most of the large crowd devoted its attention to the trotting horse races that were held in the afternoon and also under electric lights at night. Live stock and agricultural products were on display also on some sections of the grounds.

The fair will continue for seventeen days and a premium list of $110,000 has been announced. Part of the funds for the exhibitions are given by the state from collections in the parimutuel machines of the regular race tracks. No wagering is permitted on the races at the fair.

Chamberlin to Meet Cisar for Junior Title

George Cisar of Marquette park will meet Jac Chamberlin, Chicago Meadows, in the 36 hole finals for the third annual Chicago junior golf championship at Marquette park today. Cisar reached the finals by defeating Wilbur Kokes, the medalist, 1 up, while Chamberlin won his match from Bob Mather, Lincolnshire, 1 up.

The match between Cisar and Kokes was brilliant. They halved the first three holes, while Cisar won the fourth with a birdie 2, only to lose the next hole with a 5. The sixth was halved and Cisar won the seventh with a birdie 3 to take the lead. Kokes came back to win the eighth and ninth holes and finish the first nine with a lead of 1 up.

Cisar Evens Match on 12th.

They halved the 10th and 11th holes and Cisar evened the match on the 12th green when he scored a birdie 3. The 13th was halved with a pair of 4s and Cisar won the 14th and 15th holes. Kokes then won the 16th with a birdie 2 and the 17th with a par 3 to even the match. A stymie caused Kokes to lose the match on the 18th green.

Both players drove across the water, but Kokes fell short of the green. His third shot was two feet from the pin. Cisar, on his third, rolled the ball directly in front of Kokes' ball. Kokes' attempt to pitch into the cup failed.

Chamberlin Wins on 18th Green.

Chamberlin, recent winner of the public high school tournament at Mid-City, was 2 up at the end of the first nine against Mather, but was forced to go to the 18th green before winning.

Earl Thurow, Evergreen, will meet Jim Marek, Twin Orchards, in the 36 hole finals in the consolation play. Thurow entered the finals by defeating Charles McDonald, Evergreen, 3 and 2, while Marek defeated Jerry Behrstock, Bryn Mawr, 2 and 1.

VINE DEFEATS BLANCHARD IN FRONTON BOUT

Lou Vine, Chicago lightweight, defeated Pete Blanchard, Kansas City, Kas., in the five round windup of the professional boxing show at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, last night. Vine floored Blanchard twice. Freddie Miller and Scotty Sylvano fought a four round draw in another bout. Other results:

Freddie Graveile beat Pete Mage [4].
Smiley Springer beat Art Mitchell [4].
Bobby Millsap beat Kid Norfolk [4].
Pete Hortz beat Al Williams, 15 minutes [wrestling].

HARVEY GIRL IS WINNER IN U. S. HORSESHOE MEET

The sisters won nine of their ten games in the championship round, and met in the tenth game for the championship. Caroline won, 52 to 14.

Mrs. Esther James, Hastings, Mich., took third place with three victories and two defeats. There was a triple tie for fourth place among Mrs. Grace Jackson, La Grange; Mrs. Mildred Brouillette, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Charles Johnson, Milwaukee, each with one victory and four defeats.

Caroline Schultz scored 211 ringers and 79 doubles in 286 shoes, for a ringer average of 73 per cent, an unusually high score among women pitchers. Charlotte Schultz pegged 181 ringers and 59 doubles, in 270 shoes, for a ringer average of 55 per cent.

Play continued in the qualifying rounds for the men's championship. The 24 highest scorers will start the championship play today. The final round will be played Monday.

The following qualified yesterday:

No. 1, Charles Davis, Kansas City, Mo., 81 ringers, 33 doubles score 256; No. 2, Edward Wall, Detroit, 74 ringers, 27 doubles, 244 score; No. 3, Ted Allen, Alhambra, Cal., 74 ringers, 29 doubles, score 244; No. 4, Virl Jackson, Kellerton, Ia., 73 ringers, 27 doubles, score 243; No. 5, Harold Scheets, Waukesha, Wis., score 242; No. 6, J. CHARGES OF U. S. INTRIGUE IN CHINA STIR FAR EAST

Japs Accuse Americans of "Expansion."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 28.—The Chinese press today indignantly repudiated Japanese charges that the United States navy has obtained a concession to develop a naval base in Tungshan bay, near Amoy, in Fukien province, and near the Japanese island of Formosa.

In exchange for the concession, the Japanese charged, the American naval authorities are presenting the 19th route army, which now controls the province, with two submarines, six heavy bombing planes, and 15 anti-aircraft guns.

The charges, which originated in Tokio and were printed in Japanese newspapers here, said further that American interests are developing military airdromes at Amoy, Foochow, and elsewhere on the Fukien coast.

Tokio Eyes Developments.

It was also alleged that American interests are advancing the Chinese government several million dollars for the purpose of building a railway connecting Changchow and Lungyen in Fukien province.

Japanese newspapers, as well as Rengo, the semi-official Japanese news service, comment on Japan's new position in the orient under the so-called "Asiatic Monroe doctrine." They say the war and foreign offices at Tokio are closely watching the expansion of American activities in China, particularly the recent $50,000,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation wheat and cotton loan, as well as the United States' practical monopoly of civilian and military aviation development in China.

The Japanese papers say Japan has the right, under its Asiatic Monroe doctrine, to prevent American of European commercial or governmental activities in China, particularly loans or credits covering extensive arms and aviation developments which are considered detrimental to Japan or Japan's predominant position in China.

Predicts New Trouble.

In addition to this criticism of American activities, Y. Suma, first secretary of the Japanese legation, in an interview, said:

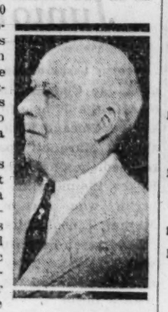
"A second Manchurian or Shanghai incident is inevitable in event China proceeds with its present plans for close coöperation with the league of nations, thus ignoring Japan's predominant position.

"Japan is paying close attention to American and league developments, although Japan has not yet framed an attitude. If the league's coöperation with China takes a political turn, Japan is likely to deal drastically with China."

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: O, O, That's Bad!

WILLIAM BERTINI, HOST TO OPERA SINGERS, IS DEAD

William Bertini, head of one of Chicago's pioneer families and an importer for 50 years, died yesterday in his home, 535 North Wells street. He was born in Lucca, Italy, 70 years ago and came to America when a boy.



WILLIAM BERTINI.

Mr. Bertini was a favorite host among opera stars and had entertained in his home many well known diplomatic and operatic personages who later spread the fame of his Italian dinners. Adelina Patti, Tito Schipa, Claudia Muzio, and Margherita Salvi went often to the Wells street home. Enrico Caruso was a guest there. And Guglielmo Marconi, the inventor, who is coming to the World's Fair, was to be entertained there. Mr. Bertini was also a collector of art and his home is filled with rare pieces assembled over a half century. Among these were rare Carrara marble statuary and agate vases, the work of Italian masters.

Funeral services will be held on Monday at 10 a. m. at the Church of the Assumption, 313 West Illinois street. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery. Mr. Bertini is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Rossi, and two sons, John and Joseph Bertini.

2 AUTO DEATHS RAISE COUNTY'S TOTAL TO 568

James Taylor, 55 years old, 9031 Wallace street, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile while crossing 95th and Wallace streets. The driver, Carl Hultgren, 53, of 8131 Lafayette avenue, took Taylor to the Little Company of Mary hospital, where Taylor died shortly afterward.

Mary Godines, 6 years old, 9320 South Halsted street, died in the Auburn Park hospital last night of injuries received earlier when she was run down at Vincennes avenue and Halsted street by a car driven by Franklin Wymer, 22, 9634 Vanderpoel avenue.

3 CHICAGO I. N. G. REGIMENTS GO TO CAMP TODAY

The three Chicago infantry regiments of the Illinois National Guard, the 131st, the 132d and the 8th, will leave today for their annual training at Camp Grant, near Rockford. These regiments have a total strength of 2,830 men. The aviation unit, the 108th engineers, and 533 men from downstate infantry units will also depart from Chicago today. The Chicago troops will return on Aug. 10. The downstate troops will return on Aug. 11, when all members of the Illinois division of the National Guard will participate in the Illinois day ceremonies at the Fair.

DUCE HEALS RIFT WITH HUNGARY; ISOLATES HITLER

New Lineup Is Taking Shape in Europe.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 28.—Gen. Julius Goemboes, Hungary's soldier-premier, left Rome for Budapest tonight declaring that he was satisfied with his three days' conversations with Premier Mussolini. He said he was convinced that it was worth while to work together toward a policy of peace in central Europe.

Goemboes' statement apparently indicates that Il Duce has been able to repair the rift between Italy and its best Balkan friend, Hungary, over Italy's change of front with regard to central European politics in the four power peace pact.

Pays Visit to Hitler.

Following signature of that pact, which Hungary interpreted as itanan abandonment of the cause of revision of the peace treaties, Goemboes made a beeline for Berlin to see Chancellor Hitler. That trip caused concern and annoyance here.

Later Gomboes visited Chancellor Dollfuss in Austria and indicated that Hungary had not gone entirely Nazi, as perhaps the foreign minister of Hungary, Kaloman von Kanya, who is of German origin and who accompanied Goemboes, would have liked.

Goemboes' visit to Austria was followed in a few days by his present visit to Rome, and the completion of the three days' stay here tonight has apparently given cause for rejoicing in fascist political circles, although nothing precisely explaining the nature of the topics discussed has been allowed to become known.

Duce Promises Aid.

Two or three brief communiques have been issued indicating that Mussolini promised enough economic assistance for Hungary to lure Goemboes away from the idea of hooking his economic wagon to Hitler's. According to some advices Mussolini also urged a closer union between Hungary and Austria as a counterpoise against the spread of German influence in the Balkans, which Italy fears as much as it fears an anschluss (union) between Germany and Austria.

Mussolini, according to some diplomatic circles, also may have reasoned Goemboes into agreeing to a friendlier feeling between Hungary and the little entente [Czechoslovakia, Juga-Slavia, and Rumania] with which Mussolini has now apparently made up his mind to be friendly, since it was also announced tonight that Nicholas Titulescu, Rumanian foreign minister, one of the little entente moguls, will come to Rome to see Mussolini. Dr. Eduard Benes, foreign minister of Czecho-Slovakia, may follow Titulescu here. The little entente is France's friend and Mussolini is now veering away from Berlin and toward Paris.

Duce Still for Revision.

From what appears now, Goemboes was given plenty of promises from Mussolini that the duce would urge revision of the treaty of Trianon if and when a favorable opportunity occurred.

Whatever is the importance of Goemboes' visit here, European diplomats appear to be watching the central European situation closely for manifestations of changing fronts and attitudes in the shifting political welter as a result of the adjustments necessary in applying the new politics of the four power pact. Mussolini's interests are apparently centered on the Balkans.

It is reported that Dino Grandi, until last July Italian foreign minister, may be called back from the London embassy to be foreign minister again. This may take place, it is reported, as soon as Air Minister Gen. Italo Balbo and his air crusaders get back from America and the atmosphere clears up. Grandi is now in Rome. He had an audience with Il Duce yesterday.

Patient Dies in Leap Off Sanitarium Fire Escape

Louise Johnson, 24 years old, 1902 Larrabee street, leaped to her death yesterday afternoon from a second floor fire escape at the Parkway sanitarium, 2616 Prairie avenue. The young woman had been a patient there only a few days. Nurses said she had been sitting in the yard of the sanitarium when suddenly she jumped up, ran up the fire escape and leaped off. She fell on a cement stairway thirty feet below.

FIND MESSAGE OF DEAD CHICAGO ATLANTIC FLYERS

GRAND FALLS, Newfoundland, July 28.—(AP)—A small red bag containing what apparently is a message from Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas, Chicago flyers who crashed and were killed in Germany two weeks ago, was found here today by William Bouzan.

The message said: "Wire collect Associated News New York airplane Lithuanica N R 688 E all is well and regards. Signed Stephen Darius, Stanley Girenas G C T 1910 July 15th 1933." The red bag containing the message was tied at the mouth with about three yards of white ribbon which connected it with a spear.

The two airmen took off early on the morning of July 15 from New York for Kaunas, Lithuania, successfully completing the ocean passage before they were killed. The notation "G C T 1910" in the message means 19.10 o'clock, Greenwich civil time, which is the same as Greenwich mean time. Its equivalent in Chicago daylight saving time is 2:10 p. m. Darius and Girenas were reported over Trinity Bay, Newfoundland, at 2:38 p. m., July 15.

Two Hoodlums Look Back and Find It's Bad Luck

Police Sergt. John Warren noticed two men walking in Lake street near Michigan avenue yesterday, but paid no particular attention to them until they looked at him over their shoulders and added speed to their pace. He stopped them. They were Joe Fusco, 31 years old, once chief beer handler for the Capone syndicate, and Tony Schivone, 30 years old, said to be a syndicate follower. They were locked up.

Parking Lot Operator Is Kidnaped, Held Four Days

San Antonio, Tex., July 28.—(AP)—Adolph Galle, parking lot operator, told police he was released today by kidnapers who held him captive four days without food or water and forced him to sign three blank checks. He believes he was the victim of mistaken identity. He said he was abducted from his parking lot Monday morning by three men driving a sedan with Oklahoma license plates.

Argentine Senate Passes Trade Pact with Britain

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 28.—The senate today approved the Anglo-Argentine trade treaty without taking a vote. Passage followed a debate, in which the treaty was bitterly attacked as "worthless or worse" by Lisandro de la Torre. The chamber of deputies approved the treaty a week ago.

NAB 2 SUSPECTS IN KILLING LAID TO ALCOHOL FEUD

Two men arrested as suspects in the killing of Thomas Ferdinardo, alias Tony Rocco, 1704 Sunnyside avenue, were in the showup at the detective bureau last night. No identifications were made, but the Damen avenue police announced that they would be held for further investigation.

The prisoners are Charles Gordon, 32 years old, and John Olson, 33 years old, both of 1120 Lawrence avenue. They denied having anything to do with the slaying.

Ferdinardo was shot to death early yesterday in the saloon of Daniel Gallagher at 3946 Lincoln avenue. Clyde Gallagher, brother of the saloon owner, witnessed the shooting. He said that four men had entered the place and first beaten Ferdinardo, then fired at him when he tried to escape.

The police theory is that Ferdinardo, reputedly a dealer in alcohol, had gained the enmity of the west side Klondyke O'Donnell gang by infringing on their territories and had been killed for business reasons. Ferdinardo was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct only a few days ago and released on bonds furnished by Clyde Gallagher.

MOTHER SEES HER BABY AND SISTER KILLED BY TRAIN

A helpless mother looked on last night when a west bound Pennsylvania train struck and killed her 18 month old daughter and the baby's aunt in Gary.

With the infant in a go-cart, the mother, Mrs. Mary Arvanitis, and the aunt were crossing the tracks at 15th avenue when the train approached at a high rate of speed from the east. Mrs. Arvanitis halted on the east bound track, but Mrs. Lavoreece, becoming panicky, seized the infant and jumped directly in front of the engine. Mrs. Lavoreece was a sister of Mrs. Arvanitis.

VICTIM, 70, LOSES $6,400 ON HOARY SWINDLING GAME

Michael Muha, 70 years old, 511 East Chicago avenue, East Chicago, lost $6,400 yesterday in one of the oldest confidence games. Two strangers, who represented themselves as the heirs to a large fortune, told Muha they were seeking an honest man to administer a charity fund of several hundred thousand dollars. To prove their mutual respectability the strangers placed a large sum of money in a package and Muha put in his $6,400. The package was then wrapped with string and left with Muha. When he opened it he discovered the money was gone. Last night the victim was taken to the detective bureau, where he attempted to identify photographs of well known swindlers.

TRADERS WATCH WASHINGTON AS MARKETS SINK

Change in Monetary Policy Expected.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

La Salle street yesterday had its ear out for news of some new development from Washington.

There was no definite indication that such a development should be expected, but the markets were behaving very much as they had behaved before when the insiders were getting squared away to take advantage of the effect of some announcement from the capital.

The grain market was acting strangely. After several days of brisk recovery from last week's setback the word had gone around that all forced liquidation had been cleared up and that the market was again on all four wheels.

Signs of returning to normal were seen in the action of the stock exchange in voting to go back to normal trading hours next week and in the action of the board of trade in removing the minimum price restrictions on grains.

Grains and Stocks Sink.

When the grain pits opened, however, it became evident that something other than liquidation was afull range permitted for the day and stayed there. At the close wheat, rye and barley were off 5 cents, corn 4 cents and oats 3 cents. Cash corn and cash oats were the only exceptions. Futures hit the floor all along the line.

In the stock market there was a similar relapse. Leading issues lost one to three dollars a share in one of the dullest sessions in weeks.

Meanwhile, the dollar was moving nervously in foreign exchange. The pound dropped nearly 8 cents at one time. After a series of radical fluctuations the dollar closed slightly higher than on Thursday.

Many market experts attribute the steep fluctuations in the commodity and stock markets to the rubber dollar. As long as the value of the dollar is highly uncertain and the administration declines to announce what its future monetary policy will be, they argue, there are bound to be widely divergent guesses by traders and the public generally with consequent jitters in the markets.

Must Act in Few Weeks.

The present uncertainty regarding the monetary policy of the administration, however, will be at least partly cleared up within the next two weeks. On Aug. 15 the treasury has some heavy financing to do. It must meet 470 millions of 4 per cent obligations which fall due, and, in addition, raise other hundreds of millions to start off the big 3 billion 300 million dollar public works spending and lending program.

The financial community anticipates a treasury offering of a billion dollars to cover these needs.

In the plan of marketing these bonds it should be possible to discern rather clearly the future monetary policy of the United States.

To put out another billion dollars of short term obligations—that is, certificates or treasury notes maturing in from 3 months to 5 years—would be a hazardous way to finance the building of roads, bridges and postoffices. The government already has about six billion dollars of floating debt hanging over its head.

Banks Dislike Long Maturities.

The alternative would be to sell long term bonds, maturing ten or more years in the future. The question then arises: Who will buy them? The banks, which have been the heaviest buyers of government and short term offerings during the last two or three years, aren't in the market for long term bonds. Some large banks will buy no government bond that matures more than 12 months hence.

There is a third way, of course. That is to sell them to the federal reserve banks. That is inflation. Under the terms of the Thomas inflation amendment to the agricultural adjustment bill, the President can require the reserve banks to buy as much as 3 billions of federal bonds. The reserve banks can pay for the bonds with "asset" currency, to be secured not with gold but with the bonds for which they are spent.

If the treasury begins to dump government bonds in large quantities into the reserve banks, therefore, inflation is on and the markets will have their cue.

Inflation Seems Necessary.

It is hard to see how the federal government can finance its tremendous spending program during the current fiscal year without indulging in inflation.

In addition to the 470 millions of bonds falling due Aug. 15 there are 3 billion 500 million dollars of other obligations maturing during the year. The public works scheme calls for expenditures of 3 billions 300 millions. This is only a beginning. The Reconstruction Finance corporation, the bank deposit insurance corporation called for in the Glass-Steagall banking act, the farm credit administration, and other credit agencies will require other hundreds of millions. And then there are the ordinary expenditures of government, all of which probably won't be covered by taxes and other income.

Silver Drops One Cent to 36⅛ Cents an Ounce

New York, July 28.—(AP)—The price of silver dropped 1 cent to 36⅛ cents an ounce in the spot market today. Futures on the Commodity Exchange, Inc., showed like weakness on a restricted volume of trading, quotations being down 5 to a cent an ounce.

Dollar Shows Wide Swings; Ends Higher

The United States dollar fluctuated wildly in foreign exchange transactions yesterday, both in the early trading in London and continental markets and in the later trading in New York and Chicago after the close of the European markets.

Closing quotations, however, were not far from the Thursday level. Last transactions showed the franc at 5.30 cents, compared with 5.33⅓ cents at Thursday's close, and the British pound was quoted at $4.52 a decline of 1½ cents.

In terms of French gold the American dollar at the close in New York was worth 73.92 cents, compared with a rate of 73.75 cents the day before. This is considerably above the 68.4 cent level on July 19, when the dollar touched its lowest point.

British Pound Drops.

In the early trading in London the pound dropped sharply against the dollar. The opening rate of $4.51 to the pound compared with an overnight quotation of $4.57¾. Shortly thereafter the pound sank to $4.34. There was strong buying of dollars for commercial use, together with hurried short covering by continental bears.

The sudden strength of the dollar in London was attributed to news dispatches from Washington quoting a mysteriously anonymous "high authority" as saying that the administration had temporarily abandoned devaluation of the dollar and was anxious to weigh the effect of its industrial recovery program. At the close in London the pound stood at $4.44½, a drop of 12⅞ cents from the Thursday close.

Similarly in Paris there were sharp fluctuations. The dollar opened at 19 francs, compared with Thursday's closing rate of 18.64. Rapidly it rose to 19.60 francs, later gradually slipping to a final rate of 19.01 francs per dollar.

Wide Savings in New York.

The excitement in foreign exchange transferred to New York after the close of the European markets, and the quotations there were just as varied. The pound dropped about 8 cents at one time, then rose about 11 cents, finally closing 1½ cent lower for the day at $4.52.

Strength of the American dollar was also manifest against the Canadian dollar, the latter closing at 92¾ cents in New York, compared with 93¼ cents the day before.

SEABOARD'S NET FOR SIX MONTHS DOUBLE ALL 1932

Norfolk, Va., July 28.—(AP)—Gross income of the Seaboard Airline railway for the first six months of this year was more than $1,000,000 greater than the gross income for the entire 12 months of 1932, it is shown in figures presented to Federal Judge Luther B. Way here today by Legh R. Powell Jr., one of the receivers of the road.

The gross income in 1932 was slightly more than $711,000 and for the first six months of this year, ending on June 30, the road's gross income totaled $1,727,000.

In June the gross revenue amounted to $2,401,000, an increase of $212,000 over the same month last year. Economy measures put into effect by Judge Way and the receivers helped to swell the gross income of the road for June to $214,000, as compared with a deficit of $117,000 in June, 1932, to show an increase in gross income of $331,000 over the income of June, 1932.

CONSOLIDATED GAS, BALTIMORE, REPORTS PROFIT

The Consolidated Gas, Electric Light, and Power company of Baltimore yesterday reported that net income for the quarter ended June 30, 1933, after crediting of non-operating revenue and deduction of fixed charges, amounted to $1,389,669, against $1,512,973 in the same period of 1932. After preferred and common dividends there was a balance of $49,657, against $176,046 last year.

For the six months ended June 30, 1933, the company reported that net income available for dividends and general corporate uses amounted to $2,969,207, against $3,564,790 for the like period of 1932. Balance after preferred and common dividends was $290,027, against $892,231 for the parallel period of 1932.

Union Pacific Earns $2.14 on Common in Six Months

Union Pacific, for the six months ended June 30, had net income of $6,754,756, after taxes and charges, equivalent after dividend requirements on the 4 per cent preferred stock to $2.14 a share on the common. In the like 1932 period net amounted to $6,578,247 or $2.06 a share.

HIGHER TAXES REFLECTED IN EDISON REPORT

Net Income Drops More Than Gross.

The report of Commonwealth Edison company covering second quarter operations reflects reduced revenues and increased provision for taxes. Gross operating revenues for the three months to June 30, 1933, totaled $17,459,984, down 3.7 per cent from the $18,135,820 reported for the second quarter of 1932. Net income amounted to $1,240,783, or 76 cents per share on 1,623,150 shares, against $2,250,473, or $1.41 per share on 1,591,823 shares, in the corresponding 1932 period.

JAMES SIMPSON. [Blank & Stoller Photo.]

A cheerful note was struck in Chairman James Simpson's report, when he said that output for May of this year was greater than that for May of 1932, the first time that output in any one month exceeded output of the corresponding month of the preceding year since April, 1930. June, 1933, output was 7.5 per cent greater than output in June, 1932, and the first few weeks of July of this year continued the improvement.

Likely to Earn Dividends.

Mr. Simpson estimated that a continued comparative increase, despite the expected seasonal decline in the third quarter, should enable the company to earn dividend payments for the year, provided there is no further unforeseen increase in taxes. The stock now pays $1 a quarter.

As a result of pressure of the Illinois commerce commission the company made a voluntary reduction in rates aggregating $2,000,000 a year. Absorption of the three per cent federal tax, which was formerly borne by the consumer, will cost another $1,500,000.

Gross for the first half of 1933 totaled $35,996,092 and net income was $3,396,224, or $2.09 per share. Operating revenues in the comparative 1932 period amounted to $38,778,488 and net was $5,057,022, or $3.81 per share.

Quizzed at Own Expense.

Chairman Simpson pointed out that the new utility law enacted by the Illinois legislature during its 1933 session gives the utility commission the power to employ appraisers, accountants, etc., to investigate rate structure at the expense of the company, provided such expense does not exceed one-half of one per cent of operating revenues. Based on 1932 results such expense to Commonwealth Edison would amount to $372,000.

Chairman Simpson stated: "It should be noted that exercise of these enlarged powers by the commission, plus substantially higher federal, state and local taxes, will increase operating expenses of utilities and that an unjust use of such powers would cause serious financial embarrassment."

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD PAYS LAST OF R. F. C. LOAN

With the sending of a check for $6,400,000 to the Reconstruction Finance corporation yesterday the Pennsylvania railroad wiped out its obligation to the corporation, which originally totaled $27,500,000.

The action established the Pennsylvania as the first large road to make full repayment of money borrowed from the corporation. Of the payment made yesterday, $5,000,000 was for electrification work between New York and Washington and $1,400,000 was applied to a work loan made to provide funds for repairing equipment.

Bank of Holland Cuts Rediscount Rate to 3½%

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AMSTERDAM, Holland, July 28.—The Bank of Holland reduced its rediscount rate today by one-half of 1 per cent to 3½ per cent. The reduction reflects the strength of the guilder resulting from the recent coöperative policy of continental central banks, and indicates Holland will not abandon the gold standard at present.

Roosevelt Hands First Check to Cotton Planter Who Cut Crop

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—The cotton farmers' payoff under the new farm relief program began today as the agriculture department prepared to impose its four cent a pound tax on cotton processors to pay for the payoff.

From the hand of President Roosevelt himself., as Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and other officials of the new farm deal looked on, Farmer William E. Morris of Nueces county, Tex., received the first check issued by the agricultural adjustment administration, under its cotton relief program.

Receives Cash and Option.

Mr. Morris received $517 for plowing up 47 acres of the 159 acres of cotton he had planted this year, in accordance with the terms of his acreage reduction contract with the government. In addition, he holds an option to buy at 6 cents a pound, 23⅓ bales of government owned cotton, if later on the price of cotton makes him regret having cut down his crop.

While Mr. Morris was accepting his money, other officials of the agricultural adjustment administration were preparing to impose the new tax on all processors of cotton, floor stocks of cotton products, and competitive articles of silk, in order to raise the money with which to pay for the relief of Mr. Morris and some 900,000 other southern cotton planters.

Tax Effective Next Tuesday.

On the preceding day, hearings will be opened by the department to determine what tax shall be imposed on silk, rayon, wool, jute, and all other commodities which compete with cotton.

Cheaper Dollar Keeps Tourists in America

The head of the foreign department of one of the larger banks says that the declining dollar has put a decided crimp in European travel by Americans this year. "People have discovered that their dollars will buy 30 per cent less francs this year. Consequently, a lot of them decide not to go to Paris. The same applies to other countries. British pounds cost 30 per cent more, too. I think the depreciation in the value of the dollar will increase the "see America first" movement.

A sign of increasing confidence in long term investments is seen in the resumption of purchases of municipal bonds by banks. This is particularly true of the smaller banks, against which the pressure has been released for the first time since 1929. The other day an offering of state of Virginia six year bonds yielding 2.95 per cent found takers among the banks. When banks again are willing to tie up any portion of their funds in six year investments it is a good sign.

Protection against sharp advances and declines in the price of grains through purchases of "bids" and "offers" can no longer be obtained on the Chicago Board of Trade, trading in the so-called indemnities having been halted. However, some traders see in the fixed minimum price at which grain can sell on the local exchange a very effective medium in limiting losses on purchases. There is an added attraction in the latter inasmuch as the protection against a severe decline is furnished gratis.

Hand in hand with public regulation of business production and high taxes goes bootlegging. The American Petroleum institute adds this pointed remark to its weekly report on oil production:

"Note: The figures indicated do not include any estimate of any oil which might have been surreptitiously produced."

"They never have sense enough to get out when they can do so with a whole skin," philosophizes a Chicago banker. "I've got one fellow who owes $100,000 which is secured by collateral plus a couple of farms that we took over to sweeten the ante. He also owes a closed bank $10,000 on another collateralized loan. When the loans were under water he kept saying how fast he'd liquidate them if the collateral ever increased to a point where he could do so without loss. Two weeks ago the markets got to a place where he could do so and have $10,000 and his two farms left over. Would he liquidate? Not much! We strengthened our own loan, but he stalled off the receiver for the closed bank. Last week after the collapse of the young bull market the receiver sawed him off."

Cholera in hogs has been added to the forces which are cutting production for the farmer. This sickness is sweeping the cornbelt from many directions, taking a heavy toll in parts of Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and South Dakota, some of the principal hog producing states. Efforts to check the spreading of cholera has been effective in some sections, according to John E. Swain, president of the Fidelity Laboratories,

CHARLES HAFFNER JR. QUITS EXECUTIVE POST WITH CITY NATIONAL

Announcement was made yesterday that Charles C. Haffner Jr. will leave his position as executive vice president of the City National Bank and Trust company to become associated with R. R. Donnelley & Sons company, printers. He will retain his connection with the bank, however, by becoming a member of the board of directors.

CHARLES C. HAFFNER JR. [Moffett-Russell Photo.]

Mr. Haffner, who is a graduate of Yale university, began his business career in 1919 with the Dunlap Tire and Rubber company. Later he became associated with the Buffalo Trust company of Buffalo. He left that bank in 1924 to come to Chicago.

Mr. Haffner married Miss Clarissa Donnelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Donnelley, in October, 1925. In December, 1931, he was placed in command of the 124th field artillery, succeeding Brig. Gen. Thomas Hammond.

INCOME BOOSTED ABOVE YEAR AGO BY BORG-WARNER

Second Quarter Profit Exceeds Earlier Loss.

Net income of the Borg-Warner corporation advanced sharply in the second quarter, according to a report on the company's operations made yesterday by Charles S. Davis, president. Net income for the period was $717,152, compared with $265,741 in the like quarter of 1932.

For the first six months of 1933 net income was $335,171. The company sustained a net loss of $381,981 for the first quarter of this year. Net income for the first half of 1932 was $435,961.

Cash Position Improves.

Mr. Davis' report stated that cash, United States government and other marketable securites, less reserves, totaled $8,482,739 as of June 30, compared with $7,493,000 as of Jan. 1, 1933. Total current assets as of June 30 were reported as $15,463,651, while current liabilities were reported as $2,719,697.

During the six months ended June 30, 1933, divdends paid to preferred stockholders of constituent companies totaled $4,408, and divdends to preferred stockholders of the Borg-Warner corporation amounted to $115,619.

Earns 18.7 Cents on Common.

The net profit applicable to the common stock for the first half of 1933 was equal to 18.7 cents a share on 1,150,899 shares outstanding. The corporation has paid no divdends on the common stock since April 1, 1932. The directors yesterday voted a dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 15.

The Borg-Warner corporation is a holding company whose constituent organizations manufacture among other things automobile accessories and parts, electrical iceboxes, steel products of many types, and stainless stele products.

BANK COMMODITY POOL DISSOLVES; DID NO BUSINESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 28.—The Commodities Finance corporation, the $50,000,000 organization formed last August by local banks and trust companies to finance the purchase, holding, and orderly marketing of commodities, has been quietly put out of existence after standing by for a year and doing no business, it was learned today.

The termination of the corporation and its two small affiliates, the Commodities Credit corporation and the Commodities Acceptance corporation, marks the retirement from the finance field of the last of the three "pools" formed by bankers during the depression for emergency purposes.

No capital ever was paid in to Commodities Finance, and hence winding up its affairs proved a simple matter. No business of importance was ever done, so the financial community is getting rid of nothing valuable through its dissolution.

Argentine President Denies Foreign Debt Moratorium

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 28.—In connection with widespread rumore that Argentina is contemplating a moratorium on foreign debt service, President Augustin P. Justo today told an interviewer that the government has no intention of changing its policy of strict fulfillment of financial obligations.

N. Y. Phone Co. Reports June Income of $3,136,995

The New York Telephone company, in a report to the interstate commerce commission, showed June operating income of $3,136,995 against $3,262,755 in June, 1932. Gross revenue for the month was $15,522,633, compared with $16,699,478 last year.

STOCKS DECLINE AS MARKET HITS SUMMER LULL

All Groups Sag on Quiet Selling.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 28.—Stocks looked ragged today. Trading fell off to preboom proportions, turnover for the three hour session amounting to only 1,390,555 shares, and price movements were narrow with a tendency toward lower levels. Final figures were from 1 to 2 points under those of yesterday.

Many traders were absent from the board rooms of the financial district here today, indicating that the regular week-end exodus had gotten under way a day ahead of ordinary schedule, due probably to the conviction growing out of the dull sessions of the last few days that the market has hit a "summer rut" for the time being.

Opening prices were irregularly lower with losses in a few scattered issues running as high as 4 points. After the overnight batch of orders had been executed operations settled down to something of a dull routine and initial losses in a majority of cases were never materially increased.

Gold Stocks Weaken.

Some of the gold mining issues looked rather sickly, partly on the report of lower output due to increased costs of production and partly on uncertainties in connection with the reported decision of the treasury on gold exports. Alaska Juneau was down about 2 points at one time but recovered a fraction of its early loss before the close. Homestake ignored the group drawbacks to register a 5 point gain on the day.

The fresh drop in wheat hurt the farm stocks and Case took the count for more than 3 points. Mail order issues eased also under the influence of grain.

In the motor division, reports that Chrysler's earnings statement covering the second quarter due next Monday is going to make some pretty rosy reading for the bull contingent were accompanied by rather brisk buying in this issue. General Motors was also active at intervals, but both stocks finished the day behind minus signs. The downward pull of the list in general evidently proving too much for them.

Alcohol, Tobacco, Steady.

Alcohol and tobacco shares looked steady most of the time and the chemicals held their ground fairly well. The rails, however, slid back with other groups, losses in the sector running as high as 3 points.

Disappointment over the Bethlehem Steel report made public after the close of business yesterday was reflected in a bunch of selling orders, the first of which sunk the opening price of the issue 4 points. About a point of which was later recovered.

Boardroom comment today indicated a growing belief among the rank and file that a "secondary reaction" is expected before long. Brokers say that many are evidently awaiting the opportunities which they think the impending setback will bring to reënter the market.

ETTINGER, BRAND FIRM WILL NOT BE LIQUIDATED

The brokerage firm of Ettinger and Brand will not be liquidated, according to Morton F. Stern, one of the partners of J. S. Bache & Co. Accounts of customers of Ettinger & Brand will be carried on Bache's books.

Stern said: "Under the terms of the contract Ettinger & Brand are to continue their operations on all of the principal exchanges and through their several offices, just as they have in the past, and there will be no general liquidation of Ettinger & Brand accounts.

"The Ettinger & Brand accounts for which J. S. Bache & Co. will act as correspondents under the terms of the agreements, will be carried on Bache's books individually rather than collectively. Ettinger & Brand will maintain contact with their customers."

FLUCTUATION LIMITS ON GRAIN, PROVISIONS, ARE FURTHER REDUCED

New regulations which limit advances or declines in wheat, rye, and barley to 5 cents per bushel during any one trading session; 4 cents on corn, and 3 cents on oats, went into effect on the leading grain exchanges yesterday and will be effective until further notice.

Beginning today and until further notice daily fluctuations in the price of provisions on the Chicago Board of Trade cannot exceed 50 cents per 100 pounds above or below the closing figures of the previous day. Permissable range of grain and provisions in Chicago today follow:

	High.	Low.
July wheat	$1.04	$ .04
September wheat	1.07⅛	.97⅛
December wheat	1.10⅞	1.00¾
May wheat	1.14⅛	1.04¼

Exchanges to Resume Usual Hours Monday

Security and commodity exchanges of New York and Chicago will resume regular trading hours next Monday, announcements said yesterday.

The New York Stock exchange will return to hours from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., eastern daylight saving time, the governing committee announced. The exchange will be closed today and on all Saturdays until Sept. 2, inclusive.

For the first two days of this week the exchange has operated from noon to 3 p. m. Starting Wednesday the trading hours were from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. In the last three days the volume of business has fallen to 2,044,262, 2,489,170, and 1,390,555 for yesterday. The reduction in trading hours has enabled commission houses to catch up on their work.

Other Exchanges Agree.

The New York Curb exchange also announced yesterday that its hours would be from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. starting Monday, and that it would close on Saturdays until Sept. 2.

The Chicago Stock and Curb exchanges, closed today like those in New York, announced that beginning next Monday trading would be during the regular hours from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time.

The Chicago Curb exchange will be closed on Saturdays until Sept. 2, inclusive. The announcement of the governing committee of the Chicago Stock exchange said the exchange would be closed on Saturdays until further notice.

Board of Trade Action.

The securities division of the Chicago Board of Trade will be closed today, and on all Saturdays until further notice. Beginning Monday trading will be from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m.

Grains and provisions will be traded in today from 10:30 a. m. to noon. Beginning on Monday, grain and provisions will have trading hours from 9:30 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. and cotton from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m.

On Saturdays trading in cotton will be from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., and trading in grain and provisions from 9:30 to noon.

GRAIN BROKERS RAISE MARGINS; SAME ON STOCKS

While margin requirements have changed little on stocks, they have been advanced considerably on grains since the recent active market. The requirements exacted by one well known brokerage house are given here as being representative of the general situation, although there may be some differences from those of other houses which must meet their own conditions.

The margin requirement for wheat is now 15 cents a bushel, compared with 10 cents a few weeks back; corn, 15 cents, compared with 10 cents; oats, 10 cents, compared with 7 cents. Rye and barley remain at 15 cents.

The requirement for cotton is now 150 points, or $7.50 a bale, compared with recent rates of 80 and 100 points, or $4 and $5 a bale. It is stated that conservative houses probably will soon raise the rate to 200 points, or $10 a bale.

Stock requirements by the house mentioned are: shares selling under $8, payment in full; selling from $8 to $15, 50 per cent of market value; selling from $15 to $20, 7 points; selling from $20 to $40, 10 points; selling from $40 to $60, 15 points, and selling at $60 and over, 25 per cent of market value. The above apply to stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange and to certain ones of the Chicago Stock Exchange. Trading in shares listed on other exchanges is subject to special arrangements.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES SAG IN QUIET TRADING

Prices of stocks eased a little in listless trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. The turnover totaled only 40,000 shares. While the tendency was downward, changes were only fractional.

Action in the brewing section was dull. Prima lost 1½ points of the sharp gain it ran up on Thursday. Berghoff lost a minor fraction and Kingsbury finished unchanged at 12¼.

Swift and Swift International each lost ⅞ of a point, while Armour picked up a fraction to close at 11. The offering house says the shares, which are offered as a speculation, are priced at $4. The champagne concern is reported as having produced wines from 1865 up to prohibition.

Packard Motor Car Earns Profit in Second Quarter

The Packard Motor Car company had a net profit of $21,953 in the June quarter, contrasting with loss of $949,144 in the corresponding period of last year. In the six months to June 30 the company lost $1,109,870, against a loss of $2,513,127 for the first half of 1932.

GRAINS SLUMP; MARTS ABOLISH MINIMUM PRICES

Most Futures Decline Maximum Allowed.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

"Pegged" minimum prices for grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were abolished yesterday, the emergency which resulted in such an unusual action being regarded by the directors of the exchange as having passed. The markets were believed to be in condition to take care of themselves.

Following the recommendations made at the conference between the grain exchanges and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at Washington early in the week, more stringent limits for advances or declines in grain futures during one day's session were announced, effective yesterday. The change in Chicago was announced shortly before the opening of the market.

Price Swings Reduced.

Until further notice fluctuations in wheat, rye and barley on the leading exchanges will be limited to 5 cents a bushel from the close of the previous day, either up or down, while on corn the maximum price change permitted will be 4 cents per bushel, and on oats 3 cents. The previous limits had been 8 cents on wheat and rye, 5 cents on corn and barley, and 4 cents on oats.

Grain prices broke sharply on all leading exchanges yesterday, with wheat, rye and barley off 5 cents a bushel, the maximum decline permitted under the new regulations, while corn futures lost 4 cents, and oats 3 cents. Flaxseed quotations in the northwest were lowered 10 cents.

July corn and oats were the only exceptions to the maximum decline in prices for leading grains during the day. July corn was off 3¼ cents for the day at 53¾ cents, while a nominal quotation of 41½ cents was made for July oats, off 2⅜ cents for the day.

December Wheat Breaks.

December wheat in Chicago, which had advanced from a low of 93¾ cents last week to a high of $1.10⅞ on Thursday, dropped to $1.05¾ yesterday and closed with sellers at the latter figure. July wheat was 99 cents asked; September, $1.02⅛, and May, $1.09⅞.

December corn was 62⅜ cents asked at the last, or 4⅝ cents above the inside level of last week. September corn could have been readily secured at 57⅝ cents, and May at 68⅛ cents. July rye was 76 cents asked; September, 78 cents, and December, 83¾ cents, while September barley was 63 cents and December, 67¼ cents.

Many scattered longs who had weathered the drastic decline of 30 cents on wheat and 20 cents on corn, July 19 and 20, found themselves with either small profits or losses on their holdings, and were disposed to get out of the market. This "secondary" liquidation was a depressing factor in all grains during the day.

Expect Cooler Weather.

Forecast for somewhat cooler weather in the spring grain area, following three days of temperatures of 100, the possibility of scattered showers, a sharp decline in sterling exchange, and a break in the Winnipeg market were factors in turning the markets downward. Winnipeg wheat was off 6⅝ to 7⅜ cents at the last in Canadian funds. Despite the decline in sterling quotations, Liverpool wheat lost only 1¼ to 2 cents per bushel in American funds.

There was nothing in the crop news from the spring grain area to account for the decline in prices, and the most conservative interests in the American and Canadian northwest were frankly pessimistic as to the outcome.

A leading Winnipeg line elevator house reported the condition of spring wheat in the three Canadian provinces at 55. This was construed by Chicago statisticians as suggesting a yield of only 252,000,000 bushels, compared with 408,000,000 bushels harvested last year.

N. Y. House Offers Stock in Champagne Making Firm

Champagne joins beer as a basis for a stock offering. A New York house announces that it is offering 100,000 shares of $1 par value capital stock of the White Top Champagne company, Inc., Hammondsport, N. Y. The offering says the shares, which are offered as a speculation, are priced at $4. The champagne concern is reported as having produced wines from 1865 up to prohibition.

SUMMER TRADE SHOWS NO LULL; PAY RAISES AID

Reviews Find Speculative Break Is Ignored.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 28.—Slight evidence is discernible so far of the normal mid-summer recession in general business and trade. Reports from all parts of the United States continue to show an upward trend, according to the trade reviews of the week.

Strength of the buying movement apparently was unaffected by the fall in commodity and security prices, and consumers are continuing their demands for merchandise as the result of wage and pay increases.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., report in part:

"The summer lull in retail demand is to be found in only a few isolated districts, and even there the usual decline has been narrowed to almost imperceptible proportions, while industrial schedules are being maintained at a level only slightly under the peak of the current movement.

Disregard Speculative Markets.

"Both productive and distributive activities have revealed a hardened immunity to any break in speculative markets, as any diminution from the high volume reached during the first half of the current month has been met with persistent stubbornness.

"There is abundant indication of the intention of all employers to cooperate wholeheartedly with the administration in its epoch-making endeavor to advance the economic and industrial welfare of those who work in shops, mills, mines, factories, and offices, to lift wages and to reduce the ranks of the idle. Many employers already have aligned their operations in consonance with the provisions of the blanket code, even before the pledges were signed to promise their support officially.

Trade Indices Steady.

"In the leading industrial indexes there were fewer new peaks established this week, although ground previously gained was ceded only fractionally.

"Loadings of revenue freight touched the highest point for the year, and output of bituminous coal continued to rise, running above the comparative record of 1931. While electric production increased over the 1932 figures for the twelfth successive week, this is the first time in that period that the percentage of gain was not higher than for the week preceeding."

Chicago Stock Exchange Seat Bought by Iowa Man

American Smelting and Refining.

Investors' Guide: Please advise me regarding American Smelting stock.—Mrs. S. E. R.

Answer: American Smelting and Refining company is the largest nonferrous metal smelting enterprise in the world. During the last few years the company has expanded its holdings to become an important copper, lead, zinc, and silver producer.

Low level of metal prices during the last three years resulted in unsatisfactory operations for this organization. Not only has it resulted in curtailed smelting and mining operations, forcing the shutdown of some plants, but it has entailed heavy inventory losses.

Loss in 1932, after deduction from income of $3,266,000 for inventory adjustments, was $4,506,000, against net income of $375,000, after deduction of $3,195,000 for inventory adjustments, or $1.75 per preferred share, for 1931. Net income in 1930, after a $2,613,000 adjustment, was $11,099,000, or $3.77 per common share. Per share earnings on the common in previous years were $10.02, $3.24, and $19.64.

During 1932 $1,981,000 was transferred from surplus to inventory reserve account and the account dropped $1,423,000, indicating an absorption of $3,404,000 to cover inventory losses. In 1931 the amount was $4,272,000.

At the close of 1932 cash assets alone were almost three times total current liabilities.

Funded debt totals $39,433,000. There are outstanding 495,600 shares of $100 preferred, 184,700 shares of second preferred and 1,829,940 shares of no par common. Preferred dividend- were omitted for the first time in 31 years in the second quarter of 1932.

Ample financial resources and outstanding trade position give assurance that the company should be able to obtain its share of available business. Increase in the price of metals should not only put operations on a more satisfactory basis but should enable the company to report a substantial inventory profit.

Single Share Sale.

Investors' Guide: I hold a few shares of stock, one share of each, which I wish to dispose of. Is it permissible to dispose of these privately, or must they be sold through a broker? The cost of selling them through a broker is so great as to be almost prohibitive.—F. R. R.

If you can find a buyer for your shares there is no objection to selling them privately. Better be sure that the federal stock transfer tax is paid. If you will write to the transfer office of the company whose stock you hold they will inform you how to have the stock transferred.

CHRYSLER CORP. BOOSTS PAY OF 46,000 WORKERS

Fisher Body, Stutz Motor Grant Increases.

Detroit, Mich., July 28.—(AP)—The Chrysler corporation today announced 46,000 employes would be given wage increases 20 per cent higher than those in effect for the first part of March.

An increase of 15 per cent for the 30,000 wage earners of the Fisher Body corporation in Detroit and in branch plants throughout the United States was announced today by W. A. Fisher, president. The advance, effective Aug. 1, supplements an increase of 5 per cent made June 1.

Fisher also announced a 10 per cent increase for all salaried employes of the corporation receiving $1,800 or less a year.

Stutz Motor Joins Move.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 28.—(AP)—Col. E. S. Gorrell, president of the Stutz Motor Car Company of America, today informed employes of a 10 per cent wage increase.

Col. Gorrell at a massmeeting of the employés expressed hope that this increase could be followed by others later.

Coal Miners Get Raise.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 28.—(AP)—Simultaneously with submission of a coal code by non-union producers in Washington today, the Pittsburgh Coal company, employers of 8,000 miners, announced increases in wages which raised its scale to approximately two cents an hour above the minimum wage set in the code.

The new scale increases the lowest wage for outside labor from $2.88 a day to $3.20, C. E. Lesher, vice president, said. Inside labor is raised from $3.76 to $4.16 a day for motormen, with other inside labor advance proportionately. Piece work rates were increased about 14 per cent.

Disston & Sons Raise Pay.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 28.—(AP)—Henry Disston & Sons, manufacturers of saws and files, announced today a second increase of employés' wages, to take effect Aug. 1. Combined with a previous one, effective July 18, it will raise piecework rates and salaries a total of 15 per cent.

The increase affects more than 2,000 employés in the Philadelphia plant and in branches at Chicago, Detroit, Seattle, San Francisco, and Portland, Ore.

Two Illinois Firms Pay More.

Kewanee, Ill., July 28.—[Special.]—Kewanee Boiler corporation and Ross Manufacturing company, two of Kewanee's large industries, have announced 10 per cent wage increases in line with national recovery program.

Ohio Coal Mines Raise Wages.

Martins Ferry, O., July 28.—(AP)—A majority of the eastern Ohio bituminous coal mines today announced a 20 per cent wage increase, effective tomorrow. About 1,000 miners will benefit.

Oil Well Supply Pays More.

Oil City, Pa., July 28.—(AP)—Pay increases of 15 per cent for all office workers and other salaried employes of the Oil Well Supply company were announced today. The new scale becomes effective as of July 16, to conform with similar increases to other workers.

INSURANCE FIRM ACTS.

The Sterling Casualty Insurance company announced yesterday a 10 per cent increase in salaries to all employés, effective immediately. The company said that it is "in full accord and sympathy with the program outlined by the President of the United States."

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(AP)—Raw sugar was quiet today and in the absence of business prices were unchanged at 3.50c for shots. Futures were easier, closing 3 to 4 points net lower. Sales were 7,250 tons. The decline was due to scattered liquidation and selling by commission houses, prompted by reactions in other commodities and by the record breaking domestic beet sugar crop estimate. Prices follow:

HOG PRICES DROP DESPITE FALLING OFF IN SUPPLIES

Packers Cautious Waiting Processing Tax Decision

The cautious attitude adopted by pork packers since the committee representing the packers and live stock producers failed to agree on a plan for cutting production and the raising of hog prices was the dominant bearish factor in hogs again yesterday. Buyers shunted aside the few bullish factors in the trade and prices failed to hold after a generally steady opening. Light supplies and higher prices for lightweight cuts of pork on the wholesale trade had little influence.

It is freely conceded by both sides of the trade that there is little likelihood of much support by packers until some positive statement as to which plan may be accepted comes from Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, to whom the committee has gone to present its problems. Yesterday's weakness was more pronounced than on the preceding session, the trade finishing in sluggish condition and at the low point of the day.

Receipts Fall Off.

Receipts were as light as expected, but packing houses wanted only very limited numbers, so that the available supplies slightly exceeded requirements. Losses of 5 to 10 cents were recorded in the rank and file of swine soon after sellers became convinced that steady rates would not hold.

Heavy hogs were punished most on the down turn, packing grades of sows and the extremely heavy butchers in the run selling as much as 10 to 20 cents lower at the close. Current quotations for big type "lard" hogs are unevenly 10 to 25 cents lower than at the close of last week, while yesterday's top sales of light were 5 cents above last Saturday.

The day's general average price at $4.40 was off 5 cents from Thursday and 5 cents lower than last Saturday. Selected light pork loins met another buoyant trade at 9 to 10 cents per pound yesterday, but heavy loins continued to drag at 6 to 7 cents.

Receipts of hogs at eleven of the leading markets this week were smallest since the middle of April and 20 per cent under the average of the last six weeks. The five day run at eleven markets at 372,000 is 100,000 under the average, but 43,000 heavier than a year ago.

Cattle Prices Droop.

Cattle prices yesterday followed the same trend as hogs, drifting slowly downward, although available supplies were almost too short to put the market to a test. Closing sales were lowest of the week. The two thousand head in the yards consisted mostly of stock selling at $6 and under. One consignment averaged 1,277 pounds at $6.85, the top. Butcher stock met narrow outlet at recent declines.

Top grades of strong weight native lambs were in demand at steady prices, others ruling weak to lower, with the close down 50 cents on the rank and file of western range stock. Yearlings slumped 25 cents, four carloads selling at $5.50. Packers sorted natives early at $8.00 to $8.25, paying $4.75 and under for culls. Seventeen carloads of range lambs were sorted 25 per cent at $7.50 later.

SOLUTION TO CLASS DAY

No registered letter is ever left without some one signing for it. As the house had been unoccupied for two days and the letter bore the stamp of the day before and in the story Ryan claimed he picked it out of the mail box, the student quickly understood the point of the professor's lesson. Such a thing could not happen.
